DAY OF RALLIES

Police Fists Halt March

(Times News Services)

Police used their fists to battle militant anti-war demonstrators in Greenwich Village today. Scores were beaten or arrested when they tried to stage a march to Central Park where thousands were protesting the Vietnam war.

Other fighting erupted outside the park when about 200 young supporters of U.S. Vietnam policy hurled eggs and shouted obscenities at demonstators marching into the park. About a dozen fights broke out.

The anti-war rally was one of about 20 such protests against the war in Vietnam planned in various U.S. cities today, involving perhaps 500,000 persons.

The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., assassinated civil rights leader, was the scheduled speaker for the rally in Central Park, sponsored by the Fifth Avenue Vietnam Peace Parade Committee.

MANY SCHEDULED

Other anti-war demonstrations were planned in cities in Canada, Australia, Britain, Italy, Japan, Mexico, India and several African countries.

In Canada, marches were expected in cities from coast to coast. A rally in Vancouver and Montreal demonstration were scheduled. In Ontario, marchers planned to protest the provincial government's disregard of a brief submitted last February calling for Vietnam teach-ins to be held in all Ontario schools.

New York college and high school students stayed away in large numbers from classes Friday to protest the Vietnam war.

In Prague, more than 1,000 students took part in an anti-American demonstrations in front of the U.S. Embassy. In Paris, flags of the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front flew from the Arch of Triumph and the Eiffel Tower.

Thousands of others marched up Fifth Avenue earlier in the day in New York's annual Loyalty Day parade in support of U.S. military forces. There were no incidents but Mayor John V. Lindsay was denounced as a "hypocrite" for attending both the pro-and anti-war rallies.

The fighting in Greenwich Village erupted when about 300 members of the Coalition for an Anti-Imperialist March moved out from the Washington Square arch and headed north on Seventh Avenue. The group had no parade permit, as did the Loyalty Day and Central Park demonstrators.

INTERVIEW WITH PM

Political commentator Peter C. Newman has obtained the first exclusive interview with Pierre Trudeau since he was sworn in as prime minister. A transcript of the interview begins on Page 5 in today's Times and will be concluded Monday.

Still No Deal On Vietnam Talks Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives met again in Laos today without breaking the deadlock over where to hold preliminary peace talks, the state department disclosed.

The meeting between U.S. ambassador William H. Sullivan and the North Vietnamese charge d'affaires, Nguyen Chan, at Vientiane, the Laotian capital, was the second reported this week in the continuing exchanges between the United States and North Vietnam over a site for preliminary talks.

"There is no agreement on the site," state department press officer Carl Bartch reported in announcing the latest contact in Vientiane.

He declined to give further details including whether Hanoi has replied to U.S. proposals suggesting any of 15 Asian or European capitals as a suitable meeting place.

Sterilization Study Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. C. F. Bentley, dean of agriculture at the University of Alberta, said Friday government boards should be set up to determine whether certain Canadians should be temporarily sterilized.

He said in an interview that temporary sterilization should be directed against irresponsible parents—"that is couples who do not intend or lack the prospects of providing food, shelter, clothing, health and love to some minimum degree to children."

Dr. Bentley said the sterilization would be provided by an inter-uterine device for females and by a vasectomy operation for males.

To regain their potential to reproduce, Dr. Bentley said, the persons would reappear before a regional board of doctors, social workers, lawyers, clergymen and laymen, and comply with regulations now required of parents who want to adopt children.

The 53-year-old father of two said boards should not be set up until a massive birth-control-education program is in force for five years across Canada.

U.S. Bombers Strike Cong Sanctuaries

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. B-52 bombers attacked Viet Cong sanctuaries on two sides of Saigon today in a new effort to smash Viet Cong concentrations within striking distance of the capital.

Intelligence reports persisted that the Viet Cong are planning an attack on Saigon similar to the invasion of the city during the lunar new year offensive Jan. 31.

In Saigon itself, South Vietnamese soldiers and police remained on the alert and all leave was cancelled as the capital prepared for any new Viet Cong attack.

Legal or Not, Montreal Pushing Lottery Plan

DRAPEAU
. . . undaunted

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, undaunted by mounting attacks from authoritative sources on the legality of his city's voluntary tax plan, says he will go ahead with the promotion of the lottery-style scheme, first of its kind in Canada to be run by a municipality.

Under the scheme any voluntary contributor of $2 to Montreal's treasury is eligible for a monthly draw with prizes totalling $150,000, of which $100,000 is the first prize.

The city has already mailed 1,770,000 "voluntary tax" forms throughout Ontario and plans to send more. It also expects to solicit contributions through newspaper advertisements in Canada and the United States and is to begin mailing forms to Montrealers themselves at the end of this month.

But the tax system, expected to raise $28,000,000 for the city coffers, appeared Friday to be running into legal snags both in Canada and the U.S.

CALLS IT ILLEGAL

Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, in a statement issued in Quebec City Friday night, described the scheme as illegal and a contravention of the federal Criminal Code.

However, Mayor Drapeau said in Montreal he has "no comment to make on legal opinions relevant to the voluntary tax" and that the city will proceed with the promotion of the scheme "as planned."

Earlier Friday, a U.S. postal official said in Washington any American participants in the scheme would face jail terms of up to five years and fines up to $5,000 because the tax plan, if it started operating in the U.S., "would fall into the same category as the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes."

Mr. Bertrand's statement said:

"According to the advice of the department's legal advisers the voluntary tax contributions plan would run counter to the regulations of the Criminal Code which prohibits lotteries."

A justice department spokesman said it has not been decided whether any action will be taken by the department to stop operation of the scheme.

While the Criminal Code is federal law, a justice department spokesman in Ottawa said prosecution under gaming provisions in the code is strictly a provincial responsibility.

A spokesman for the federal post office said no complaints about the scheme have yet been received. If any did come, they would be referred to the justice department.

And Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec, attending a dinner in Levis, Quebec., in honor of Jean-Marie Morin, minister without portfolio in the provincial cabinet, said only "we will see" in answer to reporters asking whether the Quebec government would take action.

The Bertrand statement, first official comment on the legality of the scheme by a member of the provincial government, came after the justice department was asked for comment on the Washington reaction to the Montreal tax plan.

AGAINST U.S. LAW

The U.S. post office official said the voluntary tax plan as proposed by Mayor Drapeau would be in violation of U.S. law, under which court action can be taken to apprehend and to return to Canada or to destroy mail found to be involved in promoting lottery.

U.S. law would also prevent American newspapers from carrying any advertising about the scheme.

BURNING, LOOTING

Soldiers Quell Bermuda Riots

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Bermuda's government declared a state of emergency today after an outbreak of burning and looting by predominantly-Negro gangs in the second straight night of violence in the island's capital.

The executive council sent 300 armed troops of the Bermuda Regiment into Hamilton's poorer section to reinforce nearly 250 riot police.

Police said the rioters had dispersed by 3 a.m. after an 8 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew was ordered until peace returns. All fires were reported under control.

Meanwhile, the predominantly-white government United Bermuda party UBP denounced what it called inflammatory statements in the last few days and the predominantly-Negro Progressive Labor party—PLP—accused the UBP and Hamilton police of racism.

VOTE NEXT MONTH

The two parties will contest an election in mid-May under new election rules in the British colony giving the PLP greater influence. The PLP wants to restrict immigration of the English, who the party claims keep Negroes out of better jobs. It also wants independence for the island.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, and 15 were arrested, police said. Tourists fled to their hotels and downtown bars and restaurants closed as the rioters, many moving around in cars for hit-and-run raids, set cars and buildings afire.

Hubert Seeks Top Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey announced today he will seek the Democratic nomination for president.

He made his announcement with words of praise for President Johnson and a declaration that "without unity we shall begin to doubt not only ourselves but our goals and ideals."

The announcement of candidacy which Humphrey had foretold with comments during what already had amounted to campaign travels was prepared for a luncheon attended by more than 1,200 supporters.

Humphrey told them: "I shall continue to fulfill to the best of my abilities the duties of my office. I shall, as the president has, observe the absolute priority of peace over politics.

"For 1968 is not the year or frenzied inflammatory rhetoric, or for finding scapegoats for our problems. It is the year for common sense.

"I will resist the temptation to deceive either the people or myself."

Humphrey made no direct reference to the other two announced Democratic candidates to succeed Johnson, who is not running.

His candidacy pits him against Senators Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Eugene J. McCarthy, a fellow Minnesotan. He is too late, however, to enter any of the primaries against them.

●

A report from Washington Friday by a leading British commentator that the president's health is failing and that he may quit the presidency before the convention — thus catapulting Humphrey directly into the job — was dismissed as absurd by a White House spokesman.

Without specifying what he thinks the president's ailment is, Henry Fairlie of The Sunday Express said it is serious enough that many politicians close to Johnson think he "is capable of the final act of abdication this summer."

Fairlie said this would make Humphrey, as an incumbent president of a few weeks, a shoo-in to be nominated at the convention. And, he noted, it would pretty well stop Kennedy, Johnson's political enemy.

White House press secretary George Christian's comment on the Fairlie dispatch was: "Of course it's nonsense."

The president announced March 31 he will not run again, but made clear in remarks Thursday night he will not be a bystander in the campaign.

Johnson's promise to vigorously oppose "any would-be divisive force" was widely interpreted as primarily directed at Kennedy and McCarthy critics of the way he has handled the Vietnam war and other problems.

Humphrey, 56, is regarded as a strong prospect to win the nomination, a prize he saw vanish in 1960 after suffering defeats in primary elections at the hands of John F. Kennedy.

Organized labor and business leaders are giving him help and he has strong support of Democrats in the South who had expected to back Johnson for renomination until the president bowed out.

Fishermen Capture Seven Killer Whales

PENDER HARBOUR (CP) — Four commercial fishermen said today they have captured seven killer whales at this coastal community 50 miles northwest of Vancouver.

The fishermen said they used nets to enclose the mammals in an area in nearby Garden Bay and are patrolling the nets to keep the whales boxed in.

The fishermen, Cecil Reid, his son Cecil Jr., Bill Cameron and Bert Gooldrup, said they are looking for offers from aquariums or other groups who want to purchase one or more of the whales.

They said four of the whales are average size, one is large and the other two are small ones.

The men captured a whale in the same area in February and sold it to the Vancouver public aquarium for $5,000.

80-Mile-an-Hour Chase After Bandits

STORE MANAGER WINS GUN DUEL

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A 25-year-old supermarket manager became enraged when five bandits held up the market while his mother was on duty as a clerk. The manager, Guy McHarty, took three helpers with him and chased the getaway car in a running gun battle Friday that ended with the capture of four men.

The manager's mother was held captive while the men rifled cash registers at the store but was left behind uninjured when the men fled with $1,113 in loot.

McHarty fired a carbine at the getaway car for five miles during the 80-mile-an-hour chase until he plugged one tire forcing the bandits to stop.

One of McHarty's helpers was wounded in the groin when one of the five bandits fired at his pursuers from under the getaway car.

Three of the men surrendered and lay face down, hands behind their heads on the busy roadside, under the gun held by McHarty until police arrived.

A fourth man, whom police said was wounded by McHarty during the chase, was found an hour later during a search by a 100-man posse. The fifth man escaped.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

"It's always been done this way, but is it fair?"

That was the punch line when a reader phoned to criticize the present system of hiring of enumerators for the federal election.

She said, and we've confirmed, that officials of the Liberal and Conservative parties are now compiling lists of persons available for this house-to-house name-collecting canvass which starts May 6. They give the names to the returning officers.

There is no advertising for the jobs which will pay each chosen applicant $32 plus 10 cents per name.

The system could rule out persons not personally known to the two political parties and that could be unfair to the large number of voters in the NDP and Social Credit camps as well as the larger number who might profess no party connections.

Our caller suggested a better scheme would be to turn the job over to Manpower and the award of these 1164 jobs (including 388 deputy returning officers) to people who need work who can pass a simple aptitude test.

It's about time the provincial government did something to ease the embarrassment of people in the 20s who legally use local drinking spots.

A group of seven young married folk, voters and taxpayers and free citizens of Canada, report they were rudely challenged by waiters in three hotels in one night recently. In each case, rather than dig out documentary proof of age, with all the other patrons snickering, they moved on.

Nobody blames a waiter for being cautious if he thinks the customer may be a minor. That's as it should be. But there's an easier solution — a system that works in other places.

In Washington state for instance, when a youth reaches legal age for drinking he takes his picture to a government office and makes application for an identification card. Not transferable and it's sealed in plastic. It's small and easily displayed on a table when the patron is ordering. No fuss. No muss, and it could be done here.

Our Ask The Times editor recently listed the disposition of our naval vessels — 22 ships on the east coast and 12 ships on the west coast. But what about our north coast? Do ships of the Canadian Forces ever visit Hudson's Bay ports or check to see whether any missile-armed subs are prowling James Bay? CFB Esquimalt question-and-answers men say international detection in the north is conducted by radar lines and air examination. But isn't it strange to think that our ships regularly visit Europe and Asia but never yet have cruised that vast ocean where salt water washes on Manitoba and Ontario? Or are we wrong?

Apparently there is an opportunity for refrigerator salesmen in the Arctic. According to The Sentinel, the armed services magazine, ice boxes are essential to those serving on the DEW line. In winter, lettuce left outside would be frozen solid in minutes. The second it comes off the airplane it's rushed into a walk-in refrigerator to keep it in edible condition.

which had been set ablaze for the third time within 48 hours.

The offices of the government's Transport Control Board were extensively damaged. The estimate of damage for two nights climbed to $250,000.

ATTACK POLICEMAN

A five-hour wave of looting and destruction the previous night began, officials said, when a small gang attacked a lone patrolman trying to control a crowd outside a charity fair. They said they believed Thursday night's violence was spontaneous and did not result from race or politics.

But Friday night, Dr. Stanley Ratteray, UBP chairman, said he had heard statements that "it's going to get real hot this summer and it's going to be PLP heat."

At a PLP meeting, Mansfield Brock claimed that the Bermuda police force deliberately was maintained 70-per-cent white as a replacement for the British Army. The police recently announced an official policy of recruiting Negroes to balance the force's racial makeup.

The Bermuda Democratic party, newest of the island's three parties, said Friday night: "We feel that, influenced from outside, tactics have been used by a group of high pitched emotionally irresponsible people who seem to have dedicated themselves to the destruction of the community."

. . . LOTTERY

In Toronto, both Prof. Desmond Morton of Osgoode Hall Law School and John J. Robinette, a lawyer and acknowledged expert on newspaper law, have termed the Drapeau plan illegal.

Mr. Robinette, in an opinion written at the request of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, says:

"Under section 179 of the Criminal Code everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment of two years who makes, prints, advertises or publishes any proposal, scheme or plan for disposing in any way of any property by any mode of chance whatsoever."

REJECT ADS

A CDNPA spokesman in Toronto said a number of daily newspapers had rejected advertisements for the Montreal plan. One or two had said they would publish the ads, running almost half-page size and containing an application form for those wishing to participate.

Mr. Robinette in his opinion noted that the 151 monthly draw winners would be required to answer a question based on facts about Montreal printed on the reverse side of each tax receipt.

"The sole question here is whether the requirements that a winner answer the questions introduces any such element of skill that it could be said that the disposal of the prize money is not based on chance alone."

"There are decisions which hold that the selection of contestants by chance in order to entitle them to enter a real contest of skill does not make the scheme illegal. But the basic question is—is there a real element of skill involved or is the so-called requirement of skill a pure sham? In my opinion in the Montreal scheme it is a pure sham. . . ."

"MY FIGURE will look much better if I stand beside it," former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh tells gallery director James Borcoman as they they survey iron sculpture of a nude at international exhibition in Ottawa. (CP Wirephoto)

Judy Displays Earthy Humor

OTTAWA (CP) — All it takes is Judy LaMarsh to cut the ice at those usually ultra-polite National Gallery openings.

In what may have been her last appearance on the Ottawa scene as state secretary, she opened the mammoth International Sculpture of the Sixties exhibition.

Wearing a gold lame coat and dress with matching shoes and iridescent stockings, she displayed her almost legendary candid comment and down-to-earth humor.

Gallery director, Miss Jean Sutherland Boggs said after a brief introduction in French:

"It is very hard to say even in English how much Miss LaMarsh has meant to the arts in Canada and to the National Gallery."

Stepping up to the microphone, Miss LaMarsh said, "I don't really feel anyone should introduce me with nostalgia—I'm not dead."

Her closing remarks were a bit of advice for Miss Boggs. If the attractive director wanted a bigger budget for the gallery she should "spend every afternoon on Parliament Hill and dash for a kiss here and there."

After a warm round of applause from about 60 persons, Miss LaMarsh was shown around the exhibition by James Borcoman, director of education for the gallery.

Consisting of 100 works by 80 sculptors from 20 nations, International Sculpture of the Sixties, was arranged by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York. The fifth Guggenheim International and the first to deal exclusively with sculpture, the exhibition started its Canadian tour at the Art Gallery of Ontario in Toronto and will go to the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts after a six-week Ottawa stay.

Quebec Plans Pilot Mission On Education

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec would like to participate in all international French-speaking conferences, Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said here today.

The minister, who was talking to reporters at the end of the conference of French-speaking education ministers here, added:

"We would like to attend the next session of this conference which will take place in Kinshasa (The Congo) next January."

Cardinal, who refused to answer in English questions put to him in that language by Canadian journalists, said Quebec would co-operate in the education field with African nations by sending a pilot mission of educational experts to the interested countries to see how best aid could be given.

MISSIONS WELCOMED

Equally, he said, Quebec would welcome to Canada a mission from those countries.

Cardinal underlined that there was no competition between the external aid given by the federal government and the kind of co-operation envisaged in the educational field between Quebec and the French-speaking nations.

Asked to define his status at the educational conference, Cardinal said: "I participated as a full member, but being new to the conference I rather acted as an overseer."

Former City Man To Show Paintings At Oak Bay Hotel

Paintings by a former Victorian, Ronald Jackson will be shown at Oak Bay Beach Hotel, May 2 and 3, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Mr. Jackson attended University School in Victoria and after he left the city pursued his art education at London's Slade School, the Grand Chaumiere, Paris and Otis Art Institute in Los Angeles.

He received the Duveen Award for marine painting in London and has been commissioned to paint for the governments of the United Kingdom, Canada and British Columbia.

His exhibitions have shown from Venice to Hong Kong and Chicago to Vancouver.

His preferences in subject matter are for the waterfront, the interior of B.C. and the waterfowl of Canada.

Man Drew UIC Money While Working

Thomas Dawe, address unavailable, was fined $50 in central court Friday for two offences under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Court was told he received $55 in undeserved benefits. He was earning money at the time he made his claims.

NRC Grants to Uvic Reach $317,120

National Research Council grants to the University of Victoria for 1968-9 have reached $317,120, a 20 per cent increase over last year.

Members of the university's chemistry department have received $97,130, of which $30,000 will go to the cost of a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer.

Awards to the physics department totalling $54,101 will be applied to a wide range of projects including the recently announced nuclear accelerator for west coast universities.

Further grants totalling $59,320 go to the maths department and $39,320 of this will be used to develop the university's computing centre.

Grants totalling $106,660 to Uvic biologists were previously announced by the NRC.

Frants to the department of physics from other agencies include $25,800 from the Defence Research Board, $5,302 from the Medical Research Council, $10,000 from the U.S. Naval Research Board and $96,000 from the Atomic Energy Control Board.

Chemists received $4,000 from the Department of Forestry and $10,000 from the Defence Research Board.

Race Protests 'Reminiscent Of Germany'

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's hottest political weeks since the 1930s ended today with an unlikely sight of two Labor government officials severaly criticizing striking dock workers for their racist stand against immigration.

David Ennals, government official responsible for immigration control, said:

"The demonstrations of irrational racial prejudice are reminiscent of the early days of the growth of anti-Semitism in Germany."

Ennals was hitting out in a speech Friday night at 4,000 dockers who walked out in London's port in support of a total ban on colored-immigration.

Some of the dockers staged a protest march on Parliament as they and other workers had done earlier in the week.

LEAVES THE SCENE

The man at the centre of the row—right-wing Conservative MP Enoch Powell—flew off to Montreal to attend the Bilderberg Conference at Mont Tremblant, Que., leaving Britain still in uproar from his week-old racist speech that started it all.

Ennals asked: "Who would have believed a week ago that we would see large groups of workers striking in support of an extreme right-wing figure?

"Mr. Powell took the lid off and we have seen what came out. Nothing will be quite the same again."

Ennals' outburst is likely to lead to a repetition of heated exchanges in the House of Commons Monday.

In another bitter Labor attack, Overseas Minister Reginald Prentice said he was "shocked and disgusted" by the dockers' protests over immigration.

'TURN IN GRAVES'

"The pioneers of trade unionism in London's dockland must have been turning in their graves this week," he said.

Conservative Leader Edward Heath defended his action in sacking Powell from the Tory "shadow" cabinet over the speech and blamed racial agitators for the "We back Powell" strikes.

The London borough of Ealing revealed in a report that its schools were full up and it could take no more immigrant children.

It urged the government to discourage any further immigrants moving into the area.

Bells to Honor Queen Juliana

The Sunday program of the provincial carillon will honor the birthday of Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.

Herman Bergink, provincial carilloneer, said today he has chosen a selection of about seven compositions, most of them of Dutch origin, for the weekly program.

The recital will begin at 3 p.m. at the carillon, situated just east of the Legislature Buildings, and will last about 40 minutes.

Queen Juliana's birthday is April 30.

GHFORGHIU-DEJ

Ex-Strongman In Disgrace

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romania's late strongman, Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, entered the realm of Communist "non-persons" Friday, denounced by the Communist party he ruled for a decade, until his death in 1965.

A commission of the Romanian party's central committee implicated Gheorghiu-Dej in the trial and execution of a Communist official, Lucretiu Patrascanu, in 1954, and said he held direct responsibility in the slaying in 1946 of Stefan Foris, the wartime secretary-general of the Romanian party.

This denunciation of a hero, lionized in school books and statuary, gives indication of the start of a liberalization process in Romania, unorthodox in foreign policy, but tightly regimented along Soviet lines at home.

GORDON NOT SEEKING RE-ELECTION

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Gordon, former Privy council president and Liberal MP for Toronto Davenport, said today he will not run in the June 25 federal election.

Lex Thomson, president of the riding association, said the 62-year-old former finance minister telephoned his decision from Portugal where he is vacationing.

Mr. Gordon, the foremost Liberal proponent of economic independence for Canada, resigned from the cabinet March 11.

Mr. Gordon is credited with playing a major role in the comeback of the Liberal party following the Conservative landslide in 1958. His organization efforts were particularly evident in Ontario ridings.

Camp Undecided On Election Bid

MONTREAL (CP) — Dalton Camp, Progressive Conservative party president, said Friday he has not yet decided whether to run in the June 25 federal election, specifically the newly-created Toronto riding of Don Valley.

Speaking at a press conference after completing a five-day "total immersion" course in French, he said he would be in Europe for the "first couple of weeks" of the election campaign.

He denied that there has been any falling out with party leader Robert Stanfield. The trip to Europe was "strictly a personal matter" and had been planned for many months.

Mr. Camp said the election campaign would be run by the party's national campaign chairman, Eddie Goodman, in his absence.

"The election isn't a first priority with me now," he said. Mr. Camp said he was to drive to Ottawa to meet with Mr. Stanfield during the weekend. The departure date for his trip to Europe had not yet been decided.

Turning to Canadian foreign policy, Mr. Camp said there was no doubt in his mind that his views are more radical than those of a majority of Conservative party members. He favors withdrawal from NATO and NORAD.

DAYS OF ZIP, VAROOM OVER FOR TRUDEAU?

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau is unlikely to do any more driving for himself—in his fast blue Mercedes convertible, or any other car—as long as he is prime minister.

An aide said Friday traditionally prime ministers don't do their own driving and Mr. Trudeau plans to stick to this tradition.

The basis for the tradition is that it would be highly embarrassing for a prime miniter to become involved in an accident.

Down to Cases

THE GENERAL ELECTION campaign which will very soon be working up a full head of steam should prove to be one which will rouse the interest of a much larger number of Canadians than usual and help to remedy the indecisiveness which marred the last few contests. The contrasts between the two main contenders, Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield, are such as to attract partisans and banish neutrality. Most recent Liberal-Conservative jousts have not provided such an apparent choice in basic style and philosophy.

Under the pressure of the campaign the dissimilarities undoubtedly will become intensified and exaggerated. This may be acceptable to a point, in order to polarize and activate the country's opinions. But carried to excess it could result in putting the campaign on a basis of personalities—and the last thing Canada needs today is a personal popularity contest in its politics.

For this reason, the party leaders should hasten to present a clear statement of their stands on the various major issues confronting us today, so that problems and their proposed solutions will dominate the campaign, with personalities relegated to a supporting role. The issues are vital enough, as any adult Canadian can testify.

The economic situation of the country demands carefully planned policies if inflation, the balance of payments and national productivity are to be solved. Neither the problems nor the remedies can be entirely internal, of course, but much can be done to alleviate extremes. On these topics the candidates so far have dealt only in generalities. But only specifics will get results.

Our foreign policies in defence, in international commitments, in trade and in assistance to the needy appear ready for new formulation, and here again the voters will want to be given clear and workable proposals for comparison and choice. The problems of domestic racial co-operation, of the strains between federal and provincial governments, of language, of welfare programs including medicare, of employment, of the nation's control of its own economy and production—these are matters on which platform speakers should not be allowed to waffle.

As national and international affairs increase in complexity, the need for understandable statements of policy becomes greater if the public is to maintain an interest in events, to say nothing of making decisions on them. This is a responsibility of the party leaders and they should measure up to it as quickly as possible. It is particularly essential in view of the unusual confrontation of two untried and relatively unknown aspirants to the nation's most important office — able men but without federal records to which they can point. The hoopla was for the nominating conventions. From now until election day it should be a matter of facts and figures.

Easier Money, Tighter Belts

UNDER THE RULES DETAILed in the report released by the International Monetary Fund for the creation of Special Drawing Rights to add to the world's monetary reserves it is made clear that the balance of payments deficits of Britain and the United States, particularly the latter, are of major importance. In effect, as Mr. Paul-Pierre Schweitzer, managing director of the IMF, said last week, if the United States and Britain are still running heavy deficits by the time IMF members ratify the new plan, it is unlikely to be put into effect.

The timetable for ratification calls for governors of the IMF to confirm the proposal by the end of next month by a simple majority, which is expected to be an easy procedure. Then 60 per cent of the 107 IMF countries, having at least 80 per cent of the voting power based on currency quotas, must approve the idea — in most cases through parliamentary action. Next countries with at least 75 per cent of the voting power must give assurances that they will participate and the SDR plan can then be activated at any time that 85 per cent of the voting power decides.

Despite the opposition of France and the coolness of several other member nations, ratification is expected to be an orderly, if time-consuming process. Activation of the SDRs could be another matter since the European Common Market bloc has a virtual veto on this, and there isn't much doubt that it would be exercised if there were the slightest hint that the United States was seeking to use the new drawing rights as a cover for its payments deficit.

In effect, if the IMF nations are to get away from gold as an important basis for settlement of international accounts, a marked improvement in the American payments position during the next six months to a year would seem to be essential. Mr. Schweitzer, asked to comment on last week's warning by Mr. William Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, that the United States was in the worst financial crisis since 1929, declined a direct answer. But he did say that the SDR system was perfectly workable and another gold crisis could be avoided if the United States took adequate belt-tightening measures. "If that does not take place," he added, "then it's anybody's guess."

Too Dangerous to Be Tools

HARD-HEADED POLITICAL considerations explain the denial by the outlawed West German Communist Party that it instigated the demonstrations by violent young leftists whose Easter rioting was touched off by the attempted assassination of Rudi Dutschke. Dutschke is the leader of the radical left-wing Socialist Students Federation — an organization which, by conventional reasoning, might well be considered an accessible tool for the West German Communists. But the group constitutes a tool the Communists decline to pick up.

The outlawed Communist Party, which takes its direction from Walter Ulbricht's government in East Germany, is engaged in a campaign of respectability, hoping for reinstatement as a legal political entity. The objective is an acceptable status for the party when the parliamentary elections occur in 1969.

Hopes for rehabilitation are stimulated by the belief that the growth of the right-wing National Democratic Party, sometimes called the neo-Nazis, will encourage the Bonn authorities to look more favorably on the West German Communist Party as a counter-agent to the growing strength on the right. This is viewed as a possibility only if the Communists avoid breaking the law, as they would by participating in riots of the type seen last Easter.

What future use may be made of the Marx-quoting students remains to be seen. Right now, however, they appear to be about as valuable to the Communists as would burglar's tools in the possession of suspects caught at night.

Misinformed

May I add to my letter printed in the Wednesday evening edition of your paper regarding the Norma Macdonald piano by stating that I find I have been misinformed as to its availability?

I had always been led to believe that this particular piano would be on loan to any individual artist or musical organization in the comminity whenever it might be requested. However, this is not the case. The occasion and the standard of the performer must warrant its use, and if I have trodden on the toes of those who are concerned with its welfare, then I am truly sorry.—Grace Timp

Vimy Night

It was not easy to picture the bald, grey and white-haired old men in the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium on Blanshard Street on the night of April 24 as the virile, vigorous young men who had stormed Vimy Ridge that Easter Monday fifty-one years ago. It has been truly said that was the day when Canada ceased to be a colony and became a nation.

We sang the old songs, such as "Old soldiers never die," and, no less gaily, "Young soldiers wish they would!" And amongst the many songs we sang was "Keep your head down, Fritzie boy!" a song that demonstrated the lack of bitterness on both sides of No Man's Land in the terrible war.

It was an evening that brought back much of the grand comradeship we had known in the trenches and in camps behind the line and we relived those days so mixed with sadness and happiness.—Videns

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Mr. Douglas Performs An Exercise in NDP Old-Lining

MR. DOUGLAS called a press conference on Wednesday to have a go at the "old line parties". For the benefit of new voters, it should perhaps be explained that these are the Liberals and the Conservatives. In matters of vocabulary Mr. Douglas tends to be right of centre, jealously conserving old phrases from the storied and dusty past. It was only with difficulty that he emancipated himself from the term "Socialism" although of late he has been doing well in this regard and on Wednesday, with Mr. David Lewis at his side, he got through his conference without a single relapse.

Western

The trouble with this linguistic conservatism is that people have come to associate the "old line" parties with government; they associate the NDP, if they are well-disposed, with good works. Without realizing it, Mr. Douglas persists in devaluing his own political currency. Is this really necessary?

It is now 35 years since the NDP, in its original CCF incarnation, burst on the Canadian scene. This is a sizeable fraction of anyone's life. Indeed, if one may trust the parliamentary guide, at the time of the Regina Manifesto, Mr. Schreyer, member in the last parliament for Springfield, had not even been born. How long must a party function before it ceases to be a johnny-come-lately and qualifies as "old-line?"

Without doubt the NDP, like other parties, will have its share of youthful candidates in this election. It would be inaccurate, however, to describe it as a party in the first bloom of youth. One has only to consider the stately and venerable figures who surrounded Mr. Douglas in the last House. Among them were Mr. Stanley Knowles, who has been expounding Beauchesne since 1942; and Mr. Colin Cameron, who has mellowed (slightly) since he became the party's spokesman on national and international finance. There was also Mr. Herbert Herridge, a gentleman of even more diversified interests who has now retired after 23 years in parliament, to practice revolutionary Socialism on his mountain estate.

Mr. Douglas, in my opinion, would be far better advised to present his group as a good, solid, old line establishment party with a new line for the election. But what is the new line to be?

If this was unclear before the press conference, it is even murkier now. Mr. Douglas talked in rather general and familiar terms about economic problems, surprising no one by announcing that the times call for the implementation of very major new programs and deploring Mr. Trudeau's attitude of opposition to new universal measures. But he did startle his audience by a somewhat confused discussion of constitutional reform which seemed to hark back strongly to the earlier views of the CCF.

The matter arose when Mr. Douglas was asked for comment on remarks of Mr. Laurier Lapierre (who seems to be causing as much commotion within the party as Mr. Herridge did on his good days — and almost any day was a good day for that elder Socialist statesman). In urging particular status for Quebec, Mr. Lapierre, according to reports, claimed a right for the province to enter into treaties and to have special powers in respect to control of immigration, social welfare, cultural development and research.

Mr. Douglas, treating the reports with reserve, explained that he had in mind not treaties but such arrangements respecting immigration as Mr. Drew made when he was premier of Ontario. This is orthodox enough since those arrangements were within the context of federal policy.

As Mr. Douglas warmed to his subject, however, it developed that he regarded special status as a means of concentrating more powers in the central government. The reallocation of powers he has in mind would apparently preserve the status quo in Quebec while permitting Ottawa to draw from other provinces sufficient authority to function effectively in such fields as manpower training, housing and the marketing of farm products. Mr. Lewis interjected a sombre warning that Mr. Trudeau's policies, characterized in the NDP view by rigidity and immobility, might lead to the most serious decentralization of powers that Canada has ever known.

Mr. Douglas talked also about transfers of money, bearing in mind the onerous responsibilities now carried by the provinces. But the problem here is not primarily constitutional since huge transfers have already been effected without constitutional change.

It is seriously to be doubted that this is what the ardent young Quebec constitutional reformers have in mind. Nor is it a new line. Mr. Douglas dwelt approvingly on the arrangements worked out in respect to the Canada and Quebec pension plans. These represented Liberal innovation. As for the general argument about concentrating more powers in Ottawa, whatever its merit, it has a ring of familiarity. It is the old line that Mr. Douglas used to develop in the old days when, as premier of Saskatchewan, he used to descend periodically upon Ottawa.

Perhaps the true message to be drawn from the Douglas press conference is that the third of our old line parties is working its way back to the old stand.

Demonstrating for Fun

Montreal Gazette

There is considerable suspicion that, when the weather is right, demonstration marches exert a great appeal on the younger elements of the population. It isn't necessary to be deeply interested in the cause, marching and singing and shouting slogans are enjoyable group activities for themselves.

A couple of years ago, students marching on the United States Consulate here were asked their reasons for joining the parade. It turned out that a great many of them didn't know what the march was about. It was just the fun thing to do.

In London at Easter several hundred demonstrators broke away from the annual ban-the-bomb peace march from Aldermaston and marched on the German Embassy, where they burned a swastika flag, in sympathy with student demonstrators in Germany.

The group at the embassy was led by Tariq Ali, head of the Vietnam Solidarity Campaign, who organized a big demonstration against the U.S. Embassy last month.

Tariq Ali must find it hard to keep his mind on his studies when the weather is good.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

The Softening Attitude Toward Mainland China

A QUIET revolution has taken place in attitudes toward Red China. In place of, or in addition to, earlier fear and hostility toward the Yellow Dragon, there is now a widespread desire for much more extensive contact with it. The popular basis for the old "policy of boycott," (or containment via isolation) has thus eroded — so seriously that, although nothing has as yet emerged to take its place, it is inevitable that something new will have to be devised.

Frye

Evidence of this transformation is visible in many parts of the world, but nowhere more strikingly than in the United States, where the policy of boycott was devised.

It is, of course, not a sudden development. It has been under way, both in the United States and elsewhere, for some years.

Two things now have happened, however, which — like flashes of lightning on a dark night — illuminate the change and show how surprisingly extensive it has been.

- In New York, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, whose interest in the presidency made him especially sensitive to popular currents, urged this past week the building of peaceful "bridges' to "mainland" China.

It is interesting that Humphrey did not speak of "Communist" or "Red" China but "mainland" China. He even referred to its capital as "Peking" which is not the way the Nationalist Chinese like the word to be spelled.

- In Washington, former Vice President Richard Nixon, who is not wholly uninterested in pleasing voters, said that while, for the time being, he would maintain a policy of nonrecognition, he would wish to keep open for the future the option of diplomatic recognition and admission to the UN.

Such statements would have been political death for a presidential aspirant all through the 1950s, and would have been considered venturesome and controversial as late as 1964.

Now, they cause hardly a ripple. Not only is it politically possible to advocate rapprochement with Peking, it is actually advantageous. The "policy of boycott" has lost its popular base.

The implications of this fact are many. Experts on the Soviet Union say one of the Kremlin's great haunting fears is that the United States and China will one day combine forces against her.

Concern about such a long-range possibility is said to impel some of the gestures of reconciliation that have been forthcoming from Moscow in recent years — the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, the test ban and the "parallelism" of policy in the Kashmir crisis, for example.

If so, Moscow is looking a long way down the road. But the idea no longer seems quite as ludicrous as it once did.

In the UN, the United States, nudged by Canada and Italy, has been flirting with a two-Chinas (or one China and one Formosa) policy.

Since outright advocacy by Washington might kill the idea, the United States adopted a posture of apparent reluctance. But it is a safe conjecture that retiring American delegate Arthur J. Goldberg would be happy to have his arm twisted.

In Japan, both the opposition Socialists and elements in the ruling pro-western Liberal-Democratic Party are pressing to establish diplomatic relations with Peking.

They argue that it would be humiliating to wait until after the United States has done so, and then simply follow suit. Foreign Minister Takeo Miki promises that once an improvement in Sino-Japanese relations occurs, Japan will be able to serve as a "bridge" between China and the United States.

The really fanatic advocates of a "policy of boycott" against Red China are now the Soviet Union and its closest camp followers. Moscow has become, as it were, world headquarters for the policies of the Nationalist China lobby.

Many Communist countries which have had close ties with Red China are easing or breaking them. North Viet Nam and North Korea are two which are especially significant because they are geographically adjacent to the once-terrifying Dragon.

As the noncommunist world drifts toward an effort at rapprochement, therefore, the communist world drifts away.

China says little. Bridges require pilings at both ends, and she has made no move to drive any. Perhaps she is too preoccupied with internal upheaval to care seriously about the outside world.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

For a day-long trip go into the Robertson River bottom, leading off from the Hillcrest Lumber Co.

Here can be found many clumps of the vine leaf maple, which is rather sparse on Vancouver Island.

Close by there are a number of western larch trees that no doubt have been introduced. They are now putting forth their needles. Their pale yellowish-green make them easy to identify.

Look at some of the old stumps and logs lying on the ground and see how they are twisted in a spiral. All of them have the twist counter clock-wise. Some of the stumps are 10 to 12 feet in width.

Close by there is a peat bog where many fascinating flowers can be found. There the Labrador tea and the sweet gale grow.

This area was logged many years ago and it is now coming back. It is a beautiful, green valley. The old stumps and desolation have vanished, proving that, given time, the forest will re-seed itself.

Look high up on the hills and you will see where trees are being harvested. Where logging has taken place bald unsightly scars are evident and the truck roads wind around the mountain sides like a giant snake.

If care and wise planning are used this will in time once again be a green paradise.

Look high on the upper ridges and the snow makes a sharp contrast to the forest green. If you look closely you can see that there is an almost straight line where the snow ends. This would be due to the warm air from the river and valley floor which melts the snow as it falls and in so doing creates a different environment shown in the growth of the trees on the hill-tops and those of the valley floor.

As you drive along the Cowichan Valley you will see the elderberry in bloom.

Make a detour down to Skutz Falls. There the pink erythroniums are in bloom, also the coltsfoot with its purplish white, loosely-clustered head that give off a sweet scent. See how the underside of the leaf is whitish and Woolly.

FIRST EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

A Conversation With Trudeau

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—The Pierre Elliott Trudeau who greeted me as I stepped into his untidy office in the centre block of the Parliament Buildings, was not the swinging politician who kisses pretty girls and shrugs so eloquently under the shimmer of television lights. This was a Prime Minister, Canada's fifteenth, a serious philosopher-stateman who answered my questions in many modes expressing many moods that varied between the dreamy and the deft.

An endless line of favor-seekers waited outside, and he was showing the strain. His shoulders hunched with exhaustion, the laugh lines of his face seemed more like the etchings of fatigue.

The prime ministerial office he occupies has yet to acquire his character. Its bookshelves are empty, the only picture on the wall is a faded reproduction of Queen Elizabeth. He kept fidgetting with six yellow pencils, winding his fingers around them in various combinations. As we talked, he grew more intense, and gayer. Not wittier, just gayer. There is a difference: wit is a device; gaiety, an impulse.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau

Our conversation ranged over the whole spectrum of issues on which the current election is being fought. The first part of the transcript is reproduced below; the second part will be published on Monday. A similar, two-part interview with Conservative leader Robert Stanfield will be published next week.

Newman: You've called an election without giving the country an opportunity to assess what kind of prime minister you will make. How much of a risk do you think the voters are taking by casting their ballots to give you a five-year mandate to govern Canada?

Newman

Trudeau: Of course this question was very much in my mind and I think my decision was influenced by the realization that the country will be able to make that assessment just as well by the campaign, by seeing the ideas we are going to put forward, the platform, the performance of the various candidates of the various parties. The electorate, the people, will be able to make that assessment just as easily that way as they would have been able to make it in the kind of Parliament that we've had in the past few years.

It has not been a happy Parliament. It has produced a lot and it's to the credit of the men who composed it, but I think that as time went on and as the Conservatives and the NDP had the taste of blood last February and myself being a new person and the kind of filibuster of the NDP in the last days before the adjournment, all these were indicative to me that perhaps it would have been a good show, perhaps I would have had a great deal of fun out of the rough and tumble of it, but I don't think, in fairness, that this kind of Parliament would have been the right kind of show or battle to permit the people to make a fair assessment.

They can't assess the possibility of one party or of another making great progress, shall we say, in reforming the rules of Parliament or in promoting liberalization of certain laws and promoting a "just society" if all they are given to assess is endless filibusters as to whether we should adopt the rules now or later, and so on.

I felt by looking at the order paper that there was just as great a chance to explain the vital points that are on this order paper to the people by talking to them directly as doing it in this kind of Parliament. I'm not underestimating the importance of representative democracy. I'm just saying this particular session, this particular Parliament, this particular time of our representative democracy to me had worn itself out.

And you know all the other reasons I gave—two new leaders and the uncertainty of whether there would be an election or not and the effect of this on the economy and on the people's minds themselves and the temper of the opposition.

●

Newman: All your life you've been a political critic. Is it not difficult, now, to labor on the other side of the barrier? Will you recognize criticism as being constructive?

Trudeau: Indeed I will and I make a plea to you to be as I know you will, constructively critical.

●

Newman: Alright then, what are the criteria going to be for your Senate appointments?

Trudeau: My idea on the Senate is one of basic reform and this is in the works so far as the federal government is concerned. We suggested at the federal-provincial conference in February that we wanted a new kind of Senate, playing a new kind of role which would solve a lot of the federal-provincial tensions now and reduce the necessity of constantly having in mind such things as regional representation and so on in other areas of government. So that is in the works and it has very high priority as all constitutional matters have.

I do not pretend that I can change the Senate federally without consulting the provinces. And although I will be pressing the provinces to help us change the Senate along the lines that I have mentioned, I wouldn't be puritanical enough to pretend I'm not going to consider the Senate as a continuing function of what it is doing now, the kind of people you appoint to it and so on.

●

Newman: Daniel Johnson told a friend of mine that your big problem in dealing with him is that you, like most Quebec intellectuals of your generation, have never been able to sufficiently differentiate between the Union Nationale of Maurice Duplessis and the present Quebec government. Is this a fair comment and if not, do you see any personal barrier between yourself and the Quebec premier that might jeopardize the revision of the constitution?

Trudeau: No, on the second part of the question there is no personal barrier and it has nothing to do with Premier Johnson being in the same party as Maurice Duplessis, nothing at all. Duplessis, to me, he's dead and gone and he is a figure of lasting importance in our political development, for good and for bad.

Johnson is a new deal, he's a new premier. His party has some of the characteristics of the older one but I'm not at all guided by any more links between these people. I look at Johnson's ideas, I look at his speeches, I see what he says on such things as equality and independence. I see the pressures that he is submitted to, which are completely different from those facing Duplessis. Johnson is under pressure from the separatists and from the Rene Levesques, which Duplessis never was.

Therefore, I appreciate that even in the best of situations Johnson has to realize that he has opposition on the side of independence. I can't despise him for having to acknowledge that attack might come from that side. I think that he is a realistic man, a politician who knows the importance of power relationships and is trying to deal with them.

I'm a federalist because I want to make sure that in the power relationships which Premier Johnson is assessing he feels that Ottawa is a power and that he shouldn't think that if he lets himself be pushed only by the separatists that he's not going to meet any opposition here.

●

Newsman: Robert Stanfield has said that he is anxious to solve the French-English problem in this country outside the context of partisan politics. Can this altruistic aim be accomplished—and how do you view your relations with the Conservative leader?

Trudeau: I really don't know. Now that I am leader of the Liberal party I hope to have many chances to sit down and discuss this with Mr. Stanfield. If we can agree on some solutions out of the context of partisan politics, I will be very happy. His party stands for federalism and so does mine but I'm not sure that it's exactly the same kind of federalism.

Perhaps the answer to this is in terms of the answer I gave earlier when I was talking about countervailing forces. Let me try and give you an example. If we can, for instance, during the election campaign, let the officials of the federal government and the officials of provincial governments continue the arrangements for the continuing conference on the constitution, I will very much welcome it because I don't think this continuing conference should be made the object of political debate. If, in order to do that, I can get Mr. Stanfield's approval I will be happy.

Newman: While the relationship between French and English in North America has been the major force in Canadian history, another important element has been the thrust westward, and in recent years the lagging economy of the Atlantic provinces has become a major problem. The Pearson government was too engrossed in dealing with the French-English confrontation to pay enough attention to these other elements of the Canadian political structure, and as a French Canadian prime minister you may be open to charges of being too concerned with the same issue. How do you propose to give your government a truly national outlook?

Trudeau: There are three things which menace Canadian unity now: The fear in a lot of French-Canadians that their cultural identity is being destroyed is only one of these. The consequence of that fear is special status, separatism and so on.

The second threat is if the underdevelopment of the Atlantic provinces is not corrected, not by charity or by subsidies but by helping them become areas of economic growth, then the unity of the country is almost as surely destroyed as it would be by the French-English confrontation.

Because in the same way as Quebeckers would say to Canada: — If we can't be at home in all of this country we will separate; Maritimers would eventually be led to say: If we can't share in the commonwealth of all of this country, what's the point of staying in it or at least staying in it in this form. Let's have a unitary state or let's have a very loose confederation or some kind of association with the United States.

Finally, at the other end of the country, because of the increased affluence and because of the geographic distance, there is a sense of alienation which has developed there. Ottawa is far away, we don't need it. We can become rich without them, we can govern ourselves, there is no contact at party levels or at the government levels with us. They are drifting away towards a centrifugal force which will destroy the country in a less dramatic way than the others choose but which can be just as sure.

That's one of the great aims of this campaign of our government, if we're returned, to solve these three problems and give them practically equal priority. Some of the ideas which are in the works are programs for the west to make Canada truly a Pacific country as well as an Atlantic one or as a north-south one; using the shores of British Columbia as an opening for all of Canada into a new world, much in the same sense as the St. Lawrence is an opening of Canada towards the Atlantic. Therefore, we will try to indicate that we are very conscious of this and the same thing for the Maritimes.

Newman: Under Mackenzie King the federal government didn't act until public opinion was solidified on a course of action. Under Lester Pearson the government barely managed to keep pace with the evolution of the public interest. You've indicated that the successful politician has to keep ahead of the public. How can this be done by a man confined to the loneliest office in the squarest city in the country?

Trudeau: Well, keep ahead but keep barely ahead. Never keep ahead so far that you are out of contact, out of touch. Just keep ahead but no further, keep ahead but not way ahead. On the penal law reforms or even on divorce, I didn't go as far as some people wanted because that would have put me way ahead, out of touch with the people. I feel that our business as a Liberal party is to be just ahead of them so that we can lead them on to new paths but not that far ahead that we lose them completely.

Newman: It's been said that the problem of parliamentary government in the late twentieth century involves preventing the legislative assembly from paralyzing the executive without destroying the democratic process. How can this best be achieved?

Trudeau: One of the things I was going to announce in Parliament Tuesday had we developed that alternative, was the answer to that. It starts out in these very terms—that the problem with parliamentary government as it is developed now is that the executive spends too much time in Parliament, and one of the first administrative reforms which I would have announced would be to indicate that I don't want ministers to be as tied down by Parliament as they had been in the past. I want ministers to spend more time in cabinet committees and in their departments, which will mean freeing them of certain duties in the House.

I will want to use Parliament more through the parliamentary committees, which will mean giving much greater responsibility to individual members of Parliament.

Anybody Else Nervous In the Olympics Club?

By ART STOTT

The first major event of the summer Olympics has ended this week with the composite team in the dark uniforms scoring a shutout against South Africa. The cheers of the anti-apartheid forces echo. The vehement protests of South Africa receive, and probably deserve, no better treatment than the bellyache of a second class prize fight manager yelling "We wuz robbed."

Stott

The pundits of the sports world have been delivering their analyses. They express sentiment ranging from "That's what they asked for; that's what they got," to the more erudite if convoluted reasoning of name writers arguing that the International Olympic Committee, reversing its earlier decision to admit South Africa to the Games in Mexico, "did the right thing for the wrong reasons."

The latter case concerns itself with reality. Where Avery Brundage, "Mr. Amateur" and "Mr. Olympics" to some, as well as chairman of the IOC, sought to stand by his ideal of Olympic sport—the argument goes—he ignored the fact that politics and nationalism cannot be separated from the facts of participation in the quadrennial athletic contests.

"South Africa does not play fair with its colored athletes, nor, for that matter with its colored people in any phase of life," runs the consensus—and, without knowing Africa, I believe that point is sound. "Therefore," say those who won their case in the voting this week, "South Africa has no right to take part in Olympic Games with other nations not so stigmatized."

★ ★ ★

I am personally opposed to the doctrine and practice of apartheid, but the conclusion of the thesis above leaves me a little nervous because I believe that people in tin houses shouldn't throw can-openers. Furthermore, I resent, though I appreciate the futility of the resentment, the intrusion of political pressure plays on an international scale into what was conceived idealistically as a meeting of amateur athletes from all nations for what some call the glory of sport.

As I understand the de Coubertin concept, the modern Olympics were to be a test of individual against individual in a striving for amateur excellence. Nations could take pride in the accomplishments of their sports heroes, but nationalism was not intended to be the guiding force in sending representatives to such meets.

We have seen that ideal tarnish. We have seen the definition of an amateur twisted like a pretzel. We have seen the unofficial creation of point scoring systems by which observers for one nation or another seek to rate their teams on an international ladder. We've seen the introduction of a multitude of sports never conceived by de Coubertin.

But, if my impression is correct, we have yet to see eligibility withdrawn from countries which may believe neither in God nor democracy.

The ugly creature of racism has been beaten over the head in the vote against South Africa by the Olympic committee, but to me it has been beaten over the head with the wrong weapon.

Where do we go from here?

★ ★ ★

In recent months we have read a great deal about the prospects of a boycott by American Negro stars against participation for the United States because the United States, in the understandable view of the boycott advocates, is not giving its colored people a fair deal. Should the United States be excluded from the Olympics on that basis?

We hear of Britain, whose national game is itself a synonym for fair play, raising barriers against colored peoples for what are claimed to be reasons of economic necessity. Should Britain be excluded?

In Canada we're constantly told by a minor fraction of the French-speaking population, that the majority is denying an ethnic part of its population a fair deal—and the case, with modifications, can be raised also by our Indians. Should we be excluded?

Should France, the home of de Coubertin, author of the modern Olympics, be expelled because of reported discrimination against the Basques and the people of Normandy?

Should some Communist countries be disbarred because they do not accept Western concepts of human rights?

I shed no tears over appropriate rebuffs to South Africa's racial policies, but I am sad when I think the Olympic ideal suffers violence. And to me it is uncomfortable to see men sit in judgment in a way suggestive of the Pharisee's prayer: "God I thank thee that I am not as other men are."

Quebec Now More Free Than English Canada

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

(Second of Two Articles)

QUEBEC — Brother Paul Desbiens, one of the men who set alight Quebec's Quiet Revolution, says he feels the province now enjoys a more open society than that of English Canada.

"I think that in Canada at large and in Quebec in particular we are the freest country in the world," Brother Desbiens told a reporter in looking back over events of the last eight years.

Quebec's radical educational changes had been surpassed, if anything, by changes in religious matters and, considered from an intellectual viewpoint, "we now are in a kind of liberal society".

"I think it is far more liberal than English Canada, though of course I cannot be sure and I have no wish to pose as an authority on everything."

Explosive invalid, obscure teacher, most famous rebel in Quebec, student exile and now an official of the Quebec education department, the brother has come full circle in the matter of names.

Born Jean Paul Desbiens, the son of grindingly poor but honored parents — "my favorite aristrocrats" — he was educated by the Marist Congregation, which he joined in boyhood, becoming Brother Pierre Jerome.

Own Name

Under the pseudonym Frere Untel, he was author of Les Insolences de Frere Untel (The Impertinences of Brother Anonymous), and finally emerged again as Brother Jean Paul Desbiens when the Roman Catholic Church decreed a return to family names for members of religious orders.

Brother Desbiens, 41, is already virtually a figure of Quebec folklore. Because each year in this fast-moving age can be counted as five, he says, it now is 40 years since in 1959-60 he wrote the 12 rebellious letters to Le Devoir that became the backbone of Les Insolences. He recalled:

"The letters became more and more general, more and more accusative, more and more radical, not necessarily in tone but more radical in the questioning of the whole French-Canadian system of education, cultural system and religious system. . . .

On Yellow

"I knew I was on the yellow light, not on the green, and very close to the red."

He wrote Les Insolences at killing speed, living on cheese and coffee, because publisher Jacques Hebert insisted on a Sept. 6 deadline — "the only day in the year when, in those times, people thought of education, because it was the school opening day."

"What a caricature," said Brother Desbiens.

But meanwhile protests went to Rome. The brother said he believes the protesters were churchmen, not politicians.

Anyway the brother was ordered by his Rome superiors to "shut my mouth"—but too late to stop publication of Les Insolences, which brought a new sensation and made Frere Untel a household name.

The sympathetic Cardinal Leger, then archbishop of Montreal, interviewed the brother and exchanged letters with him. He obtained permission for Brother Desbiens to explain his position on television.

Brother Desbiens, obedient, subsequently remained silent but again incurred the wrath of his Rome superiors by accepting a liberty award given by the Montreal magazines Cite Libre, with which Prime Minister Trudeau was then associated, and Liberte.

"It was the grain that tipped the glass," he smiled. "They saw it as a provocation."

The turbulent brother was banished to Rome to study theology in August, 1961, and was away three years, eventually winning his doctorate in philosophy in Switzerland.

Student Again

"I was not persecuted," he said. "But I was 34, a North American, I had a public life, and I was reduced in Rome to the position of a student of 18 or 19."

After one scholastic year, however, his request to go to university in Switzerland was granted. In all, the exile afforded the brother a knowledge of Europe which has been most useful.

Meanwhile the whole Quebec situation had changed and in April, 1964 he was invited, with the approval of his religious superiors, to join the newly-formed provincial education department.

He now is programs director for a new network of colleges of general and vocational training, designed to prepare students for the technological labor market or for further specialized university studies.

Resident at a Marist school, he wears black suit and tie but lives much like any other single official. His unusual position in itself is regarded as symbolic of the vast change that has taken place.

"I have had absolute liberty as far as my community is concerned," he said.

Brother Desbiens, who approaches all projects with ferocious vigor, was conducting a 12-way long-distance telephone conference when the reporter arrived.

Secretaries vanished for the day while he worked on.

There is little apparent trace of the six youthful years he spent in hospitals and sanatoria with tuberculosis—at a time when "to go to a sanatorium was to go to die."

"I was an iron man. I take regular weekly exercises to keep fit. I'm six-foot-something, I weigh 175 pounds and I burn up a lot of calories each day."

Voracious reading during the period of illness helped to give the scholar the background that fills his books with references to Tolstoy,

CARDINAL LEGER
. . . he was sympathetic

Gorki, Sartre, Peguy, Julian Huxley and many other authorities. He made a school-inspection trip to the Soviet Union and several European countries last fall.

Reluctant to be interviewed, he said he feared adding to "confusion" over the Quebec question but stressed he is no separatist. He has marshalled logic, satire and historical insight to demand a halt to violent tendencies in Quebec youth.

He counsels a "revolution of competence" for the French-Canadian takeover of industrial management of Quebec. He appears contemptuous of "intellectual" separatists.

"I am pretty well educated in the English sense of the word, but I'm not an intellectual," he said. "I'm radically common people."

CPA invites you to study these exciting and surprising facts about historic Mexico...

one of the world's great travel adventures

With the 1968 Olympic games focusing world attention on Mexico, it's a time to reflect on this great republic as a travel destination, one of the most rewarding of this century.

Mexico presents such a richly diverse pattern of history and living patterns that one marvels at its complexity. You may be surprised to learn that Mexico is larger than the countries of western Europe combined and that its population has soared to 40 million people. If you have only "border town" experiences, you may not know that Mexico City, the capital, and world's sixth largest city is a five day drive from Tijuana, and is actually in the same time zone and longitude as Winnipeg.

Mexico continues to be all things to all people.

Its archaeological zones reflect its beginnings centuries before the birth of Christ. Three hundred years of Spanish rule changed the physical face of the land, resulted in the development of a new country and the proud Mexican people. History and nature have combined to create a country at once graceful and fierce . . . poor and rugged and flamboyantly luxurious . . . with customs that are an endless fascination to Canadians. Add to this, Mexico's claim to some of the world's most glorious beaches; superb art treasures and striking modern architecture. Today, Mexico is rushing headlong towards future greatness, as more millions become educated and industry grows.

CPA's swift "EMPRESS" jets, with international in-flight service, fly non-stop from Canadian cities to Mexico City, making this charming country easy and economical to get to.

History

You walk on land in Mexico that nurtured magnificent Indian civilizations before the golden age of Greece. The temples and pyramids of Mayan cities are being unearthed each year at Yucatan. You see the endeavours of the splendid Aztecs who ruled Mexico in the 13th and 14th century. The Spanish conquest by Cortez in 1519 left its legacy of traditions and landmarks in dozens of beautiful colonial towns. In jewel-like Taxco, in Puebla, Guanajuato, San Miguel, the formal plazas and richly baroque cathedrals will delight you. You sense today, the same fierce spirit of independence that led to the revolt against Spain in 1810. And throughout Mexico, you see passionate reminders of the decades since, when Mexicans fought among themselves for the right to rule their country.

The People

Not Indian. Not Spanish. Mexican! You may meet people whose background reflects direct Spanish ties. You see many Indians from different regions. But the pride of the people of Mexico today is in the joy of being Mexican. You'll find them gentle, rather than hearty, full of humour, yet often serious. And you appreciate their innate artistry which enhances the most humble abode and brings pleasure to even the most fleeting personal contact.

Traditions and customs

Mexico is extremely devout. 90% Catholic. Yet, surprisingly, priests and nuns do not wear clerical clothes except on church grounds and in church buildings.

Amongst wealthy families, the duena or chaperone is still seen as young people gather.

It is the custom to dress up in Mexico City and dress down in places like Acapulco. To lunch from 2 to 3 and to dine at 10.

The language

How beautiful to hear the rhythm of the Spanish language each day of your holiday. Mexicans want tourists to be happy, so they are learning English. But you will find your welcome a little warmer when you try the simplest gestures of Spanish. It's easy — once you lose that Canadian reserve!

Art is everywhere

Mexico reflects its past in magnificent museums, treasures of archaeology, colonial and religious edifices. In the work of the great muralists, Rivera, O'Gorman, Orozco, the people have expressed their political views, their protests, sorrows, joys, pride in their racial origins and their high purpose in obtaining goals. Yet you may be as delighted with an arrangement of flower pots on a quiet patio, a stunning colonial grille or a brilliant costume on an Indian mother, as you are with the most exalted examples of art and architecture. That's the way Mexico is.

On "The Reforma"

Canadian is one of Mexico's friendliest languages. CPA's staff in Mexico City is right there to see that all goes well with you.

Food

Mexico caters to millions of tourists, so standards of cleanliness are high. You will enjoy superb red snapper, pescado blanco from Lake Patzcuaro and ceviche, a marinated seafood. Mexican cuisine, sometimes peppery, can be far more appealing than you imagine. And in the cosmopolitan Capital, you dine on a par with Paris, New York, Rome, in some of the world's great continental restaurants. Again the marvelous Mexican contrast; a delicious hot shrimp, served by a grinning beach boy can be as memorable as an evening of haute cuisine.

The weather

Weather in Mexico is determined by altitude. When it's very cold in Canada, visitors spend more time in the Tierra Caliente, where great beach resorts and never-ending sun are irresistible. Tierra Fria, the high plateau where Mexico City and many beautiful colonial towns are located is spring-like year 'round. Tierra Templada, between 3000 and 6000 feet provides a temperate climate for touring and relaxing.

Music

No other country is so full of music! The Mariachi, those happy troubadors, trumpeters and guitarists stroll wherever you go. The music of the flamenco is heard. As you go south, marimbas and the beat of South America take over. You will be serenaded constantly — and you'll love it!

The beaches

The golden-sugar sands of Acapulco made it the "Riviera of the Americas". On this great bay there are literally dozens of separate beaches, some quiet, some gay, some sheltered, some hot. And always, the heavenly warm water and constant sun for which west coast Mexican resorts are famous. Yet never far away are the delights of Mexico's other treasures, its historical towns, sparkling capital city and ancient artifacts, so that a winter holiday here is far more than just sea and sand.

Sports

All visitors to Mexico are attracted to its unique, often violent, spectator sports. You'll want to decide for yourself about the bullfight, with its time-honored phases that never change, including la muerte del toro! You may witness cockfights, see "charro" riders who subdue steers by twisting their tails. The pace of Jai Alai makes fascinating watching. And who can ever forget the divers of Acapulco, soaring down from 140 feet. It's all part of your Mexican holiday, as is your favorite active sport, golf, water-skiing, surfing and deep-sea fishing.

Shopping

Mexico immediately calls to mind the beauty of silver, of which it is the world's largest producer. You never tire of seeing this metal executed in beautiful ways, for wearing, for serving, for decor. Throughout the country, handicrafts in straw, in leather, in tin, tempt you with their ingenuity. You gain as much pleasure and value from a rebozo purchased from a street vendor as from chic sportswear offered in the beach towns. And what variety of atmosphere. One day shop in a colourful market, another in the elegant boutiques of Mexico City.

TOUR PACKAGES

People who "never go sightseeing" do so in Mexico! The best way to enjoy this vast country is on a delightful guided tour, well-organized, but with plenty of free time to explore on your own. CPA or your travel agent offer many such tours. From now until November, you enjoy off-season rates. Together with CPA's low return air-fare, they mean a foreign holiday you'll never forget, at a bargain!

9 NIGHTS, 10 DAYS

• $399.00 IT-OK-FM10

Impressive tours of Mexico City, the Pyramids, Ballet Folklorico. By motor to Taxco, colonial silver city, then on to fabulous Acapulco. Includes hotel accommodation, motor tours, jet air-fare Acapulco to Mexico City, jet air-fare return by CPA "Empress", ground transport to airports.

It's fun to own a passport

Having a passport is the mark of a seasoned world traveller. CPA or your Travel Agent will obtain your passport and Mexican Tourist Card for you.

Money

The currency is the Mexican peso (about 8 cents). Roughly 12 pesos make a Canadian dollar. Values differ. A five-mile taxi ride may cost only 40 cents. Your favourite "Canadian" beverage may be more than at home. (What an excuse for sampling some of the Mexican delights!) Travellers cheques easily cashed at banks and hotels.

FOR BRITISH BARGAINS

Lower Your Tastes

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Tourists bringing much-needed dollars, francs and marks into Britain this summer will find devaluation hasn't done them much good if their taste runs to ritzy hotels.

At a time when the British travel trade is going all out to promote this country as one of the best holiday buys in Europe since the 14-per-cent cut in the pound, some of Britain's leading luxury hotels are shooting their prices up by as much as 15 per cent.

They include such top London establishments as the Hilton, the Royal Garden, the Ritz and the Dorchester, a traditional favorite of Canadian diplomats and executives. Apparently unruffled by U.S government plans to cut down the flow of tourists to Europe, these plush pads explain the increase is due to rising costs, a customary move by hoteliers each season.

A room at the Royal Garden already costs about $17 a night, one at the Ritz nearly $30. Less lavish but popular tourist hotels such as the Cumberland, Strand Palace, Grosvenor House, Piccadilly and Brown's also are "adjusting" their tariffs, but by a smaller margin.

An offical at the British Travel Association said the luxury hotels attract expense-account businessmen rather than tourists. Those vacationers wealthy enough to patronize them probably wouldn't quibble at an extra few dollars a night, he suggested.

BRITONS STAY HOME

British hotels generally were "very excited" about the opportunities offered by devaluation, the official said. The lure of cheaper sterling is expected to attract a healthy margin over last year's provisional figure of 4,000,000 overseas visitors. Tourism now ranks as Britain's fourth largest foreign-exchange earner, reaping more dollars than any other export industry.

Britons themselves, squeezed out of more than a minimum stay abroad by the £50 travel allowance—now effectively reduced to £42 by devaluation in most foreign currencies—are also expected to boost the native tourist trade this year. Stay-at-home Britons already outnumber those who vacation abroad by six to one, but more and more people are taking two holidays a year and the travel restriction virtually means the second one must be spent in Britain.

Despite all these fresh plums to be plucked, British hotels appear in a somewhat confused and unhappy state—as they have been ever since the Labor government slapped a head tax on employees with the object of shifting them out of service industries into export-manufacturing jobs. The tax rate was increased in Britain's March budget.

This much-cursed Selective Employment Tax together with the government's withdrawal of investment allowances on plant and equipment for hotels is estimated to cost the industry more than £40,000,000 a year.

HOTEL MEN IRKED

Apart from these burdens, hotelmen are unhappy about lack of government aid to help them modernize old-fashioned buildings which simply don't attract tourists from Europe and North America. Nearly every British seafront is lined with huge, ornate Victorian piles whose period charm doesn't compensate tourists for lack of bathrooms. Their trade depends on business and political conventions.

It has often been said Britain needs more new hotels if she is to reap the full bonanza from the booming state of international tourism, but the British Travel Association thinks it much more important to modernize the existing ones.

"We've got an awful lot of hotels, but so many of them were built 50 or 60 years ago when it wasn't thought necessary to have a bathroom to every guest. Now they just can't provide what a tourist from Canada or America expects."

Despite the increase in British tourism—by 1970 the annual influx is expected to be around 5,000,000 overseas visitors—Britain has lagged behind her European competitors in profiting from the huge upsurge in travel since 1952. Italy, France, Germany, Austria and Spain all outstrip her.

AID MEAGRE

One reason is lack of government help to the hotel industry. It has been estimated a new hotel in Britain costs between £4,000 and £6,000 a room to build, and room charges are calculated on a basis of £1 per £1,000 cost. In an era of cut-price jumbo-jet travel, tourists on a budget are not prepared to pay £4 to £6 ($10.48 to $15.72) a night.

Other European governments invest heavily in their hotels. In 1966 France handed out £14,000,000 in low-interest loans to hoteliers to build and modernize. Hotel-builders in Portugal get 50-per-cent loans and pay no tax on their property for 10 years. Even Ireland allows £300 a room to modernize outdated hotels.

The British government doles out a meagre £5,000,000 a year in improvement loans, although hotel accommodation and catering accounts for half the money tourists spend here—£219,000,000 in 1966.

A government-appointed committee, reporting recently to the National Economic Development Council, strongly urged more state investment grants and as if anticipating this, the government announced it will lend up to £25,000 to small hotels in rural parts of regions already earmarked for state-aided industrial development.

PIGEONS fly as model Joan Fox runs along the white sands of Miami Beach. The auburn-haired Joan stands 5-feet, 4-inches, weighs 119 pounds and measures 36-23-36 in her polka dot bikini. There are still a few people taking "late winter" vacations before heading for New York.

BUTTERFLIES . . . BY NUMBERS

Can You Figure This One?

Tropical insect life is noted for its bright colors, strange shapes, and odd forms of self defence and protection. The butterfly is no exception and in Trinidad, a tropical Caribbean island that is geographically an extension of the South American mainland, you can find a particularly interesting butterfly population.

One of the most unusual of the island's butterflies is the Callicore aurelia.

On the black and white hind wings the figure 89 is clearly marked on the underside of the right wing and the figure 98 on the left.

In sharp contrast the upper wings on the underside are bright red with black markings. The aurelia has a wing span of one-and-a-half inches.

Very different is the Anaea fabius whose wings are velvet black with sulphur yellow transverse markings.

Despite this brilliant coloring, fabius is well protected by nature. In flight, the color combination of black and yellow is a coat of mimicry resembling the Ithomiidae (the Tiger butterflies) which are offensive to the taste of would-be predators, among them birds.

N
Rosenblum

Appropriately enough, we've named it our Five Continents Round World Adventure.
It may just be the escorted tour to end all tours. Because there's very little worth seeing that you won't see aboard our ship Arcadia.
Sail from Vancouver with Arcadia this September 8, and she'll take you to 24 ports at the four corners of the earth.
We'll start you off with Japan: Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, with a 3-day overland tour. Then on to Hong Kong, the Philippines, and three Australian ports. You can stay aboard and see Sydney, Melbourne and Fremantle, or take another guided tour inland.
South Africa's next. Then Brazil, where Arcadia visits Rio de Janeiro and Salvador. Then back across the Atlantic to Dakar, Senegal. Casablanca. Lisbon. Southampton and Le Havre. (Your choice of tours again; pick a go-round on the Continent, or a good look at the British Isles.)
Your best chance to get a genuine vacationer's tan comes next, as we sail for Bermuda, Florida and the Bahamas. Through the Panama Canal, Acapulco, California—and home on January 7.
Every mile of the way, you'll sail in comfort. Your ship will be thoroughly air-conditioned, your service thoroughly superb. And be sure to bring your dancing shoes.
Cost? From just $2629 tourist, $3201 first class, depending upon the European tour you choose. Special sightseeing, tours and escorts included.
For more information about our Five Continents Adventure, see your travel agent, or clip the coupon below. Remember: September 8 is the day you can take on the world.

Canadians Love Riding 280-Mile Roller Coaster

ACAPULCO, Mexico — Probably the most fascinating roller-coaster in the world is the 280-mile super highway No. 95 traversing deserts, semi-tropical valleys, sugar plantations and surmounting three mountain ranges between Mexico City and this sun-drenched resort on the rim of the Pacific.

•

Increasing numbers of Canadians flying to Mexico City on Canadian Pacific Airlines' numerous jet flights are choosing the seven hour highway trip rather than the 45-minute flight to Acapulco.

You can make the drive comfortably in one day by hired car with driver-guide, or by air-conditioned express bus with refreshments and stewardess service.

Many tourists prefer a two-day outing, with leisure to explore the colorful resort city of Cuernavaca and an overnight stay in the silver mining village of Taxco.

Surrounding the dry lakebed on which Mexico City now extends, you can see the lifeless sentinels of extinct volcanoes that once made this a valley of hell. Most spectacular of these guardian peaks is the snowpeaked Pococatepetl.

•

The highway suddenly climbs to 10,000 feet, over the rim of the plateau, then descends steeply to the perpetual springtime of Cuernavaca's semi-tropical paradise. Garlanded with exotic flowers, alive with tropical birds, and favored with an agreeable year round climate, this colorful community has been a residential retreat since the sixteenth century.

There are other tempting diversions as you journey westward. Not far beyond Cuernavaca is Vista Hermosa, an old sugar plantation whose magnificent hacienda has become a hotel and tourist attraction. It has an enormous artesian-fed swimming pool surmounted by the ancient arches of a stone aqueduct. Also in the vicinity is the famed water skiing resort of Lake Tequisquetengo.

•

Crossing the cactus wilderness of the Morelos and Iquala valleys the westbound traveller is treated to a vivid panorama of Indian village and rural life that has existed virtually changeless for four centuries.

Trains of pack burros plod, under impossible loads, vendors squat with infinite patience by heaps of produce. Near the torrid mud flats of the Balsas River, peasant women preside at roadside markets to offer colorful native pottery shaped from the river clay, decorated with cochineal, and baked under the blistering sun.

Along these desert stretches younsters display their pet Iguana lizards for the curiosity of passing tourists. They will pose with an Iguana for one peso (8c) — or sell you one for five pesos.

While the giant cadelabra cactus is the most spectacular of the desert vegetation in this region, the broad-leaved needle-tipped maguay is the most useful of plants. It produces needles, fibre thread for clothing, baskets, hats, rope and sandals plus three kinds of liquor as well.

•

The leaves of the maguay are cooked and fermented to make mezcal, a native drink, or the more refined tequila. From the hollow root of this amazing cactus is obtained pulque, yet another traditional native Mexican formula for joy and forgetfulness.

A hundred miles from Mexico City you rise from desert floor to mountain elevations again and, rounding a cliff-side curve, spread against a tapestry of mountain verdure, unbelievably quaint and appealing is Taxco — the town built on silver. Virtually unchanged in centuries, this mountain village with its narrow cobbled streets rests on a silver mine that yielded millions of dollars to Jose de la Borda, its discoverer — and is still giving up precious metal to feed the town's silver crafting factories.

Beyond Taxco lies another broad valley, another mountain range, then surprisingly you are hovering on a cliffside over the harbor of Acapulco, bathed in sunshine, rimmed with surf-laced beaches.

In colonial times the harbor of Acapulco was frequented by merchant galleons from China and the Philippines. Today it is the destination of summer-seeking tourists and a fitting terminus for Route 95, the roller-coaster road from Mexico City.

SHE INSISTS to doubtful tourists that lizards make good pets and her prices are low.

SHIPS OFFER FARE CUTS

LONDON (Reuters) — Seventeen shipping lines on the Atlantic run have offered fare reductions of more than £40 ($104) to attract foreign visitors to the United States.

The Atlantic Passenger Steamship Conference, which includes most of the British, European and American shipping companies on the route, said that starting May 1 they are introducing a specially reduced "visit U.S." fare.

This will cut 20 per cent off standard one-way fares for visitors who stay in the United States for at least 35 days and travel both ways by sea.

Average fares for the one-way journey are f190 first class or £114 tourist, with a slight reduction for a return booking.

The new fares will not benefit Americans, Canadians, West Indians or South Americans who want a cheap trip home.

The agreement restricts the reduction to "nationals of all countries except those of the Western Hemisphere."

Strachan Gets NDP Backing; Socred Policy Gets Whacking

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The British Columbia New Democratic Party, most of its thunder stolen by political developments on the national scene, opened its annual convention Friday night by bringing its guns to bear on the next best target—Social Credit.

National Leader T. C. Douglas, the party's biggest drawing card, had to cancel a personal appearance to attend federal council meeting in Ottawa mapping out strategy for the June 25 federal election.

Convention officials had hoped that Mr. Douglas might launch the NDP's election campaign with a major policy speech here during the three-day convention.

Then they tried to get Laurier LaPierre, television personality and a national NDP vice-president, as a replacement for Mr. Douglas, but he had other commitments too.

They settled for a telephone call from Mr. Douglas, which went through an amplifier system to the delegates, and a storm of criticism of Social Credit provincial policies from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

LEADER ENDORSED

Mr. Strachan earlier had received unanimous endorsement for re-election at a party caucus session held in Vancouver. All the potential contenders for Mr. Strachan's job have announced they are not after it this year and NDP spokesmen were anticipating he would be re-elected unanimously.

Mr. Strachan also accused Premier Bennett of trying to strengthen his position in a crumbling and rebellious cabinet by salting it with political allies who support his handling of the Gaglardi affair.

Premier Bennett, said Mr. Strachan, has been under sharp attack from Social Credit ranks ever since he agreed to let Phil Gaglardi stay in the cabinet, though the latter resigned as highways minister following allegations involving land deals in the B.C. Interior.

'CABINET SPLIT'

"It's obvious that this split has reached the cabinet and that Premier Bennett is attempting to heal it by appointment of his old friend Waldo Skillings."

Mr. Skillings, MLA for Victoria, took over the industrial development, trade and commerce portfolio from Ralph Loffmark Thursday in a shuffle involving two other cabinet ministers.

Mr. Strachan characterized the cabinet as "Big Brother," and said it rules more by "press release and orders-in-council" than it does through the legislature.

Through the medium of the telephone, Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Trudeau is attempting to ride a tide of publicity into a parliamentary majority.

BREAD AND BUTTER ISSUES

"We don't believe the voters will buy the package no matter how gaudily it is dressed without knowing what is inside," said Mr. Douglas. "The NDP will try to make the old-line parties discuss the bread and butter issues of the day."

Turning to resolutions, convention delegates battled to a draw on a motion proposing a moratorium on marijuana prosecutions or, alternatively, lighter penalties for possession of the drug.

Delegates voted 144 to 144 on the resolution, forcing convention chairman David Stupich, MLA for Nanaimo, to cast the deciding ballot.

Mr. Stupich voted against it and said he was doing so in hopes that another more comprehensive resolution would be brought back reflecting the party's dissatisfaction with drug laws generally.

Resists Extradition To Victoria

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Warren Beeler, 65, San Francisco, Friday resisted extradition to Canada to face a fraud charge in Victoria.

He claimed that the extradition treaty between the U.S. and Canada recognizes California's three-year statute of limitation on fraud. U.S. Commissioner Richard Goldsmith took the case under advisement following a hearing.

Beeler, Canadian native but U.S. citizen, is accused of defrauding nine persons of $5,000 to $20,000 in connection with the sale of stock for construction of Chateau Victoria, the hearing was told.

Chateau Victoria was planned as a multi-million dollar housing project for wealthy retired persons.

Construction never started at the Esquimalt Lagoon site.

Last December, Leslie Millin of Vancouver was sentenced to six years on three fraud charges in connection with the same project.

Mayor Gets Anti-Riot Powers

NEW YORK (AP) — A bill giving Mayor John V. Lindsay broad powers to cope with riots or other public disorders has been passed unanimously by the New York city council.

The measure—the first to grant such sweeping emergency powers to a New York mayor—authorizes him to impose curfews, ban the sale of firearms, and prohibit sale of alcoholic beverages and the sale or transfer of gasoline and other combustible fluids in portable containers.

The bill, passed Tuesday, also empowers the mayor to declare a state of emergency for up to 15 days throughout the city or in any part of it, prohibit pedestrian and vehicular traffic, close places of public assembly and ban the possession of rifles or shotguns in public places.

Rebel Students Confident

NEW YORK (CP) — Student rebels at Columbia University predicted victory Friday as they continued around-the-clock occupation of several campus buildings. The upheaval at the university entered its fifth day today.

Mark Rudd, president of the Students for a Democratic Society at Columbia, said: "The substantive demands that we are seeking are well on the way to resolution."

The students want to halt construction of a gymnasium in a park which separates Columbia from Harlem, and an end to the university's participation in the Institute for Defence Analysis, a "think tank" set up by the U.S. government 12 years ago.

They say the gym will deprive Negroes in the area of a prime rest and recreation facility and that the IDA, which also involves 11 other universities, supports the U.S. war effort in Vietnam.

Although Rudd said the students appear to have succeeded on these two matters, he said the campus demonstrations will continue until Columbia officials promise a general amnesty for all students who have taken prt in the protests.

Economic Impact Key Issue

QUEBEC CONFRONTS CANADA, by Edward M. Corbett; The John Hopkins Press; (Copp Clark); $8.95.

Reviewed by PATRICIA E. ROY

When E. M. Corbett completed work on Quebec Confronts Canada he probably did not expect that in little more than a year "a builder of the quiet revolution" would be prime minister.

One of the problems of writing a contemporary study is that portions of it are overcome by events even before the book reaches the shops.

Thus, some of Corbett's specific warnings such as the need to make linguistic concessions to French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec and to consider constitutional reform have been anticipated by the first volume of the Report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism and by the February Federal-Provincial Conference respectively.

Although Corbett has been anticipated in some details, other comments are remarkably timely.

He suggests, for example, that the growing sense of community between Quebec and de Gaulle's France may be the psychological talisman which Quebec has sought to prevent French Canadian absorption by the English-speaking majority of North America.

Freedom . . . Rests on Fiscal Liberty

Corbett argues that English Canada is responsible for making Confederation work: "the key question ... is whether English-speaking Canadians will be content in the long run to satisfy the new insistence ... of French Canadians, on sharing in all the responsibilities and advantages of modern life in all spheres of national existence" without sacrificing their French heritage.

Although Corbett emphasizes the importance of linguistic and cultural rights, he concludes that the confrontation between Quebec and Canada is most likely to come from the real or threatened economic impact on English Canada by Quebec's political decisions.

In the last decade the society of Quebec has changed; a new nationalism has arisen.

This new nationalism no longer fears the power of the state but rather calls for a greater use of the state as an instrument for achieving community goals.

There is little likelihood of difficulty arising from this; hydro-electricity in Ontario and British Columbia prove that provinces can venture into state-operated economic enterprises without challenging Confederation in any way.

But, this new nationalism is also convinced that the survival of the French Canadian identity depends on French Canadians obtaining a deciding voice in their economic affairs.

Key Question for English Canada

This is likely to lead to serious confrontation. The government of Quebec insists that the cultural freedom of the province rests on fiscal liberty; under the current British North America Act, fiscal matters are largely within the jurisdiction of the federal government. Ottawa has made some concessions to Quebec, such as "opting out" arrangement.

It is problematical as to whether Ottawa and the other provinces would accept demands for Quebec participation in basic fiscal policy decisions such as those made by the Bank of Canada or whether Ottawa would agree to give sole control of direct taxation to the provinces.

Although this book contains a clear warning to English Canadians that they must be prepared to allow French Canadians a larger role in society, Quebec Confronts Canada is far more than a tract for the times; it is a comprehesive study and explication of the critical years of the early 1960s.

It could accurately be subtitled "A History of the Quiet Revolution."

This historical background, based on Corbett's wide reading in the lively contemporary periodical press in Quebec, makes this volume a useful and readable background for those Canadians (especially perhaps British Columbians!) who through choice or lack of opportunity have not hitherto kept themselves informed of the changes in Quebec. It is as a lucid outline of the quiet revolution—as well as a warning of the need to conciliate—that Quebec Confronts Canada will be of most value to Canadians in 1968. This is a first-rate book; it deserves a wider audience than its $8.95 price tag is likely to yield.

Book Stands Up To Real Test

Barbara J. Lowther, Editor; A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA: Laying the Foundations, 1849-1899; Social Sciences Research Centre, University of Victoria; pp. 328; $18.50.

Reviewed by S. W. JACKMAN

There is a view, all too widespread, that only in "the east" can books in Canada be really published; elsewhere they are only printed, and printed in an inferior manner at that.

This present volume totally and absolutely refutes this opinion.

This is one of the handsomest volumes to appear anywhere and the editors and the printers (Evergreen Press) are to be vastly complimented for their end papers, the handsome binding and the agreeable type—this is a first-class volume.

However, physical make-up is only one aspect of a book; the real test is what the volume actually contains. A bibliography is a kind of scholar's dictionary.

The mere inclusion of words in a dictionary does not serve much purpose, it is what one does with the words included therein; the same applies to the list of works incorporated in a bibliography.

In this present case anyone undertaking research in the history of British Columbia in the period 1849 to 1899 will find all of the essentials for such a study.

Good Companion

In sum, this is a most comprehensive piece of work. Of course, selectivity must inevitably occur and some peripheral items which one might think worthy of consideration were excluded. It will be immediately noted that newspapers per se were not cited but it was understood that a bibliography of newspapers is being prepared elsewhere by the Provincial Archives. When this appears it will be a most satisfactory companion to the present work.

Barbara Lowther who is responsible for this bibliography cannot be too highly commended. Her activities briefly and very modestly outlined in her Preface indicate the vastness of her task. The preparation of a bibliography de novo is an horrendous task and the fact that she was willing to attempt it, and to succeed so admirably, demonstrates a skill and a talent that must surely deserve high commendation.

Staggering

The number of entries she consulted in the National Library—some 25,000 of them—and in the Provincial Archives—she spent 14 months in the latter working over 34,000 books and pamphlets—is really staggering.

Not only did she collate all of this vast material but she produced for this bibliography a superb index. This index contains not merely many cross references, title and subject items but, for individuals and authors, charming biographical notes which give it a special character.

A further point—Canadian history has largely been written from an eastern Canadian orientation; Toronto is its home-ground and affairs other than those concerned with Upper and Lower Canada have been treated either as they impinged on life there or merely as peripheral entities. A bibliography of this present sort will make it possible for historians to see more clearly and with greater ease the wider sphere; it will require historians, and indeed all Canadians, to take cognizance of the fact that there is real history west of the Rocky Mountains.

EVEN UNDERFOOT Expo 67—was "new and now." Robert Fulford, Toronto newspaper columnist, feature writer and broadcaster, tells how this great exposition came about and something about it while it happened. This Was Expo ($12.50, McClelland and Stewart Ltd., Toronto) is a winning combination of words and pictures for fairgoers who were there and want to relive the excitement and color or for those who didn't but are interested in this rare moment of Canadian history.

Hailey's 'Airport' Taking Off Into Wild Blue Chips

HAILEY
. . . surprised at success

By DAVID H. G. COLLINS

After only two weeks on the stands, Arthur Hailey's latest book Airport has risen to the top of the New York Times' best-seller list.

Some idea of Arthur Hailey's phenomenal success can be gained from these figures about his last novel, Hotel, which sold 100,000 copies in the hard-cover edition and 2¼ million in paperback and was published in 16 languages, including Japanese.

Airport has already been acquired by Reader's Digest for their condensed book selection and is currently being serialized by Good Housekeeping.

During an interview I had with him recently in Toronto, Arthur Hailey had this to say about his writing:

"I have a basic philosophy that nothing is too much trouble. Most of my books have a factual background and I go to a great deal of trouble to get the essential facts. I enjoy doing this because I feel that people have an instinct for accuracy. I write fiction, but the factual backgrounds I use have to check out."

Three Years Per Book His Pattern

In the writing of Airport, Arthur Hailey followed his usual pattern of spending three years on a book, the first year of which is spent in outlining and in active research.

In this case, the research took him thousands of miles when he visited airports ranging from Los Angeles to Brussels.

He worked closely with airline executives, government officials and airline pilots to gain the necessary degree of accuracy, often spending as much as seven hours in a single interview.

"My other philosophy," Mr. Hailey said, "is that our day-to-day life and its machinery is both exciting and fascinating. We tend to think there are parts of our daily lives that we are thoroughly familiar with but when you go behind the scenes to take another look you discover that you really didn't know very much of what was going on at all."

Mr. Hailey's first publication was a letter to the local paper suggesting that the town swimming pool be opened on Sunday. "It hadn't the slightest effect, but I think it was the first thing I had published. During the Second World War I wrote a few short stories and had them published here and there, and after that I was a trade paper editor in Toronto.

"I had given up the idea of writing fiction, but I went into sales and advertising and when I was least expecting it, I wrote a play for television entitled Flight into Danger. From this point my life turned over and since then I haven't written anything on speculation, only on contract. I switched to writing books in 1959 and now I do nothing but books."

Walter Mitty Brought Her Down

Mr. Hailey served as pilot in Training Command in Canada and later with a Beaufighter squadron. Of the part which his RAF experiences played in his writing career, Mr. Hailey said, "With Flight into Danger I was drawing from my own experience. Aviation hadn't changed too much by that time and there were still propeller-driven aircraft. In my mind, I was the rusty old fighter pilot sitting in the back of the airliner. In the cockpit, I was the one who, in Walter Mitty terms, guided it into Vancouver.

"But with Airport my own flying experience was not of any value because, from the pilot's viewpoint, aviation has changed so much. I had to have a lot of advice and guidance about air sequences from present airline pilots."

British by birth, Canadian by nationality, Mr. Hailey moved to the United States in 1966 and lives in the Napa Valley near San Francisco with his wife Sheila and their three children.

"We live there because it is quite the loveliest place I have seen in the world. The valley itself is so far unspoilt; it consists largely of vineyards and walnut orchards. The summer is long and spring comes to us in February."

When at home, the author swims at least once a day, winter and summer, and shares his son's interest in model trains. Success has left no unpleasantness on Arthur Hailey who confesses to being continually surprised at his success as a novelist.

JUST TOO SILLY TO LAUGH AT

ROSY IS MY RELATIVE, by Gerald Durrell; Collins; $4.95.

Gerald Durrell's name has always to me been synonymous with absorbing storytelling, uproarious humour and a vast stock of specialized information about animal life enthusiastically and unpedantically conveyed.

His first attempt at a novel, if it even deserves that label, is bitter disappointment. Rosy Is My Relative describes the picaresque wanderings of an uninteresting young man named Adrian Rookwhistle and his ward, an alcoholic pet elephant called Rosy.

Together they roam the English countryside, wreaking havoc wherever they pause, until they finish up for trial in the unlikeliest court of law one might ever encounter.

Admittedly Rosy is a delightful character and she gets into some funny scrapes, recounted in Durrell's liveliest manner.

But when it comes to creating a convincing world for Rosy to inhabit, the author fails abysmally.

Granted the characters are supposed to be only comic types, with names like Ethelbert Cleep and Emanuel Clattercup, but a whole book full of them, with no real human personality to be found except in the shape of an elephant, is just too silly to laugh at.

Perhaps Gerald Durrell is attempting a new type of light fiction, something of a fairy-tale fantasy. But, seeing that he is a near-genius at conveying the facts of natural history, it is hard to understand why he has turned to this most ephemeral form of writing. —J.C.

J.B.'s GONE FULL CIRCLE

Re-Wind . . . Please!

OUT OF TOWN by J. B. Priestley. William Heinemann, $6.95.

Reviewed by Eugenie L. Myles

In more than one way this latest yarn in J. B. Priestley's twice-twelve fiction titles suggests that its author has run full circle.

For this tale takes us back to the picaresque mode and a pair of roguish good companions.

But whatever's the world coming to? This time J. B.'s rascals are a pair of penniless, parasitical professors, Dr. Owen Tuby of Welsh-English ancestry, and Cosmo Saltana of Spanish-English origin in London now after years of lecturing in way-out places of the world and on the make for a better turn of fortune's wheel.

Luck delivers, in the shape of a comely weeping widow, Elfreda Drake, like them a guest in a London hotel "still respected for its quaint conveniences and quiet discomfort."

AMERICAN MONEY

The pair rush to console Elfreda; already they have sniffed about and discovered that she suggests America and money. She weeps, she tells them, because enemies across the Atlantic are attempting to thwart her single-handed attempt to set up in Britain the Judson Drake Sociological Foundation in memory of her late husband.

Having glanced over a prefaced dramatis personae of some 50 names, the reader has already guessed from these suggestive names and the stock opening that this is no serious fiction but mere parody, and he settles back to enjoy the fun.

How fortunate, smile the professors at Elfreda. We are sociologists; perhaps we can help you.

Elfreda dries her eyes and looks them over as they brief her on highlights of their past. Cosmo Saltana, sunken-cheeked, black-haired with white streaks, "an odd and rather frightening man," has been professor of philosophy at universities in half a dozen Central and South American countries.

AND INTO RED

Dr. Owen Tuby is tubby of course, "a little fat man almost," soft and rubbery but with a voice that could talk a woman into anything — often into bed as it turns out. He has been professor of English language and literature in India, Malaya, Hong Kong.

Having recently returned from these outposts to this heart of "the sodden ruins of an Empire," so they tell Elfreda, they have discovered that the new Briton is most of all concerned with his new image; they want to help by setting up courses in Social Imagistics.

In no time at all they have persuaded her to join with them in establishing The Institute of Social Imagistics.

FIRST CRACK

It must, of course, be attached to a university, preferably "a moved-out Cat," college of advanced technology. Guided by O. V. Mere, editor of the new Redbrick monthly, they select the University of Brockshire because its vice-chancellor Jayjay Lapford is anxious "to look right out in front," to get first crack at something new, and his wife Isabel is socially ambitious.

Within weeks the trio are tentatively set up in a decaying manor house outside the university that has been refurbished with a portion of the American millions and the new Institute has two star students, Mike Mickley, a graduate in sociology and in love with the second, Primrose East, gorgeous late London model who yearns to return to her studies in sociology.

FLASH OF WIT

Now danger threatens from both without and within, from spies of the rival Judson Drake Foundation being set up in America by other relations of the late millionaire, and from jealous faculty members bent on exposing the new professors.

Complications, devious and often dull, continue. Until it becomes obvious that the trio will be driven back to operate their Institute in London.

Of course, flashes of Priestly wit occasionally brighten the tedium of the stock characters, the stock coincidences and the stock satire. Then there's frequently the Pied Piper magnetism of Tuby's voice drawing the attractive women into the bedroom.

At the end an author's note informs that "how it all ended in London will be related, God willing, in Volume Two." Let's hope the author re-winds the old clock. Lest the reader murmur, "God forbid."

Hutchison Did It Better

CANADA AND ITS LEADERS: by John S. Crosbie, Toronto; Saunders; $4.95.

This small book is, in essence, a compilation of thumb-nail biographies of the Prime Ministers of Canada.

It yields nothing that is new either in content or analysis, but offers some possible value as a quick reference book to those who might not have at hand a volume such as Hutchison's Mr. Prime Minister or Careless' The Canadians.

This reviewer has seen better essays or sketches of our Prime Ministers by first year history students. Enough said.—R.H.R.

TOP MUSIC FESTIVAL performers gathered Friday night at McPherson Playhouse to listen, to perform, and to harvest a total of 28 awards, mostly in the form of bursaries and scholarships. The Festivals Highlight Concert concluded the first week of the annual event. In this representative group, left to right, rear, are multiple high-scoring singer Laura Groos, Medallion contender Cheryl Boris, pianist Jim Furmston, Rose Bowl contenders Norma Selwood and George Roberts. Front, Medallion winner Camille Inkman, pianists Mary Chard and Jocelyn Abbott and Rose Bowl contenders Barbara Ebell and Carla Levinson, to whom the Rose Bowl was awarded.

Music Festivals Threatened By Canada Council Time Bomb

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Two British experts who have travelled 3,000 miles across Canada since mid-January are enthusiastic about the challenge and excitement of Canada's music festivals.

Many thousand of Canadians who have responded to the challenge and profited through participation share this enthusiasm.

Canada Council advisers, however, do not.

As a result, a delayed-action bomb has just been dropped by Canada Council, shockwaves of which could easily destroy many festivals, perhaps end the movement altogether.

The bomb is contained in a letter to R. W. Cooke, secretary-treasurer of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals, from Peter Dwyer, Canada Council associate director.

The federation, the letter states, cannot expect any further financial assistance from the council in the future.

"The council has made very careful enquiries of our music advisers," says Mr. Dwyer, "and has reached the conclusion that, in view of the increasing reservations that so many music educators now have about the desirability of young people in training taking part in competitive festivals, we can no longer continue our support."

Music festivals, it can be argued, existed long before Canada Council came into being and most would probably continue to function without the grant made annually to the federation, if that was all that was entailed.

But the thinking that has influenced Canada Council's decision could easily be transmitted to provincial government levels and boards of education and other authorities supporting festivals across Canada, making the destruction more wide-spread and complete.

The music educators who advise Canada Council are not named but it is not difficult to make an educated guess and come up with the thought that they will be mostly university music department faculty people.

And from my personal observation, expert though these people are — super-brains in their specialized fields — it occurs to me that in the matter of community music festivals their opinion is purely academic and totally unrealistic.

Music educators at elementary and secondary school levels have been among the music festivals' keenest supporters.

The finest private teachers it has been my good fortune to know or to talk with over more than two decades, praise and support festivals with little or no reservation.

Nothing humanly organized is perfect; nothing works for everybody alike.

Admittedly there are certain drawbacks to a competitive festival. Perhaps one day we will be able to eliminate competition altogether. Certainly the Victoria Festival has done much to minimize the element of competition.

And with effect. British adjudicators, Joseph Cooper and Trevor Anthony, commented to me on the splendid spirit of our festival.

"They accept their awards with humility," Trevor Anthony noted. "But they take their criticism and losses with equal good grace and understanding."

NO SUBSTITUTE

There is no substitute for public performance and learning how to take public criticism readily and with an open mind.

And there is no better place to experience one and learn the other, than the open forum of the festival.

As a student participant in the early days — and one who took my lumps with the best and as a close observer for many years — I know these things to be true.

At a time when, after the Second World War, there was no festival in Victoria, musical interest and standards reached an all-time low among young people.

What Canadians need from Canada Council is help to build fine arts participation within the community.

What they do not need is money for Fooling and to be stifled by too much esoteric thought.

Who Gives a Hoot For Brewery Toot!

Victoria's famous 9:30 brewery "sound-off" came in for a bit of adjudication the other night at a Music Festival session.

The long, penetrating sound interrupted Joseph Cooper in the middle of a dissertation.

"What on earth's that?" he exclaimed.

Then after deciding that the note being sounded was a G-flat, he tried to ignore it.

But just as one note played incessantly is said to wear out nerves and steel girders, so the brewer's single note snapped the patience of the adjudicator for the first time in the festival and — "Oh, shut up!" he admonished. And so it did.

●

Festival secretary Ada English and a number of the entrants have been going around this week sporting lilac-colored campaign type buttons proclaiming that "Festivals are Fun."

They are the home industry of Madeleine, second daughter of the musical David Groos family, whose flair for side-bar effects is notable among her friends.

Madeleine should know about festivals. She and the rest of the family, sisters Laura and Hilary and brother Brian, have been singing in the festival ever since they were old enough to carry a tune.

Mrs. English incidentally, might reasonably be expected to wear her button with her tongue in her cheek. Festivals for her are a matter of early, early mornings, late, late nights, and sketchy meals.

They mean keeping pace with and paying close attention to proceedings in four or five centres at the same time, answering a thousand questions a day and fielding complaints. They also mean keeping adjudicators happpy, administering an office and a staff that has sprung up like a mushroom overnight, and unscrambling the inevitable problems that arise when several thousand people are involved in one operation.

Festivals are fun? Believe it or not, despite the fact that her daily resignations are routine and smilingly anticipated by her fellow workers, still Mrs. English won't give you much of an argument on that score.

●

Victoria's Public Library came in for praise from Joseph Cooper during a Friday morning workshop session organized by the Registered Music Teachers.

Many British libraries would be envious of the fine music section, Mr. Cooper said.

"Yor're most fortunate to have all those records and excellent books available. I hope you make good use of them."

The jovial, salty-tongued musician has also advised festival officials that it would be a good idea to introduce jazz concerts in future festivals.

Hear, hear!

ROSE BOWL, MEDALLION WINNERS

Camille's Talent 'Magnificent'

By BERYL PROUDMAN

As a production, the Festival Highlights program which thrilled adjudicators and audience alike Friday night in the McPherson Playhouse, could not have been improved upon.

Freed from all time-consuming announcements and comments, introduced briefly by Mrs. V. Berringer, festival president, the program never faltered, never slowed down.

A large number of awards were presented with pleasant dispatch by Mrs. H. Mickelson and the adjudicators added only a few, well-chosen words.

The skilfully presented intrinsically interesting items in the first half of the program naturally led up to the eagerly-awaited B.C. Electric Rose Bowl Contest in which Norma Selwood sang Bach's "Break In Grief"; Barbara Ebell sang "Angel Song From Gerontius"; Carla Levinson sang Chabrier's "Villanelle des Petits Canards" and George Roberts sang Vaughan Williams' "Vagabond."

In presenting the Rose Bowl, Trevor Anthony said, "Mr. Cooper and I decided without any doubt or hesitation that this award should be presented to Carla Levinson."

The penultimate spot in the program was reserved for the City of Victoria Medallion competition.

Cheryl Borris played the first movement of Mozart's D Minor Concerto which won high praise for the true Mozartian spirit with which every note was played.

Camille Inkman played three startlingly contrasted numbers, an Impromptu by Faure, a Chopin Etude and Morel's exciting Etude de Sonorite No. 2.

Completely swept off his feet by the "pure music" of Camille's playing Mr. Cooper exclaimed, "I have not heard such pianissimos, such fortissimos and all the glorious colors in between since I heard Rachmaninoff."

After congratulating Victoria on its outstanding festival not only rich in talented contestants but rich too in the concord with which so many music-making centres unite in bolstering and building the festival to its present high standard.

A poignant sadness doused a little of the pleasure the evening had brought when an impassioned Trevor Anthony pleaded with Victorians to stand out against those who are trying to kill music festivals in Canada by cutting off the economic support of the Canada Council.

"Let this be your chance," he said, "to light a torch to the future: come to the annual meeting on June 11, get up a petition and save music festivals which add so much to the cultural life of Canada."

Twenty-eight awards of scholarships, bursaries and other prizes were also made as the first week of the Greater Victoria Music Festival came to an end.

Awards and their winners:

The Aldyen Hamber IODE bursary for accordion solo classes, Norm Smith. Robert Burns McMicking Chapter IODE Dulcie Fowler Memorial Award, Nona Avren.

Stolen Art Recovered

WARSAW (AP)—Polish police have recovered $1,000,000 in Medieval art treasures stolen from an exhibition three years ago, newspapers reported Friday. Four men were arrested. The valuables, owned by the Warsaw National Museum, were mainly gold and silver chalices, crucifixes and other items used in church rites.

Goodbye, Dear Sock-It-To-Me

By AL FORREST

This week Friday night finally arrived and it was time once more to do the column.

"Hello, operator? Get me Mr. Dan Rowan please. In Vancouver. At the Cave Supper Club. Thank you.

"Not there? Is Mr. Martin there? No? Try Mr. Rowan at the Hotel Georgia."

(Telephone operator: "That's funny . . ."

(Second operator: "What?"

(First: "He's trying to reach Mr. Rowan and Mr. Martin."

(Second: "Yeah, well you know who they are don't you!"
(First: "Of course I do. They're on television!"
(Second: "Silly, they're in Vancouver!"
(First: "You're kidding! Oh, isn't that exciting! Oh, hold it. Hello? Mr. Dan Rowan please.)

"Hello?"

"Mr. Dan Rowan?"

"Speaking."

"This is Al Forrest."

"Who?"

"Of the Victoria Times. I do the TV column."

"Oh, yes. Good of you to call."

"What will the Rowan and Martin Laugh-In be like next season? Can you . . . er . . . sock it to me?"

"Well I can't tell you everything of course, but . . ."

●

ROWAN (top) . . . and Martin

Mr. Rowan is the serious one of Rowan and Martin.

You only have to talk to him for a few minutes to realize how serious.

In half an hour the profesional comedian chuckled only twice.

The rest of the time:

"Some people say our show isn't proper.

"I don't know what proper means.

"Dick and I only do what we feel is right.

"I believe we have never done anything in bad taste. If we did we wouldn't last long.

"We're not trying to hurt anyone.

"We're not trying to offend anyone.

"We are only trying to help people laugh and get a little less uptight about things like wars and riots and taxes.

"That's the classic role of the clown down through history.

●

"We have been accused of using off-color jokes.

"I wish people could get as steamed up about the really important issues in the world and were a little less infantile in their reactions to a handful of four-letter words."

●

The Rowan and Martin show in fall will be only slightly changed.

"We try to do the unpredictable but even the unpredictable becomes predictable after awhile."

There will be fewer political references after the November presidential election.

●

There will also be fewer sock-it-to-me episodes in the fall.

"It's run its course. We may work it in incidentally from time to time. But we're looking for new slogans. We haven't decided on them for sure yet."

●

They had planned a face-to-face special with the Smothers Brothers this spring but they couldn't find a suitable mutually agreeable time.

The idea was to fake a quarrel and Rowan was to stalk off with Tom Smothers (the funny one) while Martin stayed behind with Dick Smothers.

●

Mr. Rowan was told that in Victoria comedian Pat Paulsen said the Smothers Brothers are anti-war but not anti-Establishment.

"That sums us up, too," Mr. Rowan said.

"We're basically not anti anything.

"We are in favor of peace, not war; love, not hate; justice, not injustice . . ."

●

"You know, we could have been on TV five years ago. But they wouldn't let us do the kind of show we wanted. So we held off.

"At last they gave us the chance to do our own thing."

●

LESLIE . . . the look of love

TELEBITS—Actor Lee J. Cobb reads excerpts from the letters of painter Vincent Van Gogh at 10 p.m. tonight on Channel 4 . . . Andy Williams at 10 p.m. Sunday on Channel 5 offers Simon and Garfunkel singing their songs from The Graduate, Scarborough Fair and Mrs. Robinson . . . at the same time Rowan and Martin pay musical tribute to the martini . . . Leslie Uggams sings Goldfinger and The Look of Love on her own special at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 4 . . . Guests on Miss Uggams' show will be Robert Morse and Noel Harrison.

The nomination list is out for the annual Patsy awards which go annually to the outstanding animal actors.

Lassie is a perennial winner but there's strong competition this year.

Among the nominees for outstanding performance is the Macaw from Doctor Dolittle.

Television and movie historians are busily checking their record books on this, but the first word is that this is believed to be the first time ever that a Macaw has been nominated for a Patsy Award. Watch for further bulletins.

'JEKYLL' NOMINATED FOR EMMY

NEW YORK (CP) — The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, co-produced by the CBC, has been nominated for an Emmy dramatic award.

The feature is one of more than 250 nominations in 41 categories for Emmy awards that were announced this week by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The programs, broadcast between March 27, 1967, and March 7, 1968, were nominated by the 6,000 members of the academy. More than 400 judges will make the final selections. The awards will be presented Sunday, May 19.

Among other dramatic award nominations are CBS's Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night and Dear Friends; NBC's Elizabeth the Queen; ABC's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and Luther; and National Educational Television's Uncle Vanya.

The Jekyll and Hyde program was co-produced in Toronto by Dan Curtis Productions of New York and the CBC. Curtis sold it to ABC and the program was first viewed on the Canadian network.

UP FOR MORE AWARDS

Other nominations connected with the program: Tessie O'Shea for best performance by an actress in a supporting role, Bert Gordon of the CBC for best graphic design, Dick Smith of New York for best makeup.

Montreal's Genevieve Bujold, who played the title role in NBC's Saint Joan, is nominated in the category for the outstanding performance by an actress in a leading role in a drama.

HIGH, WILD AND FREE, a color film made in northern British Columbia by Gordon Eastman, holding steelhead, will open to the public in the Odeon Theatre Wednesday at 1 p.m. From the opening shot of 200,000 snow geese beginning their long flight north to one of the final sequences showing two bull caribou in combat, there is nearly two hours of adventure for everyone.

Top Talent Ready For Brigadoon

As fascinating as the time plays of J. B. Priestley to which it can claim musical kinship, is Lerner and Loewe's Brigadoon.

The musical, soon to be seen on the McPherson Playhouse stage, contains a number of Gaelic-inspired melodies, among them the haunting Come to Me, Bend to Me, Heather On the Hill, I'll Go Home With Bonnie Jean and From This Day On.

As the conclusion of a season that has seen a number of locally-produced musicals, the Victoria Operatic Society production promises to be one of the greatest popular successes.

GOING EAST

Some of this city's most talented performers are included in the big cast.

Prominent among them is Victoria-born singing-dancing actor Dan Costain who, shortly after appearing in Brigadoon will head East to join the Charlottetown Festival company.

Soprano Ruth Champion and dancer Nancy Watt, Nanaimo singer Barbara Desprez, Barry Grimshaw in the romantic role of Tommy, Ian McIntyre, Norman Tyrrell, Bill Broadhead, Roy Blevins and David Dunsmuir are other principals.

Choreography of special numbers by Wynne Shaw and a full orchestra conducted by musical director Howard Denike will add lustre to the show which will run from Tuesday through Saturday.

Curtain time is 8 p.m.

$4,000 IN PRIZES

Toronto Pianist Wins Big National Contest

First National Performing Artists Competition to be sponsored by a Canadian symphony society reached its final stage this month at Edmonton.

It was a concept of the Edmonton Symphony Society to help young Canadian musicians seeking careers on the concert stage.

Open to pianists, violinists, singers and instrumentalists of either sex, the five finalists were selected in regional competitions which eliminated 39 other entrants.

They represented British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

Each of the finalists appeared in two performances on the stage of Jubilee Auditorium with the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra conducted by Brian Priestman.

TORONTO WINNER

First prize winner was 22-year-old Toronto pianist Arthur Ozolins.

Ozolins made his debut with the Toronto Symphony at the age of 15 and since that time has studied with Nadia Boulanger in Paris and Nadia Reisenberg in New York, assisted by grants from Canada Council.

In Edmonton his prize consisted of $3,000 provided by Xerox of Canada Limited, and a $1,000 contract for two performances with the Edmonton Symphony in 1969.

Otto Armin, 24-year-old violinist of Montreal, was awarded the second prize of $1,000.

VISITED HERE

Mr. Armin is known in Victoria, having visited here three or four years ago as concert master of the National Youth Orchestra and again, subsequently, as a soloist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Third, fourth and fifth prize winners were singers Gloria Richards, 33, of Fredericton, who received $750; 19-year-old Colleen Letrouneau of Edmonton and pianist Samuel Morrison, 17, of Vancouver, each $250.

OTTO ARMIN . . . $1,000 for second

Edmonton Symphony Society provided the second and fifth prizes and Western Canadian business organizations the third and fourth.

Musicians in all parts of Canada have hailed the National Performing Artists Competition as an outstanding example of what a symphony society can do to give young talent a professional start.

Judges of finalists were Sir Ernest MacMillan, Wilfrid Pelletier and Murray Adaskin.

Diamond In the Groove

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Herbert von Karajan conducts the Berlin Philharmonic in Beethoven's Symphony No. 8; Fidelio, Leonore III & Coriolan Overtures. D G G 139015.

Karajan's inspired interpretation realized by the outstanding playing of the Berlin Philharmonic is reproduced with remarkable veracity by the engineering techniques of DGG. on this excellent disc.

In the 8th Beethoven had composed a happy, witty symphony and perversely refused to conform to strict formal conventions.

Which movement was supposed to be the slow one?

The 2nd movement, Allegretto Scherzando even without the suggested parody of the metronome's staccato ticking, would hardly qualify, and the 3rd movement, Tempo di Minuetto, for many years was unfailingly played as fast as a German waltz with a scurrying trio to match.

The decision has remained with the conductor and Karajan is unusual in slowing the 3rd movement and speeding up the other three to present the greatest contrast.

The first movement, though brilliant in its shimmering gaiety and clear-toned instruments does trade a certain warm breadth of melody to achieve this startling brilliance.

The problematic 3rd movement though slowed, is redeemed from heaviness by a forward-thrusting freedom of uninterrupted line which keeps it moving.

In several ways Karajan brings vitality and clarity to his recordings of Beethoven's works. Depending on fine recording techniques he is able to balance solo instruments and interweaving sections more nicely than in older recordings which made Beethoven sound powerful but lumpy.

An insinuating string obligato in the 3rd movement often passes completely unheard in lesser recordings.

By reducing the volume of under parts and pushing, rather than hammering chords into position, he avoids the over emphasized reiterated crashing chords many people have come to associate with Beethoven's music.

His ability to draw the orchestra from a ppp whisper to an fff climax smoothly, gradually and always with perfect control brings out all dramatic contrasts.

Any of his records which start softly might fool you into adjusting the volume but don't do it, or within a few bars you will be blasted into hasty defensive readjustment.

Beethoven delighted in daring synocopation patterns and changes in emphases and Karajan seems to relish these rhythmic subtleties and to communicate them to the players almost instinctively.

Razor-sharp cut-offs where not a wisp of sound frays the contrasting silence, and equally clean re-entries, make the most of important rests and dramatic pauses in the music.

The orchestra, as usual, is indescribably virtuoso. Leonore III is, deservedly the most excitingly played of the three overtures on the reverse side. The dramatic conflict, a vision of which possessed Beethoven while composing it so that it grew far too big for its opera, is marvellously exploited.

Guns Restricted

CHICAGO (AP)—Sears, Roebuck and Co. has announced a new policy that restricts the sale of guns and ammunition to persons over 21. A Sears spokesman said Friday the retailer no longer will accept mail or telephone orders for guns or ammunition, effective immediately. "We will require proof of age," said Ernest L. Arms, corporate news director of the firm.

'NATIONAL' DEADLINE ON MAY 5

Final date for application to the National Theatre School is May 5.

Candidates who wish to apply for admission to courses for the 1968-69 school year (acting, design or technical sections) should contact the school office to obtain application forms.

The address for applications is 407 St. Lawrence Blvd., Montreal.

Audition for the acting course consists of one scene from the classical repertoire and a contemporary scene—the school provides a list of possible classical speeches to aid applicants in their choice.

At the time of their interview, candidates for the production course will receive all necessary instructions concerning preparation of their entrance test.

Design candidates are requested to present examples of their previous work in design, painting and drawing.

All students must have completed high school at the time of admission. Acting students should be between the ages of 17 and 23 years though in special cases exceptions may be made.

Results of auditions and interviews will be made known to acting candidates early in July and to production course candidates early in August.

ART IN REVIEW

Mental Shifting of Gears Needed

By TED LINDBERG

Lindberg

Until May 5, the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria will be exhibiting a smallish show of works by two reasonably successful eastern Canadians seldom seen on this coast, Joyce Wieland and John Meredith.

Miss Wieland, now a resident of New York City, has already transferred most of her energies to "happenings" and serious film-making, as have many artists, from surrealist Man Ray to pretender Andy Warhol.

Already her paintings and drawings must be necessarily viewed in an historical context. Such is the price one pays for being so removed, in time and space, form a chic and fast-moving "art biz."

In Miss Wieland's case, the transition from painting to film-making was a very natural one, as her approach seems always to have been serial in concept of cause and effect, rather than a single, integrated statement. In almost all instances she tells a progressive story using the device of film or comic strip to effect impact.

Even in the more conventional formats, her compositions "read" from side to side and from top to bottom.

The story she tells is literal and a fairly common one; alternately whimsical, humorous, stark, sad and banal. Using the most patent symbolism, most of it "Pop Freudian", she gives us the scoop on how an intrepid girl from Toronto made it through the jungles of Love and Longing, via the Slough of Visual Weltschmerz, into the underground film capital of the world.

●

Sometimes she tweaks at the ever-increasing use of soft-core pornography in commercial advertising to which we are submitted (yet oblivious), which official censorship concerns itself with, more often than not, the frank but artful treatment of taboo subjects.

This is all well and good, and I am occasionally cheered by her harsh humor, which is refreshing in a sea of well-landscaped Canadiana, but it is most propitious that she has switched media.

I have the distinct feeling that some of these themes could be handled cleverly in film, and I would really prefer to see some of her efforts in this direction.

One by one, the traditional functions of the artist are being robbed from him by the other forms of communication, to which people today instinctively turn. Since Miss Wieland seems loath to operate in terms of more meaningful poetic impulse, one of the few areas left to the painter, perhaps it is best she adopted a new field.

●

The transition from Wieland to the work of John Meredith, across the gallery, makes almost unreasonable demands on the viewer — a mental shifting of gears that takes a little effort. In fact, Meredith's own paintings were never intended to co-exist in the same room. They are so self-assertive that each of them requires an undivided attention for a number of minutes, (and must this be so unthinkable a request when the same contemplation is required of a traditional master-painting)?

It takes a moment to come to the realization that Meredith's paintings and drawings are essentially in the abstract expressionist vein, although his work is deliberate and calculated, whereas one has come to think of this style as intuitive out-pourings of manner and material.

Each of his larger paintings is based on a drawing, although unfortunately the drawings in the exhibit are not the preliminaries for the paintings on view.

Within these drawings are arranged the basic organic, very often visceral shapes, through which Meredith attempts to give visual existence to his "subconscious reactions to form, beauty, power, etc., as they relate to himself, and as they react upon and effect him emotionally."

He has developed in his drawings one thing in particular: a hairy, electric quality of line, (by wiping the wet ink sideways), which is only partially successful when transposed in the larger paintings, where the jagged edge is not swiped-in, but laboriously drawn. Perhaps he continues to challenge himself in this respect.

In other cases, he draws lines in relatively thin layers, sometimes with areas of overpaint, making abstract images composed of careful but not brittle forms.

In either event, the many conflicting shapes are provocatively delineated and lock into a total image, through both compositional invention and (especially in the paintings), the inter-action of resplendent hues.

●

Meredith works in a high-keyed range of fluorescent colors: turquoise, violet, blue, yellow and orange; and what is lost of the spontaneity of the drawings in the paintings, is made up in a modulation of tone which creates a fullness worthy of continued meditation.

Unlike Wieland, Meredith is a painter who is staking his entire reputation on the resources of paint and the original images he can conjure.

If his meanings are not immediately apparent, then neither are the deeper rewards which await all but the most cursory observation.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

The Human Beinz, whose Nobody But Me reached the top side of every chart going, have finally come through with an album. Titled Nobody But Me the tracks include Turn On Your Love Light, It's Fun To Be Clean, Black Is The Color Of My True Love's Hair and This Lonely Town.

It's a well recorded album but I wish that groups wouldn't rely on hit names to sell albums.

Gladys Knight and The Pips are back on the racks. This time with Tastiest Hits. Pick of the cuts are Letter Full Of Tears, Either Way I Lose, Stop And Get A Hold Of Myself, and Every Beat Of My Heart.

Doin' Our Thing is the newest LP issue for Booker T. and The MG's. A great group with a great sound doing a great job with I Can Dig It, Expressway (To Your Heart), Never My Love, The Exodus Song and Ode To Billie Joe make this an album not to miss.

Following a nothing path with their first album release is the Ultimate Spinach. None of the cuts amount to too much so it's likely that the issue will soon be found in the clearance bin. Some of the titles are enough to leave you cold—Ego Trip, Sacrifice Of The Moon (In Four Parts), Plastic Raincoats, Hungup Minds, Funny Freak Parade and (Ballad of the) Hip Death Goddess. Don't bother with it until it makes the discount rack and even then be ready for a laugh.

Love Is Blue is almost being worked to death. Claudine Longet recently picked it and is using it as the title of her new album.

She does a fine job with it and the 10 other songs that the disc holds.

Earl Grant, who will be in Victoria next month to appear at the Jaycee Fair, is featured on a new release titled Spanish Eyes. Included on the platter is Lara's Theme From Doctor Zhivago, Born Free, Shangrila, Finlandia and La Paloma. Have a listen and then catch at least one of his shows at the fair.

The Beatles' newest LP is almost ready for release. Titled Foot Orgy it is said to contain material similar to their old style.

TOP OF THE CHARTS

THE OLD GIRL GOES MOD!

Without losing a smidgeon of her charm and dignity, the Empress has taken on the Twentieth Century! Redecorated, refurbished — rejuvenated. And she looks marvellous! Big, bright, cheerful rooms with contemporary colours and furnishings in impeccable taste. TV and radio, luxurious wall-to-wall carpeting and soft lighting. And would you believe a new AC electrical circuit that doesn't have a nervous breakdown when you plug in an electric razor! We feel happy about all this. So will you. Especially when you see that all the old-world service and attentions are still there to make you feel extra welcome; that the food in the handsome new Garden Café is excellent but the prices are most reasonable. Maybe best of all, that the rates are competitive in the charming-as-ever Empress. Now gone mod! Treat yourself.

Cautious Optimism on Markets

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices continued to rise on a note of cautious optimism on Canada's major stock markets this week. The general upward trend was still firmly linked to hopes for an early start to Vietnam peace talks.

The best gains were posted by steels, golds, oils and banks, while shares in the base metal group were largely unchanged.

In an attempt to explain price movements, analysts have been looking back to the Korean war when peace negotiations extended for two years until July, 1953. Records show the market went through wide swings during this period.

But brokers say that whatever emotional upsurge may follow positive news on the peace front, the market still stands to be strongly corrected by adverse developments in the United States' fiscal position.

Compared to Wall Street this week, however, Canadian markets, advanced more steadily, without being effected by hourly rumors.

Since Tuesday, the Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index rose more than half a point each day to close at 159.39 for a gain of 1.46 on the week.

The surge followed a sharp decline over the weekend cause by an increase in the U.S. bank rate and William McChesney Martin's warning that the U.S. faces the worst financial crisis since 1931.

GOLDS PICK UP

A feature of the week was revived interest in golds, though volume was modest. The TSE gold index was up almost 8 points after renewed buying Thursday and Friday.

Analysts thought the disclosure of the U.S. trade deficit for March — the worst for five years — could be responsible. The trade deficit is the amount spent abroad in excess of receipts.

Another factor was the publication of exact figures for the loss in official U.S. gold reserves during the run on gold bullion between November and mid-March. The loss totalled more than $2,000,000,000.

At Toronto, Campbell Red Lake gained 4¼ to 35, Dome 1½ to 62½ and Giant Yellowknife 1⅛ to 11⅛.

INDUSTRIALS ADVANCE

Steels surged ahead in a week when the three major companies held annual meetings. Stelco, which reported record first-quarter profits and is considering increasing its dividend rate, rose 1⅜ to 21⅜.

Algoma and Dofasco, despite lower profits, were up ½ to 18½ and ⅜ to 17¾. All finished below thier best after prices slipped Friday.

Ontario Store Fixture, which closed last week at 8¼, jumped 7⅛ to 15 on sales of 47,000 shares. The company, which makes store, restaurant and kitchen fixtures, announced it will buy Roberts Realty of the Bahamas Ltd.

Ford of Canada climbed 6 points to 189 after the company predicted record car and truck sales for the current model year.

Monarch Fine Foods was up 2¾ to 12½ following a takeover bid from Lever Brothers of Toronto.

Among declining issues, Fruehauf Trailer fell ¾ to 14. First-quarter profits were down. Versatile Manufacturing, also with reduced profits, fell 1½ to 10.

Both oil refiners and western oils posted strong gains.

Imperial, which reported increased first-quarter profits and was recommended by brokers, rose 3 points to 65. Canadian Superior, up 2¼ to 44¾, announced first-quarter profits of $1,900,000 compared with a loss for the same period last year.

DIVIDENDS

Algoma Steel, com 25 cents, payable June 28; record June 7; xd June 5.

Noranda Mines, 50 cents, payable June 14; record May 10; xd May 8.

WEEK IN U.S. BUSINESS

Tax Hike Pressure Grows

NEW YORK (AP)—The call for a tax increase coupled with a cut in government spending was sounded again last week by some of the United States' top money men. But Congress postponed taking any action.

The administration has asked repeatedly for a 10-per-cent income tax surcharge. Congress has declined to pass such legislation until the administration agrees to pare its spending. The measures are aimed at fighting inflation and cutting the dollar drain which has knocked the country's balance of payments out of kilter.

A House of Representatives Senate conference committee has adjourned until Tuesday its considerations of Senate-passed legislation that blends the surcharge with a spending limitation aimed at cutting $6,000,000,000 from the administration budget.

Support for a tax increase and a spending cut was voiced by the presidents of the two largest banks in the U.S.

Rudolph A. Peterson, president of the Bank of America, the largest, said: "Our government must come to the realization that, strong and powerful as we are, we cannot do everything at once without courting disaster."

URGENT NEED

David Rockefeller, president of Chase Manhattan Bank, said there is urgent need for a tax increase to reduce by half a federal budget deficit he predicts will grow to $20,000,000,000 this year.

Rockefeller also said it is necessary to slice government spending by "several billions more." The measures would not provide an instant cure for inflation or the balance of payments but would demonstrate the U.S. had the will and the capacity to "manage our affairs responsibly."

An optimistic economic note was sounded by Representative Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House ways and means committee.

Mills said "we have the strongest economy the world has ever known. We will be well advised to focus our attention on the vigorously expanding productive power of the United States and on the increasingly efficient use of that capability rather than on the day-to-day fluctuation of the price of gold on foreign markets."

Mills' statement was seen as an answer to a remark by William McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman, that the U.S. is "in the midst of the worst financial crisis since 1931."

Husky Oil Canada Profits Increase

CALGARY (CP) — Husky Oil Canada Ltd. has reported 1967 consolidated net earnings of $8,308,176, or $1.01 a share, up 28 per cent from $6,512,787 or 81 cents a share in 1966.

Board chairman Glenn E. Nielson said the increase was "particularly significant when it is recognized that in 1960, the year the Canadian and U.S. Husky companies were consolidated, the joint operations sustained a $2,250,000 loss."

Lack of Action on Convention Centre Rapped

A Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce director ticked off his fellow directors Friday for waffling the convention centre issue for 15 years.

Earlier, directors passed a resolution setting up a detailed Greater Victoria study of business tax and a proposed increase to cover convention promotion costs.

"Let's get busy and finish what we've started," said Pat Frumento. "This goes back 15 years . . . We set up committees and committees and then appoint committees to find out what the others are doing."

President William Armstrong submitted a chamber stand on the need of more information before it could endorse an increase in business tax, at the same time agreeing that businesses should bear responsibility for promotion funds.

Directors endorsed the spirit of Mr. Frumento's criticism. Mayor Fred Hawes, of Oak Bay, said it is up to directors to make a recommendation that will be in the best interests of all in the capital region.

The chamber-sponsored study would be made available to civic councils and businesses.

Mr. Frumento reported the results of an informal poll taken among 152 businesses. He said 91 were in favor of a business tax increase for convention promotion, 48 could not be contacted or could make no decision and 13 were opposed.

He urged that all chamber members be polled in connection with the study.

Under the heading of civic affairs, directors agreed to ask the Victoria medical profession to speak up on sewage disposal and pollution.

Clyde Savage said the group was "very disturbed about pollution in the lower Vancouver Island area. It wishes to commend the board of health for placing signs showing our polluted water area, and this in the face of opposition from factions who refuse to accept the problem.

EXERCISE IN FUTILITY

"The building of a convention centre, the talk of a beautiful city, clean-up of buildings and all other progressive ideas are an exercise in futility until the sewer problem is solved," the group chairman said.

In asking for a medical stand he noted, "They've been very silent."

The public will be asked to express itself on questions of general civic importance, including the most preferable type of sewage disposal, tour buses on the Causeway, demolition of Crystal Garden, increased transit fares, logs on beaches, backyard incinerators, business tax increase.

A meeting of newspaper and broadcasting representatives will discuss methods of presenting the questionnaire.

Tourist and convention advisory chairman Leslie Parkinson said his group had studied a number of other cities to see how they handle tourist and convention promotion.

In the majority of cases in North America, he said, the chamber of commerce operates the service, obtaining funds from subscriptions, assessments and in a few cases, room tax on hotels.

The group supports a further $50,000 for the use of Victoria Visitors' Bureau in promoting conventions, which would make its total budget $100,000. At present, the bureau receives funds from city hall via business tax.

Should a "room tax" be introduced here, Mr. Parkinson said, the group holds that the chamber should control the spending of revenues.

It also recommended a protest on behalf of the whole tourist industry be lodged by the chamber over provincial labor legislation making mandatory the payment of double-time-and-a-half for certain employees working statutory holidays.

Bonds Up Slightly

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian bond market was fractionally higher in light trading this week.

Long-term Canadas were up a point. The 7-per-cent April 1, 1973 issue gained 1¼ to 99⅜ bid and 99⅝ asked and the 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983 issue 1 to 79 bid and 79¼ asked.

Short-term Canadas were mixed in very light trading. The 6-per-cent April 1, 1971 issue dropped 25 cents to 98.55 bid and 98.65 asked but the 5½-per-cent April 1, 1969 issue was up 10 cents to 98.70 bid and 98.80 asked.

Provincials were up ½ to ¾ with the Ontario 7-per-cent Feb. 15, 1988 issue added ⅝ to 99¼ bid and 99½ asked.

Corporates were down with the Abitibi Paper 7¼-per-cent, 1987 issue losing 1 to 96½ bid and 98½ asked.

Day-to-day money was up ⅝ to 7⅛ per cent.

Ninety-one day treasury bills closed at 6.99 per cent and 182-day bills at 6.84, respectively compared with 6.93 and 6.84.

B.C. Tax Increase Delays Mine Project

TORONTO (CP) — R. V. Porritt, president of Noranda Mines Ltd., says an increase in B.C. mining taxes is partly to blame for continued deferment of development plans for a $30,000,000 low-grade copper mine in the Babine Lake area.

At the company's annual meeting, he said the B.C. government recently increased the provincial mining tax to 15 from 10 pr cent.

Oil Sands Interest Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters) —A large group of Japanese firms is working out a plan to extract oil from oil sands in Alberta, through a joint venture with an American firm, Mitsui and Co. Ltd.

For this purpose the group, including six major trading houses and seven insurance companies as well as the Japan Petroleum Exploration Corp. — JAPEX — is preparing to form an investment company here by July, Mitsui said.

It said JAPEX, which took the initiative in the plan, is negotiating with Tenneco Oil and Minerals of the U.S. on the proposed joint oil sand exploitation project through its fully-owned subsidiary in Canada, JAPEX Canada.

A survey made by the subsidiary shows the oil sand reserves owned by the American firm in the Athabasca region are believed to have big deposits capable of yielding 6,700,000,000 barrels of oil.

Mitsui said if negotiations with Tenneco proved successful, the joint firm would be set up to launch the exploration project later this year.

A pilot plant to extract oil from oil sand is being planned to be constructed in Alberta this year.

Mitsui declined to give any details on cost of the project but it said the cost would be considerable. It added the cost would include construction of a 950-mile pipeline to reach a shipping port on the Pacific coast.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Japanese Market Plays Big Role

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The importance of Japan as a market for British Columbia logs and lumber is illustrtated clearly by figures for water-borne shipments for March.

While most of the lumber shipped to overseas customers from B.C. ports is of cut dimensions or is in the form of manufactured plywood, Japanese customers prefer raw logs or rough-cut timbers which are then custom milled in Japan.

Kent

During March the offshore shipments slumped from 275.-206 million board feet a year ago to 249.257 million board feet.

Shipments to Japan fell off by 31.8 million board feet, by far the largest difference in comparable statistics for the period and for various other customer countries.

This happened despite marginal increase in purchases by such other good customers as Australia, France, Germany, the United Kingdom and Holland.

However, for the first quarter of 1968 the gross export figure is higher than for the same three months last year — 714.681 million board feet against 705,859 million feet.

★ ★ ★

A slowdown in the latter part of 1967 will continue well into 1968, according to president R. M. Brink, of Johnston Terminals and Storage Ltd.

His company's drastic slide in net income for fiscal 1967 was due to a softer provincial economy, higher labor costs and problems resulting from the integration of the company with acquired operations such as West Coast Freight Ltd. and Shorty's Transport Ltd., during 1966.

Productivity improvement last year was insufficient to outpace the $1.4 million increase in Johnston's wage bill, he said.

Total revenue from operations amounted to $17.58 million, compared with $15.77 million in 1966. The net was $164,657 or 23 cents per share, against $527,959, or $1.13 a share, when fewer shares were outstanding.

Incomes included $28,543 (five cents a share) from the sale of property and equipment. The same source the year before produced $132,408.

Mr. Brink said with a fully integrated, modern operation in B.C. and Alberta, the company has a good long-term outlook.

A booklet entitled Financial Information Regarding the Province of British Columbia has just been published by the minister of finance.

It shows sources of tax revenue and where government expenditure lies, stressing such Bennett policies as "pay as you go budgeting" and "debt retirement."

It also compares a number of taxes — motor fuels, income, sales, cigarette, hospital insurance, auto licence, poll tax and driver's licence — with those levied in the nine other provinces. Against them, B.C. looks pretty good, although several rates are equivalent with other provinces, or, like others, no tax at all is levied in some categories.

Noticeably absent is a comparison of liquor taxes.

A $1.75 jump in the price of Calgary Power common stock at Montreal Stock Exchange Friday, putting it at $23.50, could be attributed to no corporate developments known to president A. W. Howard.

But Royal Securities Corp. Ltd. a few days ago published a research study that predicted a 7-7½ per cent per year earnings improvement starging next year as power generating facilities are upgraded.

The company is regarded as Canada's largest privately-owned electric utility.

A current assessment of the outlook for world prosperity is offered by Pemberton Securities Ltd., which says today's economic climate precludes the sort of catastrophe which was experience in 1929-39.

This is, in effect, replying to the doom-criers who have periodically predicted another Great Crash because of the unparallelled prosperity of the last three decades.

Pembertons cite several factors that go against the outlook: government participation in the economy of nations, the biggest business of them all; transfer payments of such things as unemployment insurance and government pension funds, which were unknown in North American 35 years ago but which now exist in more than 20 Western nations; bank deposit insurance, all of which lend stability to incomes.

In addition, stock market trading requirements are much tighter. For instance, up to 90 per cent of some trading was on margin, whereas the limit permited today is 50 per cent.

Also, in the 1929 era, buyers were willing to pay exhorbitant interest charges for their capital borrowed for speculative purposes. Top-heavy, the system collapsed.

Today, despite high interest rates, demand for housing and consumer goods is high and the prospects for growth appear good—quite unlike the general aura of the Great Depression.

Tire Recall Sought By Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.) is seeking the recall of the Firestone Tire Co's wide oval tires, citing reports of problems with them.

Many motorists have experienced severe sidewall cracking and sudden failure of the tire, Nelson said.

His remarks were in testimony prepared for a Senate commerce committee hearing today on traffic safety.

Nelson urged passage of his bill to set up a nationwide tire recall system like one in operation to correct defects in cars.

Nelson said Firestone is aware of the problems with its wide oval tires and has moved to correct it. But, he added, the firm was not doing anything about tires already on the road.

Nelson said that March 22 he asked the national traffic safety bureau to begin proceedings to recall the tire and the agency is conducting an investigation.

Plant Expansion Completed by Shell

CALGARY (CP) — Shell Canada Ltd. has completed expansion of processing facilities at two gas plants in Alberta, the Waterton plant near Pincher Creek and the Jumping Pound plant near here, gas manager R. S. Aberg has announced.

At Waterton, the maximum production rate was increased to 170,000,000 cubic feet of sales gas per day from 120,000,000 cubic feet.

At Jumping Pound, the maximum production rate was increased to 160,000,000 cubic feet per day from 100,000,000 cubic feet of sales gas per day to process gas from the West Jumping Pound field.

Dam Construction Ahead of Schedule

VANCOUVER (CP) — Early completion of the High Arrow Dam on the Columbia River and partial storage of this year's run-off will result in substantial power benefits, British Columbia Hydro said Thursday.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, Hydro co-chairman, said in a statement that partial storage behind the High Arrow Dam, five miles upstream from Castlegar, B.C. is made possible by rapid progress of the construction program, about four months ahead of schedule.

Dr. Keenleyside said it is expected that High Arrow Dam will be declared operational this December.

This would result in early payment by the United States of flood control benefits. Such benefits are due as each of the three Columbia storage dams is declared operational. The Duncan Dam was completed last July but the Mica Dam is not scheduled for completion until 1973.

Under the Columbia agreement between Canada and the U.S., High Arrow is required to be operating by April 1, 1969. B.C. Hydro will receive B.C.'s share of the downstream benefits resulting from storage prior to that date.

Downstream power benefits after April 1, 1969, resulting from storage at High Arrow were sold to the United States for a 30-year period.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Monday and Tuesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, April 29 and 30.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist Ian Edgar to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Edgar will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Executive House, 777 Douglas St.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Edgar," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all".

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to over-come the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything'. So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary: that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Edgar in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Executive House Monday or Tuesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Edgar's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be ambarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Province of Toronto?

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto and Montreal should each become provinces, or at least occupy a third level of government separate from the federal and provincial, a York University economist said Friday.

Brian Dickson of Toronto told architects, engineers and others attending a conference on living conditions that large cities should have more autonomy, and could even return to the ancient concept of the city state.

Architect Paul O. Trepanier, mayor of Granby, Que., told delegates that municipalities urgently need access to more sources of revenue.

He said government revenues should be split four ways, adding regional government to the present federal, provincial and municipal administrations.

Economist George J. Wesley of suburban Westmount denounced the multiplication of local administrations.

In metropolitan Montreal, he said, there are 71 mayors and councils, 71 police chiefs and fire chiefs.

MAN HELD NEIGHBOR UNDER TRAIN—POLICE

DUMBARTON, Scotland (Reuters) — Neil Gallagher, 41, will be tried May 6 on charges of murdering his neighbor by holding him down in the path of an oncoming train. He is charged with pushing John Douglas Connell, 35, onto the railway tracks and holding him in the path of the train. Connell died a day later.

Fraser Bridge Promised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A four-lane bridge across the Fraser River between Vancouver and Richmond was announced today by Premier W. A. C. Bennett in a letter to Mayor Tom Campbell.

Construction would start "in the early future," said the letter.

The bridge, initial plans of which were announced some time ago, would replace the present Fraser Street Bridge, whose centre span has been damaged frequently in recent years by boats striking the main pilings.

The letter did not mention the cost, but the mayor estimated it between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000 and said he expects the province to pay for it because it would be an intermunicipal bridge.

The northern end of the bridge would be located in Vancouver South provincial riding, where a byelection will be held May 21.

ISLAND GOLF CHAMP CLASHES WITH CARROLL

EXPERIENCED WAKEHAM FACES ROOKIE PRO

Flip Coin for One Semi, Compare Strength in Other

Vaughan Trapp, 23, the defending champion . . .

Laurie Carroll, 38, a two-time winner . . .

Bill Wakeham, 27, possessor of the most impressive credentials . . .

And Earl Davies, 24, with nothing to lose . . .

Professionals all, they make up the field for Sunday's semi-final action in the 19th annual Times' Vancouver Island Open golf championships. The long, narrow and tough Royal Colwood course is the site for the 36-hole matches.

It will be Wakeham against Davies, starting their rounds at 9:46 a.m. and 1:46 p.m. Trapp and Carroll tee off eight minutes later.

Clearing the way will be the handicap division semi-finals for the Hugh Francis Trophy. One sends Cedar Hill's Bob Herbertson against 1962 handicap champion Jack Storrie of Gorge Vale. Colwood clubmates Gene Williams and Bob Malcolm tangle in the other semi-final.

The stakes are the fanciest prizes and two trophies that will be presented following the 36-hole finals at Gorge Vale on May 5.

Trapp and the experienced Carroll, who won The Daily Times Trophy in 1958 and 1964, step off on equal footing. It's a worthy semi-final, the betting about even, and you can take your choice.

Wakeham is a more obvious choice in the other semi-final. Winner of the Ontario Open last year, he has been a dominant performer in the Island Open since his junior days. Wakeham has taken "some of the action" in The Times' match-play event in seven of the past nine years.

"The Rock" won all in 1959 and 1963, was the runner-up in 1962 and 1964, and claimed or shared medallist honors in 1961-67-68.

Davies, the personable assistant pro in Bill Court's Colwood shop, is the only one of the four pros who lacks tournament credentials.

But if hard work deserves a reward, the Colwood bachelor who "retired" out of the navy at 20 may get his dues Sunday.

Few in Victoria work as hard at their games as does Davies. After "about nine or 10 hours" of bustling around Colwood, Davies usually drives to Carroll's driving range on Douglas Street. Earl then spends an hour hitting balls, concentrating on "any club that shows signs of weakness."

The Davies routine also includes a "night or two" at the YMCA each week, and a workout with weights.

He's without credentials, but there is a dedication in Davies that might strong-arm Wakeham out of the picture.

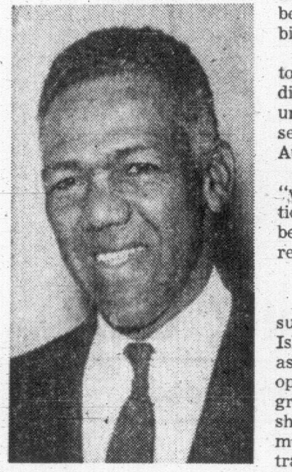
'IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Wrapping Up the Week's Work . . .

It's a rare day when words of praise are whispered in an umpire's ear. This is one of those days.

Victoria's Doug Hudlin "worked" the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa., last year. Our man in Williamsport did his job so well that he has been invited to take another big assignment in mid-August.



DOUG HUDLIN

Mickey McConnel, a director of Little League's senior division, has asked Hudlin to umpire in the 1968 senior series at Gary, Indiana, on Aug. 12-17.

Hudlin, McConnell, writes, "would be an excellent addition to our staff and it would be desirable to have Canada represented."

Speaking of niceties, the success of the Vancouver Island Shooting League has astounded even the most optimistic founder within the group. Over 100 shooters showed up for one recent meet. The same event attracted about 30 persons three years ago.

The crowning glory, for the Island League, came earlier this year when the Shooting Federation of Canada decided to adopt Vancouver Island's high-power rifle rules as the basis for a national standard.

The mushrooming federation caters to all sporting rifle enthusiasts. Before formation of the Island league, anyone interested in target shooting could choose trap and skeet, join the service rifle ranks (Dominion of Canada Rifle Association) or try the small bore (.22) field.

In many cases, the average game hunter shied away from DCRA ranges for two reasons: DCRA membership requires some sort of military affiliation, and shooting is restricted to service calibre guns.

The Island league opened doors for the average hunter. He now can take up target shooting with the weapon that is available.

When Penticion Broncos finally wrapped up the B.C. Junior Hockey League championship, manager George Stolle promptly declared Victoria Cougars' Murray Finaly as a "playoff eligible."

The Cougar goalkeeper, settling into a new job, asked Penticton to guarantee him some playoff action before he took a leave of absence. Penticton coach Jack Taggart wouldn't make the guarantee, and for that reason Finaly didn't turn up in the Western semi-final series against Edmonton Movers.

Penticton then recruited Wally Denault of Kamloops.

The B.C. champions knocked off the Movers in five games and now are engaging the strong Estevan Bruins in the Abbott Cup (western) final. Friends who caught some of the Penticton-Edmonton action are of the opinion the B.C. team should have won in four straight. Denault, they say, didn't impress. A sweep-out now seems to be the fate in store for Penticton.

Good goaltending is essential in the playoffs. Denault isn't quite in Finlay's class. Even with Finlay in the lineup, Penticton would still rate as underdogs against Estevan. Still one must suppose that Finaly could have helped Broncos to a better showing against the Saskatchewan club.

Penticton's showing is valued by other executives and supporters of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, especially after Estevan manager-coach Scotty Munro issued some highly critical remarks about the calibre of the hockey in this province.

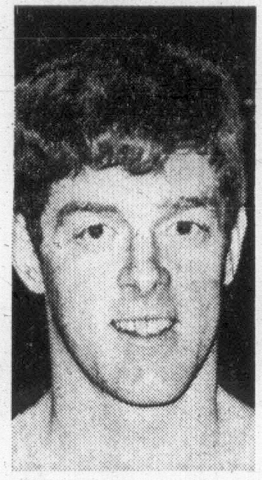
ISLAND EVENT AT GUN CLUB

Bert Thomas will be defending the title he won last year when the annual Vancouver Island trapshooting championships are held Sunday at Victoria Gun Club on Albert Head Road.

Competition starts at 9 a.m. and gunners will fire in singles, doubles and handicap events in three classes. Ample parking is available for spectators.



TOP CONTENDER for open backstroke honors in two-day B.C. indoor age-group and open swimming championships at Crystal Garden is Grant Treloar of sponsoring Victoria Amateur Swimming Club. Finals of today's portion of meet start at 6 p.m. On Sunday, heats start at 9 a.m., finals at 5 p.m.

Final Day At Sandown Cancelled

Monday's Program Eliminated Because of Lack of Entries

By BILL WALKER

It's so long Sandown and hello Exhibition Park for horsemen and their ilk.

The 11th day of the Sandown Park spring thoroughbred racing season, scheduled for Monday, has been cancelled because of lack of entries.

Only 22 horses were nominated when the entry box was passed this morning and officials had no recourse but to cancel the card.

As a matter of fact, it probably was goodbye Sandown last fall when it was decided to hold a spring meeting at the Sidney oval.

Present plans call for the spring meeting to be run again next year, director of publicity Harry Filion announced this morning.

"As far as I know, there definitely is no thought of abandoning the meet next year," he said.

Last fall, when the question of a spring meeting was discussed racing officials declared that they would like to give it a try and indicated there was no move afoot to cut Sandown off altogether.

All that was left was today's running of the Vancouver Island Championship, which also has a last-minute disappointment when the four-year-old Jeffaway was declared this morning.

Racing officials stated Friday that they would make every effort to fill Monday's card, even "to beating the bushes," but it is obvious the horsemen weren't of the same mind.

SHIPPING OUT

Some began shipping out Friday night while others were making plans to ship out on the weekend to be on hand for the opening of the Exhibition Park season on May 3.

The economics of the situation are quite simple:

- ● Horsemen didn't want to come to the Island.
- ● The fans stayed away in large numbers.

The weather was cold — one of the coldest Aprils in several years.

- ● And the Mutuel play took a big tumble.

Horsemen who didn't come (and therein lies the major problems) did not want to risk injuries to their horses for a purse of $400.

Not when they could stay home and probably take the same purse, minus the travelling, costs and risks involved, but plus the bonuses that go with increased mutuel play which obviously will be higher on the mainland.

Besides, with 101 days to go as compared to only 11 days here, the pot had to appear more lucrative.

However, as one trainer pointed out; "The money may look better on the surface, but it looks better to more horsemen and will be that much tougher to get."

WEATHER OBJECTED

Fans who didn't come to the meeting didn't want to risk influenza or numb fingers.

For it WAS cold, for April, and the attendance proved it with a drop of 700 in the daily average. Naturally the mutuel handle drop was comparable although final figures are not available.

Now take Ex Park as the alternative.

This year the ground floor of the grandstand has been glassed in to go with the clubhouse

BLUES MAKE CHANGES

Don't Expect Home Support

ST. LOUIS (CP)—"It's our home game so maybe they'll cheer for us tonight," Walter Rush Jr. said on the evening of the fourth game of the National Hockey League semi-finals between St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars.

President of the North Stars, Bush was referring to the fact that tonight's contest is a home game for Minnesota even though it will be played in St. Louis.

Minnesota was forced to schedule one of its home games in the best-of-seven series in St. Louis when the North Stars' home rink was booked this week by an ice show.

"We'll be wearing our home uniforms, we'll appear last in the lineups, we'll provide the pucks and we'll get the advantage on line changes," Bush explained. "All we need now are the fans to cheer for us."

A QUIET AFFAIR

There wasn't much cheering Thursday in St. Louis as the stars whipped the Blues 5-1 to take a 2-1 lead in the series. Most of the 13,000 fans sat glumly as the Blues floundered against a strong Minnesota offence.

The North Stars still have Bill Collins on the injured list—he suffered a cut right elbow and severed a ligament in the series opener—but St. Louis is healthier and coach Scotty Bowman is planning a series of lineup shifts.

Instead of the usual six defencemen, he plans to go with only Doug Harvey, Bob and Barclay Plager and Ray Fortin, dropping Noel Picard and moving Jim Roberts to the forward line, possibly with Red Berenson.

St. Louis also will dress Ron Schock for the first time.

As well, Gary Veneruzzo will be back in action after missing the third game with a badly-bruised right shoulder.

"We haven't been hitting," Bowman said Friday after putting his players through a stiff workout. "There were too many guys just standing around," he told the players.

GUMP WORSLEY

Gump Doubtful Starter

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens meet Chicago Black Hawks in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup playoff Sunday afternoon, but chances are slim that goaltender Gump Worsley will be in the nets for the Montrealers.

Worsley, 39-year-old veteran of 19 seasons of pro hockey, suffered a sprained neck Thursday night in Chicago as the Hawks won their first game of the series 2-1.

Canadiens won the first three contests in the series by 9-2, 4-1 and 4-2 scores. Sunday's fifth game will be televised nationally in the United States by the Columbia Broadcasting System starting at 11 a.m. PDT, with the CBC picking up the game 30 minutes later.

Worsley, removed from the game on a stretcher, was taken to hospital for preliminary examination. But he caught the train to Montreal with the team. Here he went to hospital for a further check and wound up with a protective collar around his neck.

"They've put me in a horse collar just to rest the neck for a day," Worsley said. "It's a little sore and stiff, but I'm going for another treatment Saturday morning and maybe I'll be able to skate.

"There's nothing broken or anthing like that. I hope to play, but it's too soon to tell."

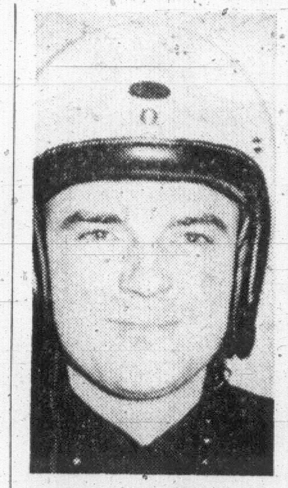
Brooks Leads Golf Tourney

Boyd Brooks fired a 77 at Gorge Vale Golf Club to take low-gross honors in the Canadian Armed Forces golf Association's monthly tournament.

Ted Langlois (79) and Wally Propp (84) finished second and third.

R. Weber was the low-net winner with 72, one stroke ahead of Gene Sheplawy and Ron Kerr.

Special prizes were won by Bill Big Canoe, J. Davies and D. Parks.



BIDDING for share of prize money against visiting drivers in sprint car meet tonight at Western Speedway will be Fred Best, one of four Victoria pilots entered in racing meet, which starts with time trials at 7:30.

HOMER LIST

Mick Joins Ted

By Associated Press

The go-go Yankees and their mini-bats still get a lift every now and then from Mickey Mantle, who's not quite ready to forget the long ball fashion of the past.

New York did it both ways Friday night, riding five stolen bases and a light attack to a 3-0 lead over Detroit Tigers and then getting a two-run Mantle homer to wrap up a 5-0 three-hitter for Mel Stottlemyre.

The homer was the 521st of Mantle's career, tying him for fourth place on the all-time list with Ted Williams. Ahead are Jimmy Foxx's 534, Willie Mays' 565 and Babe Ruth's 714.

In other American League games Friday, Chicago White Sox halted its season-opening 10-game losing streak by nipping Minnesota Twins 3-2, Boston Red Sox rapped Baltimore Orioles 6-3, Washington Senators outlasted Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 14 innings and Oakland Athletics outslugged California Angels 8-4.

DAVIS HOMERS

Mickey, long bothered by bad legs, showed the go-go game had even reached him when he bunted foul on a third strike in the first inning. "I decided to drag it but the pitch was too high and it was too late to change my move," Mantle explained.

Tommy Davis homered for Chicago and Minnesota pitcher Dave Boswell's throwing error set up the other two White Sox runs in the sixth.

Lee Stange pitched six innings of relief allowing just three hits and Mike Andrews' seventh-inning homer broke a tie helping the Red Sox past the Orioles.

Ed Stroud scored Washington's tying run in the ninth and then doubled home the winner in the 14th against Cleveland.

Tony Horton had a two-run shot and Max Alvis rapped four hits for Cleveland.

ROOKIE CONNECTS

Luis Alcaraz, a 26-year-old rookie third baseman, slammed a three-run homer with two out in the ninth to carry Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-1 victory over San Francisco Giants in the National League.

In other senior circuit action, Cincinnati Reds took advantage of the New York Mets' loose fielding and Tony Perez hitting for a 3-1 triumph and Sonny Jackson's bat backed Pat Jarvis as Atlanta tripped Philadelphia 3-1.

In the afternoon, the Chicago Cubs set Houston to its sixth straight loss 3-2 on Lou Johnson's run-scoring single in the ninth and the four-hit pitching of Bill Hands.

The Dodgers mobbed Alcaraz after his first major league homer snatched the victory, but the skinny Puerto Rican was the most excited. Instead of trotting around the bases, he ran full speed.

ROCKS SHORTHANDED

Dave Pleased Despite Loss

HANEY—Victoria Shamrocks, late in arriving and light in experienced players, were clipped 13-8 by the fast-starting New Westminster Salmonbellies here Friday night in an exhibition lacrosse game.

Shamrocks, who lost a 9-7 decision to the same club and a brawling exhibition last Saturday at Nanaimo, were delayed when a charter aircraft, on the way to pick them up at Patricia Bay, landed in Active Pass to offer assistance to the crew of a blazing fishing boat.

Salmonbellies built up a 5-1 lead in the opening period and were never in serious trouble although the Rocks threatened to stage a comeback in the second period.

Ian Bull, who scored four times in the third period, and Paul Parnell, Larry Henry and Ed Goss, each with two goals, paced Westminster.

PICKED UP JUNIORS

Ranjit Dillon and junior Ken Alexander were standouts for Victoria and each connected for two goals while singles went to Vern Black, Bob Webber, Ron Usselman and Tom Black.

Webber and Usselman were two of four Coquitlam juniors used by Rocks, who had only three members of last year's team in action as injuries, illness and Friday-night jobs that kept six players on the Island left them shorthanded.

Despite the deficit, Victoria coach Dave Unwin was pleased with his club.

"I was happy with the results," Unwin said. "I thought we'd be bombed. There was a big improvement in ball control and passing over last Saturday."

Unwin expects to have almost all his regulars in action Monday when the Rocks play their final game before the National Lacrosse Association season opens. Victoria will play Vancouver at North Vancouver.

He was particularly pleased with the way the Rocks performed when the clubs were at unequal strength. The Rocks scored three times while they had a manpower advantage and three times while they were shorthanded.

Open Tennis Seems Smash Hit

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — British tennis officials said today that the world's first open tournament has succeeded beyond their wildest dreams.

Australians Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, old sparring partners of the professional circuit, faced each other in the final for the first prize of $2,400. That was as expected.

But tennis organizers did not expect such a response from the public — or the dramatic defeats of professionals by amateurs.

Derek Hardwick, chairman of the British Lawn Tennis Association, said: "We expected open tennis to be a success, but it has turned out to be a bonanza.

"About 20,000 people have watched the first five days of play, and that is twice as many as we have had at this event in the past."

Mark Cox 24-year-old British amateur, sensationally knocked out professionals Pancho Gonzales and Roy Emerson before falling to Laver Friday.

Both Laver and Rosewall reached the final without dropping a set.

Against Laver, in a match of southpaws, Cox never had a chance.

The 29-year-old pro hit deep passing shots down the lines with uncanny accuracy and never once failed to put away a smash.

Rosewall routed Andres Gimeno of Spain 6-2, 6-1, 6-3 in the other semi-final, an all-professional duel.

Laver gave a ruthless, machine-like display against Cox.

His backhands were so powerful that Cox, bravely going to the net, was beaten by the sheer pace of the ball.

Champs Collect Medals In City Two-Ball Event

Defending champions "Mike" Price and Lil Thirlwell picked up where they left off last year and won medal honors Friday as the qualifying round of the annual Victoria and District women's foursomes event was played at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

The Uplands parners set the pace for the large field as they fired alternate shots to record a net 77½ over the hilly Gorge course.

Finishing in the runner-up spot with a net 80 was the Cedar Hill combination of Elsie Hess and Peggy Matthews.

Sixteen pairs qualified for championship play in the first round of match play Monday at Victoria Golf Club.

. . . SANDOWN

section; lights have been tested for night racing which will be the weekday vogue; a large statue of George Royal adorns the infield; the flowers are in full bloom. and the swans are likely in the pond.

On the other hand, Victorians this year did see some fine two-year-olds like Jet Puff and Michael B . . . qualified seasoned campaigners Little Choo Choo, Feudal Lord, Coolie How, Serenade in Red, good ones all.

RIDERS EAGER

And besides, the jockeys came to work in the spring, a facet not necessarily in evidence at all times in the fall.

In fairness, too, it must be agreed that every effort was made by racing secretary Stan Goddard to provide a contentious card and, when the entries were available, this was so.

Certainly the final analysis isn't complete, nor has the decision finally been made for next year although it has been implied that "Sandown in the Spring" still is the key for a successful meeting on the mainland in the summer.

Director of racing Merv Peters said recently he was disappointed more horsemen didn't take advantage of the meeting which carried no penalty for future conditions for races won.

This obviously presented many owners with an excellent opportunity for purse money while getting their stock in shape, he said.

He also has been quoted as saying "with better weather there may be a whole new attitude toward the meet next year."

ORITES PREVAIL

From the mutuel department, local aficienados shouldn't really have any complaints, for the public picks have come down more than 50 per cent of the time.

This compares with an average of 30 per cent around the nation.

Friday, before another slim crowd of 1,639 which wagered a less than modest $55,771, five of the choices in the seven races made it to the winner's circle and one ran second.

The only longshot of the day was Kinco Scott ($10.40) in the first with Gordon Lanoway riding his first of two winners. Copper Eagle was Lanoway's other success at $4.40 in the third.

The featured North and South Agricultural Society event went to the veteran Wallaroo with Maurice Milne up. The mutuel payoff was $6.10.

THREE CLAIMS

Another exciting bit was the exacto which surprised with a $67.40 price when favored Charlie My Boy combined with Mike L.

Meanwhile there were three claims.

On The Go was taken for $1,500 out of the fifth by M. Cojocar, and Right Cab from the same race by D. Brown. J. Donaldson is the trainer.

The other claim came in the seventh with Old Fort, a winner at $3.80, going to Cedar Lane Farm, W. R. Olson trainer.

Sprinters Set Pace for Vics In Dual Meet

Victoria High School athletes dominated sprint events Friday and paced their school to a 149-125 triumph over Claremont High in a dual track and field meet at Vic High.

Vicki Hammond won the girls' 100 and 220-yard dashes and the long jump and Bob Hissink took both boys' sprint events to account for five of Vic High's 16 victories in the 26 events.

Claremont had an edge in field events but wins by Shannon Bourne, Jerry Vanderjagt and Mike Chornaby boosted the Vic High point total.

Argos Trade Three Players For Buchanan

TORONTO (CP) — Halfback Ed Buchanan, for five years a standout running back with Saskatchewan Roughriders, came to Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference Friday in a three-for-one unconditional trade.

Buchanan, a Canadian all-star in 1964 with the Western Conference Roughriders, was obtained in return for Canadian defensive tackle John Vilunas and imports James Earl Smith, a defensive lineman, and Skippy Spruill, a middle linebacker.

Buchanan, 29, a six-foot one-inch 186-pounder, built his reputation at Saskatchewan on speed. In 1967 he compiled 1,390 yards rushing — second-best in Canada — but caught 36 of 38 passes for another 681 yards.

Meet organizers are expecting at least 200 contestants with Cowichan Valley entering 54 athletes and Nanaimo 20 in competition against a large Victoria contingent and other Island groups.

'Head Haunting' Directs Totems To Second Title

PORTLAND—Call it "icing-on-the-cake" or "salt-in the wound." However stale the expressions are, everything seemed sweet as honey for veteran Western Hockey League goaltender Don Head.

Traded to Seattle by Portland coach Hal Laycoe, Head came back to haunt his former boss and mates as Totems wrapped up their second straight WHL championship Friday.

Head posted his second shutout in the best-of-seven final as Seattle blanked the Buckaroos 4-0 to retain the Lester Patrick Cup. Seattle defeated the league-winners 4-1 in series' games.

STRONG SUPPORT

Head had superb help from his defensive players as he had to knock away only 20 shots during the game. Seattle got 30 shots on Portland's goal.

Marc Boileau was Seattle's big gun, getting a goal in the first and second period. Bill Dineen scored a second-period goal and Chuck Holmes wrapped up the scoring in the final frame. Defenceman Larry Hale was Seattle's playmaker, getting credit for assists on three of the goals.

FIRST PERIOD
1. Seattle, Boileau (Hale, Leonard), 5:56.
Penalties—Larose (S) 6:37; Johnston (P) 14:45.
SECOND PERIOD
2. Seattle, Dineen (Lund, Hale), 10:09.
3. Seattle, Boileau (Holmes, Hale), 12:42.
Penalty—Leach (P) 4:45.
THIRD PERIOD
4. Seattle, Holmes (Larose, Leonard), 4:29.
Penalties—Boileau (S) 3:32; Chiz (S) 15:49.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Final winner in this season's Times' Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Gordon Hill (above) of Duncan. Although his total score was tied by Victoria's Bob Manchester, Hill captured men's tenpin award in 27th week of annual contest on basis of his highest single game (246). Gordon added games of 203 and 180 for three-game total of 629 in Mixed League at Duncan Bowling Centre. All award winners are eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 12.

Minor Lacrosse Workouts Sunday

Practices for the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association are scheduled for Saturday at Stevenson Park. Tykes start at 9:30 a.m., novices at 12:30 p.m. and pee wees at 2:30.

Junior "B's" will practise Sunday at Hampton Park, starting at 10 a.m.

Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association has scheduled a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the McPherson Lounge at Royal Athletic Park.

Barber Sharp Figure After Changing Style

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Miller Barber changed his style in the $100,000 Byron Nelson golf classic Friday and his adjustment brought him into the lead at 36 holes with 135—five under par.

"I first realized that I had been hitting the ball at a slant and it was going to the right when I drove into the water on 14," said the balding 37-year-old who is a heavy money-winner on the tour.

"So I started hitting it perpendicular and never had any trouble thereafter."

Barber banged a birdie from six feet on 15 and got two more birdies on the outgoing nine. He was playing the last nine first under a plan being used to better handle the big field.

McGOWAN HOT

He fired a two-under par 68 and took a one-stroke lead going into the third round over Jack McGowan, who set a competitive course record of 65 in pulling into a second-place tie with Harold Henning of South Africa.

Henning had a 69, with a fabulous putting job getting him out of trouble. He had only 25 putts for the day, the best exhibition of the tournament thus far and second best on the tour for the year.

McGowan and Henning were tied at 136.

PLAYER HAS TROUBLE

Gary Player, another South African, had led the tournament through its first round with a 66, which was the competitive record over the 7,086-yard Preston Trail course until McGowan cracked it. Player had his troubles Friday, including three-putting from six feet on one hole. He managed only 71 and fell to a tie for fourth with Jack Montgomery, who shot par 70. Each had 137.

Arnold Palmer continued to shoot good golf despite a painful hip injury and his 68 pulled him into a tie for sixth at 139 with Kermit Zarley, who carded a 68.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg had a 73-73—146.

The cutoff left the field at 73, meaning 74 were trimmed when 147 was necessary to qualify for the final 36 holes.

and from all accounts it's a whispering bomb! HERE IS A CAR THAT IS APPRECIATED BY SPORT CAR BUFF AND THE ECONOMY MINDED.
"it rides like a dream. It has a surprising amount of room inside. It gets great gas mileage. It's finished inside and out like a Mercedes-Benz, but doesn't cost very much. Priced from $3295. All those qualifications are designed to earn BMW a permanent place in the Consumer 'Hall of Fame' —and for the sports car buff here's an eye-opener. The way it's geared it just seems to wind forever —it'll actually turn 60 mph in second gear, an easy 80 mph in third. Top speed (which doubles as a cruising speed) is a shade over a hundred and nothing in the running gear chassis or engine ever gives the impression that it's being worked too hard.

COPPER EAGLE showed most speed when break came but had to be strongly handled all the way to hold short margin at finish. EASY ANNA moved up to challenge for lead turning for home but gave rider trouble all through stretch keeping her straight and had she run through, possibly might have won. STORMY AFFAIR broke slowly but was going fastest of all on rail at end and was picking up leaders with every stride through final sixteenth. VAIN VAN was closing well. SURREY GOLD was dropping back at finish.

Vollmer 10 Strokes Behind Trial Leader

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Jack Ewing, a young California businessman bidding for a shot at golf, fired a five-under-par 67 Friday to move into second place in the Professional Golfers Association's approved tournament player qualifying school.

The 15 top golfers after 144 holes will be qualified to join the national tour. Of the 83 golfers who began the stiff test, 80 remained Friday.

First day co-leader Lawrence (Bubba) O'Hearn of Dartmouth, N.S., shot a one-under 71 Friday for a total 139, two strokes off the lead pace held for the second day by Bob Dickson of Tulsa, Okla.

Dickson had a 68-69—137, seven under par for the two days. Dickson was the 1967 U.S. and British amateur champion.

Philippe Giroux of Montreal was in a five-way tie at 144 while Kenneth Fulton of Trail B.C., had 145. Wayne Vollmer, the Vancouverite who Thursday shot the tournament's first ever hole-in-one, was in at 147 with rounds of 73-74.

Penticton Club Bows But Impresses Pilots

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Penticton Broncos head to Estevan, Sask., today, two games behind in the best-of-seven Western Canada junior hockey finals—but they're happy.

"I am happy we showed Scotty Munro we can play hockey," said Broncos manager George Stolle after Penticton lost 5-4 to Estevan in the second game of the series Friday night.

He was referring to remarks made by Estevan's manager Munro, after Penticton dropped the series opener 3-0 Wednesday, that Broncos played a lower standard of hockey than Prairie teams.

Winner of the series that resumes at Estevan Sunday meets the eastern champion for the Memorial Cup. The fourth and fifth games are scheduled Monday and Tuesday.

PLEASES HIM

After the smarting Penticton squad skated to an early 2-1 edge in Friday night's game and kept the pressure on Estevan in a late rally, Munro said:

"I was very pleased to see Penticton play so well. It helps our club by making the players work harder."

Right winger Bob Mowat sparked the Penticton attack with three goals, sharing in the first period outburst with Reg Cherenko before Estevan got on the scoreboard with a marker from Jim Harrison.

Estevan's Moser sat out a minor two-minute penalty in the dying minutes and Penticton put the pressure on for the tying goal.

But Bruins goalie Gord Kopp blocked a half dozen close range potential goals to preserve the Estevan victory.

Harrison (again), Bob Pichie, Ernie Moser and Greg Sheppard scored Estevan's other goals.

Penticton took the play to Estevan, particularly in the first frame when Bruins' goalie Gord Kopp made 14 stops. Broncos' Wally Denault was called on to make only three stops in the period.

Kopp turned aside a total of 30 in the game and Denault 18.

Niagara Goalie Charged

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — The upstart Niagara Falls Flyers, newly-crowned kings of the Ontario Junior Hockey League, move into Quebec Sunday to meet Verdun Maple Leafs in the best-of-five Eastern Canada Memorial Cup final.

The Flyers, fourth-place finishers in the regular Ontario schedule, eliminated the first-place Kitchener Rangers with a 5-3 win Friday and a 4-3-1 edge in the best-of-seven final.

Flyers' goalie Phil Myre was a standout and a crowd of 4,258 fans gave him a standing ovation when he left the ice.

The goaltender had been involved in a scuffle with a fan in Kitchener on Thursday and was served a warrant Friday charging him with assault.

The fan, Earl Klingbil of Guelph, alleges the Niagara Falls goalie hit him over the head with a stick.

RUSSELL SPARKS CELTIC TRIUMPH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Russell turned in a spectacular defensive performance which, coupled with some Boston sharpshooting, brought the Celtics a 127-119 victory over Los Angeles Lakers Friday night at Boston.

The triumph gave Boston a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven final for the National Basketball Association championship.

Russell contributed 25 points on close-in shots while controlling the backboards.

John Havelick (27 points), Larry Siegfried (26), Sam Jones (20), and Bailey Howell supported Russell with spectacular outside shooting in the balanced Celtic attack while Jerry West paced the Lakers with 33.

In the best-of-seven American Basketball Association final, Pittsburgh deadlocked the series at two games each Thursday night by nipping New Orleans 106-105 at New Orleans.

Honor Isn't Enough To Save Peregrines

Photos and Article

By Dave Hancock

Island View Wildlife Research Centre, Saanichton

HELP is the call of the peregrine falcon — in this case a fully-feathered but immature member of the declining specie.

The world's largest known nesting density of peregrine falcons is found in B.C. among the pristine luxuriant wilderness of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

For nearly 4,000 years, since the Mongols of Central Asia first pursued game with trained hawks and falcons, man has honored these birds' skill and their courage, and for procurement of meat and for sport.

But honor and good wishes are not enough.

Once enjoying the widest world distribution of any bird, the numbers of peregrine falcons have been greatly reduced in recent years. Gone are the falcons over much of northern Europe and England. Once a common breeder in the eastern United States, a recent survey showed that the peregrine falcon had become extinct east of the Rockies and south of James Bay.

However pessimistic, perhaps the realistic approach is that peregrine falcons will probably become extinct in the wild in not much more than 10 years.

Causes are varied but all have to do with man.

Easily Found

Major reasons are destruction and disturbances of suitable nesting habitats and pollution of the environment. Being bold, the falcon protests vigorously when its nest is approached, thus identifying its nesting location.

Subsequently, little chance does it have as modern civilization and its concomitance of careless nimrods push farther into its hinterlands.

All animals must have a suitable home and an unpoisoned food supply.

Recent pesticide analysis studies of peregrine falcon eggs from the remote Queen Charlotte Islands even show poison residue levels, and these falcons are living in non-agricultural areas.

Here the problems largely relate to poisons sprayed on the forest products to kill insects.

Equally discouraging results come from the fish and sea birds analysed in the same area. Unfortunately, the poisons in these prey species will eventually accumulate in the higher predators that eat these animals.

The next time you see a peregrine falcon winging over a mountain top or on a falconer's glove, or stooping at a duck on the lagoon, give it an extra glance—it is of a vanishing breed.

Great Abundance

Only in the windswept Queen Charlotte Islands can one stand in one spot and be within view of six peregrine falcon eyries at once. The richness of the whole area is the reason for this great abundance.

A great wealth of food washed up from the pounding sea is the mother life source for the countless millions of sea birds that live on its offshore islands. These sea birds, including the colorful puffin, penguin-like murres, and the tiny night birds, the Cassins Aukiets, and ancient murrelets, which once played an important part in the Haida diet, are also the staple diet of our specialized marine Pealses peregrine falcon.

The peregrine lives only on birds which it catches on the wing. On the Queen Charlotte Islands, it lives solely on small colony nesting sea birds which it catches in a steep dive from above its nest as the quarry dives seaward from its burrow home. Only where these sea birds nest in unaccountable thousands does the Q.C.I. peregine falcon breed.

Home Bodies

It is this requirement for very specialized conditions that has caused both concern and safety for our Queen Charlotte peregrine. These marine inhabiting falcons are so specialized that they are solely restricted in distribution to the north Pacific coast. Surplus birds produced here never go inland to establish breeding territories where different interior peregrines once lived.

Peregrine falcons inhabit the blackest islets, placing their eyries on some 300-foot precipitous cliffs—usually accessible only by ascending many feet on a rope suspended over the pounding surf below.

Busy Birds

In a shallow scraping on a ledge under an overhanging cliff or tree roof, the beautiful rufus red eggs are laid. Diligently both birds incubate the eggs and brood the 1 to 4 young—protecting the progeny from pounding gales, predacious ravens and crows—the latter may end up as food if it is not careful.

Nest life is first a period of eating, sleeping and growing. By a month of age the strong pinions that will eventually carry their sleek forms at speeds up to 200 miles an hour are just starting to grow. Now much exercise and wing beating is practised. This circulates blood into the developing feather shafts and strengthens the wing muscles for that first flight—a flight that must enable them to reach safety on the nest edge for the parents won't feed them on the ground.

By six weeks of age the young are the size of the parents and ready to fly. During the next month, they are taught to hunt by their parents, before they migrate southward.

The size of their nest ledge often limits the number of young produced. If the ledge is small some young are accidentally knocked off and perish on the rocks below. Last year we rescued one thin and emaciated chick from below such a tiny eyrie. Another was found starved to death on a ledge 6 feet below the regular nest ledge.

We must be extra cautious to preserve the status quo of this highly specialized falcon so that it does not go the way of its relatives. Some conservationists advocate full protection for the Queen Charlotte Is. falcons. Falconers want them for their age-old sport. The controlling body, the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is much concerned and has been carefully controlling the harvest of peregrine falcons by falconers in B.C. since about 1960.

Co-Operation

The history of this harvest and how the present management regulations came about sets a fine example of co-operative conservation between consumptive and esthetic wildlife interests.

Since 1955 when these birds were not protected by provincial law, falconers have been making annual pilgrimages to the Charlottes to collect their prizes. Some of the more responsible falconers soon foresaw that unlimited harvest of these falcons could not go on indefinitely without adverse effects on the breeding population. In order to recommend management procedures, more biological data on falcon distribution and habits were needed. Several privately financed expeditions were undertaken. With the preliminary data at hand, the falconers presented a brief to the Fish and Wildlife Branch suggesting a permit system to limit the harvest.

BANDING LEG of young peregrine with aluminum bracelet is permanent identification to help in studies of migration and longevity.

Limits Reached

These falconer-inflicted management proposals worked well until 1965. By then, falconer requests for birds were above that first "guesstimates" considered to be safe harvest limits. Also the hawks, eagles, owls and falcons had now become protected by provincial law. The Fish and Wildlife Branch imposed greater harvest restrictions and decided it would have to conduct its own more extensive and long-range surveys. First, this would add to the basic biology of the falcon and secondly, it would permit evaluation of the effect of its management proposals on the wild birds.

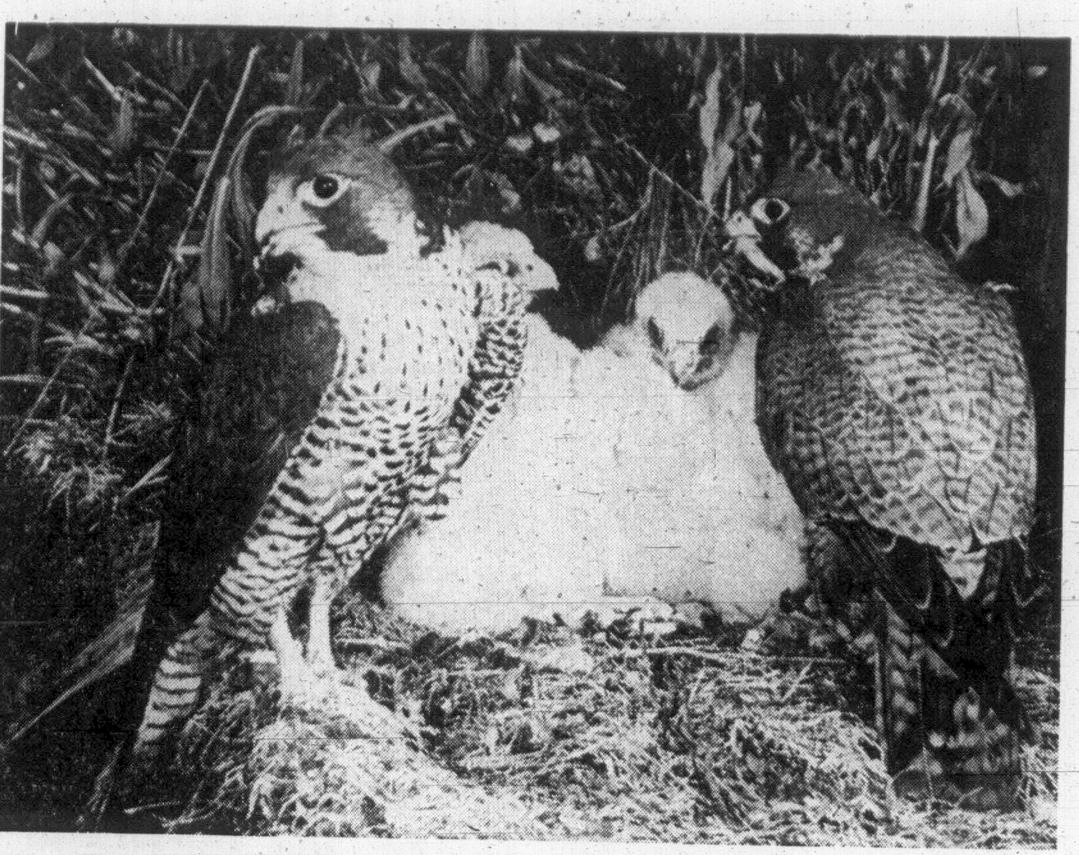
One might ask — why bother with such a small resource? Why not simply close the season and leave the birds to themselves?

Perhaps this would be the simplest way out.

However, it would do no more to preserving peregrines than proper management and could possibly do harm. Furthermore, it would deny falconers local access to the bird most symbolic of their sport.

All young falcons produced above the numbers needed to replace the dying adults and a safe margin for error or natural catastrophe can be considered a harvestable surplus. It is an accepted fact that other game species such as deer, ducks or cougars can be managed to give a harvestable crop — the same principles apply to the peregrine. It is the art of wildlife management to decide what these limits are.

Many individuals and organizations have co-operated with the Fish and Wildlife Branch in gathering the data on which the regulations are based. The Federal Fisheries has generously supplied their all-weather patrol boats and skilled crews; University of British Columbia zoology students have contributed assistance and notes; the Raptor Research Foundation and the Provincial Museum have supplied men.



HAPPY FAMILY at eyrie shows adult pair of peregrines feeding three and-a-half-week-old chicks. Both male and female incubate eggs and brood young.

Close Control

The present 1968 permit system controls the number of birds taken and what part of the Charlottes they are taken from. It favors B.C. residents allowing them one or two birds. No falcons can be exported from the province. A restriction on all permits is that at least one bird must always be left in a nest to encourage reoccupancy of area; that the permittee must collect his own birds so there is no gross commercial collecting of birds; and that no young can be taken before a certain day each year. This assures absolute minimum loss to the disturbed eggs or removal of very delicate young.

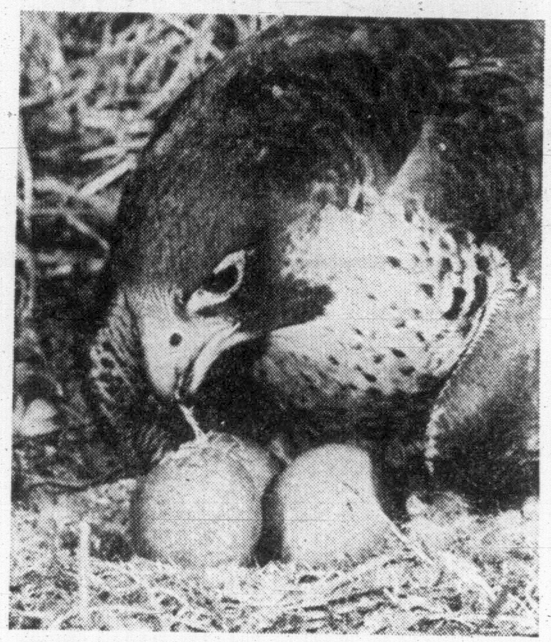
The soundness of the Fish and Wildlife system was again borne out by last year's surveys. The number of young per pair and the size of the nesting population has remained relatively constant according to Regional Game Biologist, Don Blood.

Priorities Plan

According to Chief Biologist, Glen Smith, the basic philosophy behind what has been the successful management of the Queen Charlotte Is. peregrines is the Branch's policy of priorities — the welfare of the peregrine first, scientific research second, and the excess crop of birds to falconers, third.

If the peregrine continues to be "pushed" out of existence by encroaching civilization over much of its world range is it enough to say that that is unfortunate? Many people think not.

If the peregrine could be propagated in captivity this would give a nucleus of birds better adapted for reintroduction into the wild. By the very nature that they breed in captivity they are more tolerant of human activity and might more readily adapt to man's artificial wilderness. Furthermore, captive propagation would supply consumptive users (falconers and zoos) to take the pressure off the remaining wild population.



IT WON'T BE LONG. Adult picks at piped egg to help young emerge from egg in advance state of hatching process.

Captive Breeding

The Canadian Wildlife Service in 1963 commissioned me to collect several peregrine falcons for their experimental project using falcons to scare nuisance birds from airports. After termination of this project in 1965, the birds were turned over to captive breeding experiments.

This is the first time in North America to my knowledge, that an adult pair of peregrines have been confined together for the breeding season, and it produced results. Three eggs were laid over a five-day period in 1966. After 40 anxious days of constant brooding by both parents and mounting anxiety by the onlookers, the eggs were removed and found to be infertile.

It was disappointing that no young were fledged, but promising and somewhat rewarding, that the project had proceeded this far, so soon. Furthermore, it initiated greater hope among the Raptor Research supporters and justified initial and further co-operation from government and conservation agencies supporting the projects.

The year 1967 yielded unexpected results. Ronald Austing, a naturalist in Ohio, had his redtail hawks raise young. Joe Simonyi in Ontario, and another falconer in Oregon also received infertile eggs in the first breeding attempts by their peregrines. Henry Kendall had a pair of prairie falcons produced fertile eggs. And our birds succeeded in producing four eggs by early April. These were removed to an incubator but proved infertile.

The 32nd Day

Four weeks later a second clutch was laid. Again, incubation was assiduously handled by both parents. On the 32nd day just as our hopes were diminishing one egg hatched, and its tiny, wet, and feeble chick peeped into the world.

Heartbreaks were to follow. Before a feeding had taken place, the chick was dead.

Anxiously we awaited the next arrival. One, two, three days passed. The eggs were checked. One was well pipped and peeping, and movement was detected in a third. Two more days of waiting and on the third day, the female was pecking at a crushed egg and carried it in her beak to a ledge 12 feet away. The male immediately flew over, pecked at it a few times and deliberately held the egg over the edge of the ledge and let the shell and the dead embryo drop to the ground.

Concern Mounts

Our concern rose.

The other egg had been visibly pipped for two days now. There seemed only one thing to do—try to hatch the remaining egg ourselves.

Carefully, and with only the aid of water, the pipped end of the shell was slowly removed. Over a three-hour period a pathetic and very feeble chick was hatched. The extreme weakness of the chick led to its death during the first night. The fourth egg was infertile.

In summary, this successful breeding of peregrine falcons, while not resulting in young being raised, did show that with refined avicultural techniques, captive propagation is possible. Furthermore, by recycling the parents more than one brood should be available each year. As an added feature those adults willingly reared the dozen wild young collected for further breeding stock.

Not Again!

On our Queen Charlotte Islands, falcon surveys last year we stopped briefly at Skedans Point. All that now remains of a once mightly Haida village, spread out beneath gigantic Sitka spruce, where civilized man had come, inflicted his marks of progress and disease on a proud people, were empty and decaying burial poles. It is with much hope that the older Charlotte inhabitants, the Peales peregrine falcon, does not follow this same line of abuse.

Under the watchful eye of the Fish and Wildlife Branch and with continued co-operation by falconers, conservationists, and aviculturists, our peregrine may not hold its own, but through captive propagation, show the way to increasing falcons in other areas.

Conservationists now anxiously await the Falcon captive breeding attempts for this year.

NEW GUIDANCE INSTRUCTION ENDS BORED SIGHS

TARGET: MEANINGFUL IMAGE OF ADULT WORLD

Students Taste Slice of Life . . . and Digest It Easily

By DON VIPOND

The girls' guidance classes at S. J. Willis junior high school are something rare — they tell it the way it is.

At a time when guidance instruction often brings a grimace of distaste from teachers and a bored sigh from students, two young women at this school have come up with a winning formula.

Gail Bonner and Mrs. Peta-Ann Jackson use field trips, intriguing speakers, down-to-earth books and frank talk to meet the goal of guidance — help the girls learn about themselves and what's going on in the world around them.

●

For the first time the girls, in Grades 8 to 10 and from 14 to 16 years old, are shaking the chalk dust of the classroom to literally go to town and mingle with people.

Their field trips are giving them a living-color look at slices of life no text book can offer. And they love it, learn from it and are often deeply moved by it.

Their written reports to the two teachers tell the story:

". . . it just about made me sniffle when I think of the old folks having not very much but enjoying every little bit of what they have," wrote one after a tour of the Silver Threads Centre.

●

"Seeing all the old retired people . . . having a riot dancing and making hats and aprons and carving wooden figures," wrote another, "made me realize that old people have just as much energy as the teen-agers but they just have to go about and have fun in a slower way."

"It showed me that we don't just have a bunch of doddering old men and women," reported a third, "but a far from helpless, lively and extremely happy people."

After seeing a service at the Sikh Temple:

"I was really amazed at the way they performed their church services. Some of their customs, like the way they covered the girl's legs with sheets and especially the manner in which they served that food truly shocked me."

GAIL BONNER
. . . makes it real

●

"I liked the Sikh Temple," wrote another girl, "because it displayed another, perhaps stronger, form of religious practice."

"We learned how different religion really is," said another, ". . . we tasted the holy food they ate and really learned about some of their customs."

●

A visit to the Protestant Orphanage brought these reactions:

"It made me see how happy those little kids were, playing with everybody as if it was just a great big family . . ."

Said another: "It made me so mad I still boil when I think of it."

"It opened many of the girls' eyes," wrote a third. "They had never even known where it was before. I know. I lived there six years and I think it is about time the younger generation and some of the older ones knew the truth . . ."

There have been other field trips, to the university, a health spa, a business school, a hospital, a retarded children's school and the YM-YWCA. On the agenda is the central criminal court.

Besides the excursions, the girls bring a variety of speakers into the school to discuss their specialities and answer questions.

Among those they've listened to are a hypnotist (who brought his own subject for a deomonstration), a social worker and a minister who deivered a general talk on youth and religion.

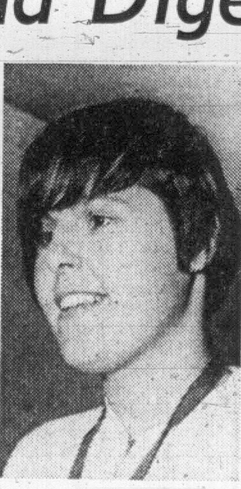
Then there was the blind man from the CNIB who gave them practical pointers on how they could lend blind people a hand without feeling any embarrassment, a dressmaker, a hair stylist and a representative from Canada Manpower who told them just what's involved in applying for a job and how to go about it.

●

With both excursions and speakers, the girls discuss first where they will go or who will be invited and it is the pupils who make all the arrangements.

The teachers just order the buses. They see organizing the rest as part of what guidance should provide, an opportunity to demonstrate responsibility.

Gail's and Peta-Ann's guidance classes are not all field trips or speakers. Sometimes there are frank discussions on sensitive questions—like what sort of a person is a homosexual?



MRS. PETA-ANN JACKSON
. . . leads frank talks

Mrs. Jackson says that with segregated classes, discussions quickly get right down to brass tacks, to the issues that are really puzzling the girls.

They've found the new guidance classes a place they can ask the question there's no place for in any other class—and get a frank answer.

●

The teachers sometimes read to them. But the stories aren't those usually thought of as classroom reading. One is "The Cross and the Switchblade," written by Rev. David Wilkerson about his work against teen crime in big city slums.

It presents a picture most of the girls have not and will never see but it exists and is part of the world they live in. And so they become aware of a broader world, the real one.

Gail admits she had the same dreary view of teaching guidance many teachers share before she picked up the idea of the active program from a meeting at Central junior secondary school.

●

"We're trying to follow the basic principles of the guidance program in a way that makes it real," is Mrs. Jackson's summary.

Guidance programs have become alarmingly out-of-touch with life, says Willis principal Horace Dawson.

This need not be, he argues. They should be "experiences that every student anticipates with pleasure both for emotional and intellectual reasons."

He said he is very pleased with the results of the experiment in girls' guidance classes.

"We have attempted successfully to expose the students to real life situations so that they have a more meaningful image of the work world—the world of people generally.

●

And the girls themselves in the new guidance classes had this to say about them:

"Not just—'here it is, now you know it.' We discussed all these things thoroughly and I think I know a little more about everything. . . ."

"It has helped me speak what's on my mind, to decide whether what I'm saying is right or wrong. . ."

". . . being able to give our opinions without being shot down is better than copying from the board . . ."

INSIDE CITY HALL

Don't Rejoice Yet, Pay Hike Coming

By JIM HUME

Before taxpayers start rejoicing too fully because Victoria city fathers turned down a pay increase, pause and consider the reasons.

Hume

It's true that Ald. Cecil Parrott said he wasn't on council for the money he could squeeze out of city coffers.

But it is also true that Ald. Ian Stewart, who made the strongest case for turning down the $500 raise in pay, was not thinking of the $4,000 saving the rejection would bring.

Ald. Stewart made it quite clear that what he wanted was a complete review of aldermanic and mayoralty stipends with a view to, some time in the future, getting the cash return up somewhere close to the cash lost by men taking public office.

A tenacious young man, Ald. Stewart can be counted on to keep the topic alive and eventually come down with some solid suggestions on what an alderman and a mayor should get in the way of annual increments.

There is little doubt that the mayor and some of the aldermen are grossly underpaid for the amount of time and effort they put into running the city. And there is also little doubt that some of the aldermen, even on the present $2,500 honorarium, are grossly overpaid.

It is to be hoped that the Stewart study will spell out specific aldermanic duties and contain safeguards to make sure those duties are performed, before any substantial increases are granted.

★ ★ ★

Ald. Clyde Savage, who piloted the convention centre study through committee and, along with the city planners, was responsible for the excellent convention centre report, finally ran out of patience this week.

Wearied by the debate on which comes first, the centre design and size or the site it will be built on, he stalked out of Committee Room One.

"It's all getting to sound pretty damned futile," was his only post-meeting comment.

Now, now, Ald. Savage, it's only a couple of years or so since the studies started (or is it 15 years?) and you can't really expect a snap decision, can you?

Heck, it took the city four months or so to come to an agreement with the Sisters of St. Ann regarding a sewer line easement, so 24-months on a major project isn't bad.

And there's always the hope that things will start to move next week when the economists bring down their report on the Wharf Street waterfront area.

Or will the report mean the striking of another committee to study the proposals?

If yet another committee is struck, might we suggest going whole-hog and establishing a committee to study committees? It could well be the most dramatic, or traumatic, exercise of the year.

★ ★ ★

Secretary-treasurer of the Regional District, Bill Long, ended his first affable year in the region with a new title and a raise in pay.

To be known in future as executive director, Bill's salary has jumped into the senior-department head bracket of $1,383 a month or $16,596 a year.

It's a well merited change of title and pay raise even if we don't always see eye-to-eye on some issues.

★ ★ ★

It was nice of Mayor Hugh Stephen to tell city council Thursday that Governor General Roland Michener would not be visiting the city in May.

Especially when it is remembered that most of the members of council hadn't been informed that the Queen's number one man was due here, anyway.

★ ★ ★

A memo to defaulting aldermen:

When Mayor Stephen left an open spot on city council agenda for motions and statements it was designed to provide aldermen with the opportunity of speaking out on problems worrying them.

It was not designed to provide aldermen with a "what Johnny saw on the way to school" period.

If used properly the short period can be one of the most useful innovations introduced by the mayor. Used as it was on Thursday when a couple of aldermen trotted out "what I did last week for the city" reports, it is a complete waste of time.

★ ★ ★

And a happy weekend to city solicitor T. P. O'Grady in the hopes that he can find time to return an overdue book to the library before he's asked to sue himself.

Studies Lag Badly On Care for Elderly

TORONTO (CP) — It is not surprising, says an American doctor, that suicides happen more frequently among old people.

Old age is a painful, insulting time of life and being placed in an institution like an old people's home may be the final slap, says Dr. Bernard Kutner of New York city in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

He sayd that nowhere in the field of medicine has there been such a lag between knowledge and application as in the case of the long-term patient — "little changed from that offered early in the 20th century."

In an institution, the old person is protected, his health managed while he is held in a "neutral, safe status."

"In turn, he is expected to be passive, benign, compliant, unobtrusive and accepting of institutional life. . .

"Once inside, the elderly resident learns to resign himself to his fate. . ."

In drawing up any scheme to help the aged, doctors and laymen should forget the way old people in institutions look now because their dispositions reflect the "over-controlled character" of the places.

Dr. Kutner, professor of preventive medicine and community health at Yeshiva University, recommends a high level of communication among doctors, community services, family and others on "the caretaker team."

If the old person is to live at home, his family may need therapy to help them understand his needs.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Careless drivers fined Friday in central court:

Lillian Ellen Hope, 42, 494 Peters St., fined $40 for an accident March 21 at Lyall and Admiral's Rd.; Scott Godsoe, 19, of CFB Esquimalt, fined $50 and suspension of driver's licence for hitting a hydro pole on Woodway Ave. March 23; Clayton White, 32, of Vancouver, fined $40 for hitting a parked car on Esquimalt Rd. March 13.

Japanese Slam Fish Restriction

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and Japanese negotiators Friday officially confirmed agreement restricting Japanese fishermen in northwest Pacific and adjacent waters to a 93,000-ton salmon-trout quota — the lowest ever in the 12-year history of the talks.

A Japanese spokesman asserted: "We are not satisfied."

He said Japanese negotiators at the next talks, in Tokyo in March, "will try to increase the quota," but he expected the talks to be "even more difficult than this year."

He added that the tough, two-month negotiations here this year have resulted in a quota "near to the minimum."

SERIOUS QUESTION

He added: "If we cut more, we will have to cut the number of fishing ships, and that would be a very serious question."

Japan opened the negotiations March 1, seeking an increase over last year's 108,000-ton quota. The Russians argued that last year was a bumper crop year but 1968 is a lean year, and a lower quota is necessary to preserve western Pacific breeding stocks.

In 1966, the last previous lean year, the quota was set at 96,000 tons, 3,000 more than this year.

Salazar: Power His 'Sacred Duty'

LISBON (AP) — Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar of Portugal started his 80th year today, just a day after he began his 40th year at the head of the last remaining colonialist dictatorship.

A 1926 military revolt overthrew a republican regime and created the country's present estado novo, or new state. It is this concept which the premier has used to fashion the longest tenure of any of the world's active political leaders.

A non-smoking, non-drinking bachelor, Salazar is determined to live out his days in what he considers the "sacred duty" of serving his country.

There is no discussion within the official Portuguese establishment about a possible successor, and little outside it.

Even the regime's so-called opposition—composed of several hundred lawyers, writers, former military men and some intellectuals—has no one particular candidate it agrees upon.

WILL HAVE BIG SAY

The country's 130,000-men armed forces and secret police organization will have a big say about a successor; most of their leaders are considered to be dedicated and loyal to the Salazar policy of a strongly controlled "corporate state."

"Only the names will change," says a veteran diplomat.

Salazar rules a paradoxical land.

While it has advanced markedly in the last five years, Portugal still has the lowest standard of living and the highest illiteracy rate in Western Europe. Its currency is one of the world's most stable, and it has a favorable balance of payments situation and $1,200,000,000 in gold and foreign exchange reserves.

Driver Fined $350

Wilfred Hollinger, 21, of 242 Goldstream, was fined $350 in central court Friday for impaired driving.

He pleaded guilty. Court was told he went off the road and struck a power pole on Gorge Road April 5, doing $500 worth of damage to his car.

His licence was suspended.

Cat Woman Wins Backyard Feud But More Fur Expected to Fly

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-year feud between the Johnstones and the Skinners was settled legally Friday in favor of cat fancier Irene Skinner.

Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm dismissed a damage suit brought by Ralph Johnstone, 21, and his mother Jennie, against Mrs. Skinner.

However, Mr. Johnstone said after the British Columbia Supreme Court hearing that "I'll fight this until the day I die."

The Johnstones wanted $475 legal costs and unstated damages from the Skinners for injury to Mr. Johnstone's reputation.

They argued the injury resulted from an assault charge laid by Mrs. Skinner against Mr. Johnstone that resulted in conviction in magistrate's court. The conviction was quashed later in county court.

The battle involves Siamese cats at the Skinners. The Johnstones said the animals left filth everywhere, raged over the yard in numbers up to 17, and howled continually.

The neighbors, court was told, wound up making remarks at each other that grew into alleged threats to blow up the cats and call in the Mafia.

The assault charge was laid after Mrs. Skinner said Mr. Johnstone threw rocks at her, hitting her on the arm and back.

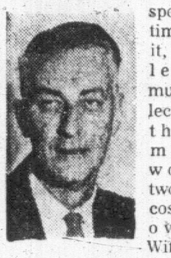
Arthur Mayse

The apple blossom is pink-and-white on the bough, the dogwood's out, and I would dearly like to go fishing. But a fence needs mending and the grass could stand cutting, so this weekend, I'll content myself with wishing luck to the boy with the shiny new fly-rod.

It's his first. Like most modern rods, its sections are crafted from fibreglas. It weighs a little over five ounces, and a few days back, I had the pleasure of helping him choose it.



For an angler, life holds few more amiable occasions. We spent a lot of time finding it, and at least as much in selecting a line that would make it work. The two together cost a shade over $15. With a sturdy old reel from my mess of gear — cost to the boy, another dollar or an hour of garden toil — he has the main elements of an outfit that will serve him through his apprenticeship.

Of those three items, the reel is the least important. It is also less historic by far. Isaac Walton, a good man and writer who may have discoursed with Shakespeare, was aware of the reel as a new-fangled invention, though he didn't use one.

But the sectional rod he carried, and his line of twisted and cunningly-dyed horsehair, were made to the precise instructions laid down centuries earlier by Dame Juliana Berners, a fishing prioress who not only made her own tackle but used it well.

★

As one who asks of the government only that it levy reasonable taxes, spend them sensibly, and otherwise keep out of his hair, I sometimes wonder where this country is going.

Now comes medical health officer Dr. Thomas Bailey to make me wonder even harder by forecasting a future in which women will be paid not to have children, and everybody will get a bonus for keeping fit.

Horrible! For that future generation of human robots — regulated and controlled to the last degree — I am truly sorry

We are a welfare state now, and we got that way by treating government as if it were a big fat cow with an ever-ready udder. If we keep on looking for government to solve every human problem for us, we will eventually become a slave state.

This will happen, not because those we choose to govern wish to force that situation on us, but because we leave them no other course.

★

On Monday, I told you about the night-time serenade to which a most un-normal cougar treated my son and seven boys in his charge. After reading the eulogy to the cougar tribe in Friday's Times, I began to wonder if the crew shouldn't have lured the big cat into their camper with cries of "Nice pussy!" and maybe taken it for a ride in their rubber raft next day.

The Fish and Wild Life Branch, however, takes a sterner view of cougar that show up in non-wilderness parks, near schoolyards, or in other of man's preserves. A predator hunter is sent out, and if possible, the cougar is tracked and shot. Further, the branch urges anyone who spots a cougar in such an area to get in touch with the RCMP with all possible speed.

I am not out to blacken the cougar, a creature ordinarily so wary that you can travel his habitat for years and count yourself lucky to catch a single glimpse of his retreating shape. But on the rare occasions when he departs from or is forced out of his norm, he can be dangerous.

As for some rather extravagant claims made about cougar nature on this page by Mrs. David Hancock of Central Saanich Friday, I suggest that the behavior of a young cat taken from the woods as a kitten doesn't necessarily tell the story.

To Mrs. Hancock, a word of warning. When your now-docile pet matures to his full size and strength, watch closely for the slightest sign of a change in his nature.

And never, never turn your back on him.

New Welfare Rates Called Discriminatory

Effective June 1 school-age children on welfare may qualify for an additional $131 in provincial assistance annually.

But the announcement by the cabinet Friday, while welcomed by welfare mothers, was denounced in other quarters as discriminatory.

Critics said the welfare rate boost does nothing for single persons or childless couples.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and NDP welfare critic, former social worker Dave Barrett of Coquitlam, say the new rates will serve to make it more profitable for a father on welfare to desert his family.

The new rate structure is in addition to basic rates of $75 per month for single persons, $125 for couples, $125 for a mother and one child and $25 per month for each additional dependent.

The increase for children includes $15 a year for clothing, $15 a year for recreation (such as YM-YWCA fees or similar expenditure), an additional $5 a year to the $10 annual allowance for school supplies and a monthly ($96 a year) added $8 "family allowance" for each qualified child.

The additions are not automatic and will be paid only on a basis of need, a provincial welfare official emphasized. And in the case of the clothing and recreation allowances, a social welfare administrator may decide to pay the allowances at the rate of $5 thrice-yearly.

Here is reaction to the increase recorded today:

Mrs. Donna Langstaff, a past president of the Victoria Low Income Group said, "It's a step in the right direction. This is part of what we were fighting for — especially the recreational grants." She took part in recent demonstrations by the Low Income Group at the Legislative Buildings.

Saanich alderman, Mrs. Edith Gunning, said she is pleased the children have been helped. She noted that no help has been given the single person on welfare adding, "It is difficult to see how he can exist on $75 a month."

AS COUPLES

She said a married couple still gets only $125 monthly which might encourage them to separate and collect $75 each. But she agreed there was a saving when two people shared accommodation.

Persons living "common law" do not, however, obtain welfare payments as single persons but are regarded as couples when the arrangement is known to social workers, she said.

SAILING THE WINDS over Clover Point this morning were the multi-shaped kites of youngsters from Craigflower elementary school. Not just for fun but for funds. Pupils worked in teams over the Easter holidays to build their kites for competition today. Entry fee of $2 was charged to raise money for handicapped children and many parents and businessmen came through as sponsors. Competitors were limited to anchor lines of 300 feet. Winners in the division for best-decorated kite were Donna Selinger and Sharon Arcuri, both 12. (Irving Strickland Photo)

DRINKING DRIVERS BLASTED

Four men today were fined and had their drivers' licences suspended for impaired driving.

"Something has to be done about this outrageous driving by drunken people on the highways," commented Magistrate Ostler after sentencing the four.

Edgar Carter, 1340 Denman, was fined $350. Police said he was the driver of a car which struck a parked car on Bay St. at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

THROUGH LIGHT

Arbelle Williams of Brentwood, was fined $400 for impaired driving and $25 for not having a driver's licence after police observed him drive through a red light on Government.

Gregory Harvey, 120 Clarence, was fined $400 after court was told he was observed driving in an erratic manner on Broughton early today.

Mitchell Fraik, 1110 Tattersal, was fined $400 after RCMP said they observed him driving in an erratic manner on the Old Island Highway at 2:45 a.m. today.

All pleaded guilty.

Province Clears Way For Mediation Board

The first part of Bill 33 came into effect Friday.

A proclamation signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes cleared the way for establishing the mediation commission, which will have power to order binding decisions in certain cases.

The new labor legislation was approved at the last session of the B.C. legislature and comes into effect by stages through the proclamation procedure.

IN VANCOUVER

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said in Vancouver Friday, where the cabinet met, that proclamation will permit the government to proceed with appointment of commission members.

When these have been made, facilities will be provided and staff appointed for the commission to carry out its duties. Its headquarters will be in Vancouver.

"The members will be required to devote full time to their duties and have authority to employ highly-skilled mediators to assist labor and management in resolving their disputes as well as experts having special or technical knowledge," he said.

INDUSTRIAL PEACE

"It is empowered to inquire into any matter referred to it by the minister, including matters relating to economic growth, labor-management relations, productivity, problems of adjustment, industrial research and technology research which will assist in improving the means of disseminating industrial and labor information and such other matters as seem calculated to maintain or secure industrial peace and to promote conditions favorable to the settlement of disputes."

Further steps to make the rest of the new law effective will be taken as quickly as possible, he said.

Bill 33 has been bitterly attacked by the B.C. Federation of Labour and many union leaders because of the compulsory arbitration aspect.

Under Section 18, not yet proclaimed, the cabinet can refer a dispute to the commission and may order that the commission's findings be binding on both sides.

MAN BADLY INJURED BY CAR

A pedestrian is in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after he was hit by a car at Douglas and Pandora early today.

Donald McDermid, 66, of 1330 Gladstone, suffered severe head and internal injuries.

The accident occurred at 2:40 a.m.

City police said McDermid was walking east across Douglas in a crosswalk when hit, but they said he was walking against the pedestrian and traffic control lights.

The car involved was driven north on Douglas by Hugh MacDonald, 2535 Queenswood, police said.

Festival Resumes Monday

The second section of the Greater Victoria Music Festival will begin sessions at 9 Monday morning.

Action will take place at three centres simultaneously; brass and woodwind duets and quartets will occupy the morning and elementary school instrumental ensembles in the afternoon in the Youth Room of First United Church.

Orchestral string groups and string solo work will be judged at Sir James Douglas School auditorium and dance groups will perform at Central Junior Secondary auditorium.

In the evening school bands and orchestra will provide a single session at Central.

The dance honor performance occurs Wednesday night at Central and school choirs occupy daytime sessions Wednesday and all of Thursday.

Researcher Gets Monthly Grant

A Canada Council grant of $350 a month for eight months of research in linguistics has been awarded Jacques Noel, 216 Wildwood Ave.

From Liege, Belgium, and completing the first year of a two-year masters program at the University of Victoria, Mr. Noel will work on automatic analysis of the language of scientific texts.

Foreman Fined; Had No Permit

Dennis Langtry, 1590 McTavish, was fined $15 today for contravening a city fire bylaw.

Court was told the accused was foreman of a Leigh Ave. construction site where a rubbish fire was lit March 22 without the required permit.

TROLLER SINKS NEAR SWARTZ BAY

Burned-Out Fisherman Offered Aid From Above

Help came right out of the blue for commercial fisherman Don Hanson Friday afternoon when his troller burst into flames and sank near Swartz Bay.

Among the bevy of rescuers hurrying to the scene was a B.C. Airlines Grumman Mallard which landed on the sea near the burning boat.

Hanson, 36, of Harbour Road in Sidney, had already abandoned his 38-foot Lady Linet. He watched from his skiff while the troller was rent by about 200 gallons of gasoline exploding and then sank in about 120 feet of water off Portland Island.

★ ★ ★

He said today he intends grappling or sending a diver down to try and salvage some of the gear, including the nets.

The pillar of smoke and flame about two miles east of the ferry terminal attracted not only the seaplane but the B.C. Government ferry Queen of Vancouver which turned aside to see if it could lend a hand.

A cluster of smaller boats also converged on the scene.

Hanson was hauling his nets about 5 p.m. when the fire burst out of the cabin behind him.

"It was too far gone to do anything."

★ ★ ★

He speculated today it might have been caused by a sudden gasoline leak in the engine.

"We spotted the smoke as we were coming through Active Pass. We thought we'd better drop in in case there was someone injured," said Bill Cove, pilot of the Mallard.

The plane was headed to Victoria to pick up the Victoria Shamrocks lacrosse team for a Vancouver game.

Hanson declined with thanks the offer of an airlift to hospital or to Sidney as he spotted a friend's boat approaching. He was unhurt in the incident.

★ ★ ★

Air-Sea Rescue authorities paid tribute to the prompt action of the B.C. Airlines pilot, a former Victorian.

"He did a good job," they said. "If anyone was injured, he was right on the spot."

Hanson said today his boat and gear represented a loss of about $15,000. The boat was insured but personal possessions and spare gear on the craft were not.

He has worked on tugboats or as a fisherman since he was 17 and had operated the Lady Linet for the past five years.

Saanich Still Dark On Route

Saanich planner Tom Loney said today "we have no more information than a year ago" on the alignment of the proposed Patricia Bay Freeway.

He was commenting on a report that a route map has been circulated showing the alignment of the proposed freeway which would replace the present two-lane road.

"We have maps showing it to the best of our information," Mr. Loney said.

"We have taken highways department plans and put them out at various scales for our convenience. But we have no more information than a year ago.

NEW PRIORITIES?

"The last time we talked to the highways department and asked them when they would come to a decision they said they would like to finalize their plans over the winter.

"Maybe with the new minister new priorities will be established."

The new highways minister is Wesley Black. He succeeded Premier Bennett who took over the department after P. A. Gaglardi resigned as minister.

Wilkinson Drive-In Backed

The Saanich Advisory Planning Commission is recommending approval of a drive-in movie theatre on Wilkinson Road.

The commission's recommendation is expected to go before the May 6 council meeting when a public hearing may be called for a later date.

Location of the proposed outdoor theatre is the west side of the 4300-block Wilkinson on part of the Layritz Nursery property.

It would cover 9½ acres of the nursery property and hold 800 cars. The theatre would adjoin Layritz Park on the west boundary, with access onto Wilkinson and the screen located to the south.

The rezoning application was submitted just over a month ago by a Vancouver firm of architect-planners on behalf of Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited.

The advisory Planning Commission is appointed by council but has power only to make recommendations. It is composed of private citizens and one alderman.

Ask The Times

Q. Where can I write for information on Youth Hostel locations in the British Isles, continental Europe and the Middle East? J.D.

A. Write to H. L. Knapp, secretary, Youth Hostels Association, St. Albans, Herts., England, and ask for direction to the hostel groups in the areas where you plan to travel.

Q. Did your answer Wednesday refer also to legal aid for civil cases? A.D.

A. It referred to aid in criminal matters. If you want legal aid in a civil case, a panel of lawyers sits every Wednesday at 5 p.m. at the Law Courts Building on Burdett Ave. to receive applications. Those who cannot afford to hire a lawyer for a criminal case can make application for aid through lawyer Alan Patterson, secretary of the Legal Aid Society, at 750 Courtney, or the Salvation Army's Brigadier Rankin.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Fire Season To Open Wednesday

The annual forest fire season in British Columbia begins Wednesday and provincial authorities have issued a reminder that fire permits are required during the six-month period.

Permits, available at no cost from forest service and fish and wildlife offices and many sporting goods stores, are required for all campfires in the outdoors, except in provincial campsites and supervised commercial camps.

Burning permits are also necessary for land clearing fires and burning debris. They can be obtained from forest rangers, except in municipal areas where they are available from local authorities.

Chief Forester L. F. Swannell said more than 750 trained men will be put on standby duty in B.C.'s 106 ranger districts and up to 44 aircraft can be called into service against forest fires.

'He Had Incredible Speed And Ate Meat Like a Dog'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Do you believe in the existence of wolf boys?

Some people may have doubts but not 82-year-old Mrs. Edwin Duffin, 314 Irving Road, who once lived in a district of India where people lived in fear of their children being abducted by wolves.

She says she saw the most famous of all wolf boys, Dina Sanichar, who was kept in an orphanage at Sikandra, near Agra, for 36 years.

Last week a news despatch from Lucknow reported the death in hospital of another wolf boy — Ramu — believed to have been raised in the jungle until he was 10 years old. His death was due to a chronic respiratory infection.

●

He was found naked in a third-class waiting room at a railway station in 1954. The doctor who looked after him believed that Ramu was carried off by a she-wolf as an infant. He had deformed legs and marks on his neck suggesting he had been confined in a lair and dragged in an animal's jaws.

The wolf boy Mrs. Duffin saw was captured in 1867 by hunters who spotted him running on all fours with a she-wolf. The animal was brought to bay in a cave, killed, and the boy Dina Sanichar, handed over to the Sikandra orphanage. He died in 1903.

"Just about the time I saw Dina Sanichar there was a hunt in the district for a wolf believed to have taken an infant," Mrs. Duffin recalled.

DIAN SANICHAR
. . . first wolf boy

Reports of such happenings were not uncommon and in that part of India, were taken for granted.

She said the wolves were bold and often seen roaming in the yards of people's home.

They never attacked people and were considered a nuisance by non-Indians as they often enticed dogs to run off with them to the jungle.

The wolf boy at the orphanage, she said, bore scars — marks of having been clawed by animals. He could stand up straight but when he moved it was on all fours.

"He ran with a lope at an incredible speed," she added. "He ate like a dog and his diet was raw meat."

People were not allowed near him as he was considered dangerous, she said.

As a girl she met English poet-writer Rudyard Kipling, who created the famous character, Mowgli the Wolf Boy, in the jungle books.

●

In a verse at the end of the Mowgli story, Kipling in the last lines makes it apparent no wolf boy recovered from the jungle ever became normal again. The wolf boy is being cared for by a woman in a cottage when he hears a noise outside. The lines read;

" 'Tis a league and a league to the Lena Falls where the crop and the upland meet,

But I can smell the wef down-wind that wakes the sprouting wheat.

Unbar the door, I may not bide, but I must out and see

If those are wolves that wait outside or my own kin to me!

She loosed the bar, she slid the bolt, she opened the door anon,

And a gray bitch-wolf came out of the dark and fawned on the Only Son!"

Citron Scented Cream Smooths and Sooths

By Penny Saver

Look to your hands, ladies! Because you are going to have to work hard to keep ahead of Penny in this department. As you may have guessed I have found a new product or two and can't keep from beating a drum about them. I have found that the spring weather has been hard on my hands. It is impossible to tell from day to day what sort of mood the weather will be in. Even from hour to hour Victoria skies can change from grey to clearest blue. Between chilly winds and housework I have developed cracked, sore hands. Gloves gave me some protection but damage that had already been done remained. Then I came across a new hand cream.

A 50-gram tube of this cream sells for $1.75 regularly. When I visited the store, however, this size tube, along with a tiny purse-size tube, was being sold for $1.59. This special introductory offer continued as long as the specially packaged stock lasted. The cream is well worth the regular price, however. It has the tangy odor of citron. It is greaseless and penetrates quickly, giving instant comfort to tight, sore skin. When applied just before bedtime, it seems to work through the night, so you start the day with happy hands. Even though my hands have healed, I am continuing to use this cream to protect them from the cold and drying. My hands look and feel better than they have in months. This is one product my house will never be without.

Grow Nails With This Paint Brush

"Have you ever considered a paint-on nail extender?" Jane asked when I showed her my new, chapless hands. Instead of being hurt I pointed out that housework and typing demanded my nails be fairly short and asked about this strange beast for the sake of my readers. I learned that this is a system by which the natural nail can be lengthened, mended and protected so that once a coat of polish has been applied, nobody will know you didn't grow it all yourself. A kit consists of a liquid, a tube of gel and nail shapers. These all come in a pink plastic vanity case, complete with extensive instructions, for $2.49. This kit makes 10 to 15 "nails," depending of course, on the desired thickness. These "nails" can be easily removed and may prove more resistant to chipping than your own nail.

If just hardening what nail you have is more in your line, why not try the product I saw while the special introductory size is available? This tiny bottle is 99 cents and holds two months' supply. Very little is used — it is just applied to the tips of the nail since it must not touch the skin and it is only applied once or twice a week. Made in Switzerland, this hardener has been on the market quite a while and has a good reputation. It is best used with a special complement, which, however, does not appear in the special size. A year's supply of the hardener is $5.50, while a year's supply of the complement is $3.

If you would like to know where I found these aids to lovelier hands, please call me at 382-3131.

Man-Made Fabrics Hit Top of Poll

Organdy, voile, lawn and dotted Swiss are fabric names seen repeatedly of late in the glossy fashion publications.

Being of an age to remember wearing dresses of these fabrics I was intrigued to think that, after all these years, these once-popular and beautiful materials were coming back so strongly. I made a tour of several places where I knew the buyers were keen on keeping on top of fabric fashion news and found I was in for a few surprises.

Damaske

The pure silk organdy and pure cotton voiles are available in a very limited quantity.

Five or six bolts of silk organdy in pale classic shades were brought out from a section referred to as "the little used stock." There is truly a great revival of the sheer fabrics brought on by the "Sissy," "Little Girl" or "Scarlett O'Hara" look and the fabrics used are organdy, voile and dotted Swiss.

The answer to the riddle is that they are no longer "pure."

The miracle man-made fibres now mate so successfully with the silks and cottons that the "pures" have been pushed into the background.

Printed on each bolt is the percentage of Fortrel, Polyester or Dacron in the fabric.

I bemoaned the fact that the lovely old fabrics are no longer appreciated and one fabric buyer said to me, "Nona, the trouble with you is that you are a fabric snob."

It seems, given the opportunity to buy pure silk organza at the same price as a silk and synthetic organza, the younger generation will choose the one with the miracle fibres.

The combination fabrics are more crease-resistant, more color-fast and seem to take to brilliant hues more readily.

The printed, plaided and flowered dress lengths are a riot of color and how one ever makes a choice I do not know. With eyes closed and a pure cotton in one hand and a Dacron and cotton mixture in the other I have to admit I preferred the crisp, spring-back feel of the cotton combined with man-made fibre.

I asked "Mr. Smart" if I could be a wool snob and he said he would discuss that with me when the fall fabrics arrive.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Time for This Guy to Get a Job

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: John and I have been married for seven years and I think I have a problem.

When we were first married, John decided that he wanted to go back to the university and get his B.A. degree, so I agreed to continue to work and support us so he could. John got his B.A., then decided he wanted a Masters, so I agreed to continue to work until he got that. Well, right after he got his Masters, he wanted his Ph.D., so I agreed to continue working.

I've supported both of us for seven years now. I will be 28 on my next birthday and would like to quit my job and have a family while I'm still young enough.

John could easily get a teaching position at the university and support us both, but he now says he's "out of the mood" of having a family, and he doesn't want me to quit working. I am at the end of my rope, and any comments would be appreciated.

DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: Part of the problem is your reluctance to look John in the eye and tell him what is on your mind — or else why would you be writing to me? If necessary, practice in front of a mirror, and learn how to say (convincingly), "Look, Baby, I have had it with the working. Let's YOU support US for a change!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 24-year-old "man" who has gone with a girl for four years, tells her she is "perfect" for him, and then balks at giving her an engagement ring? It's not the money because he is in business for himself and can well afford it.

He says an engagement ring is only a "symbol," but if I am so insecure that I need a "symbol" to be assured of his love for me, he will give me one — on the condition that I don't tell anybody.

I am about ready to throw in the towel. Can you help me?

FED UP

DEAR FED: Any "man" who would offer a girl an engagement ring on the condition that "she doesn't tell anyone," is a little boy grown tall. And tell Junior that an engagement ring symbolizes that "THIS GIRL IS SPOKEN FOR" — so why the big secret?

Barnyard 'Pipeline' Reveals True Story

IT'S FOR THE BIRDS

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Now that Easter is over and the children can forget the whimsy little stories about fluffy little yellow chickens, Old Grouch Duffus has a terrible compulsion to tell the REAL story about fluffy little yellow chickens.

This is because 47 assorted domestic creatures (at latest census) have conspired to provoke me.

And sentimental chicken lovers should stop reading here.

We had a fluffy little chicken a few weeks ago. In fact we had two, but one fell down a rat hole the first day of her life, proving the theory that not only is it unwise to count your chickens before they're hatched, it is also quite pointless to count them until you see if they can survive the rigors of life with mother.

Mother, in this case, was an adolescent bantam, who had no business going broody at her age. She took herself off to the woods for the duration, miraculously escaped the notice of the racoons, and duly brought back her little surprises.

The survivor, a loud voiced black baby, was taken to the neighborhood nursery school so the little ones could see a real-life fluffy little chicken even if he wasn't yellow. He was named Sambo, and the children were to watch his progress as he grew up . . . nature lessons and all that.

Sambo, unfortunately, has not lived long enough to be of much use. His mother took him out for a walk one day and forgot him. His corpse was found in the bushes and the only lesson for the nursery school children is that fluffy little chickens tend to conk out at an early age.

Actually Sambo was the descendant of a gift bantam, a shady character, spotted black and white and obviously the result of strange interbreeding. Last summer we thought she had suffered the fate of her mate (raccoon attack) until she strutted complacently out of the woods with a mixed bag of offspring. Like mother, like daughter.

Her sons, six of the eight survivors, grew up to be juvenile delinquents, and remind us so much of the troublesome sons of George the Third that they are known as the Royal Dukes.

They are arrogant, conceited, quarrelsome and quite useless until cock-fighting is made legal in Canada.

We do actually have proper hens who are supposed to lay eggs for me to sell in order to make enough money to feed the livestock. These hens have not so far caught on to the idea of raising babies, but apart from this lack of maternal instinct, they seem to have the fairly normal poultry IQ.

That is to say for every hen who lays an egg and goes out to nibble grass, earwigs and bedding plants, there is another who prefers to nibble eggs.

Right now, I have a surplus of eggs marked with a large green B. And this doesn't just stand for B Grade.

B stands for Bitten.

B stands for Barn, where, in spite of frequent searches, we still find large nests of eggs carefully hidden—one never knows quite how long they've been there, but they are unsaleable.

B stands for Bantam, the grandmother with the overdeveloped maternal instinct who sits on the eggs the others lay. Likewise unsaleable.

If she would sit on one nest long enough to hatch some proper hens, this would be useful, but she has trouble making up her mind which nesting box is most comfortable.

As for the ducks and sheep—but that's another story.

The late Sambo's blond aunt Bianca has just produced a number of fluffy little chickens—two yellow, a few black, and the rest smudged—on an inaccessible boarded-in shelf above the nesting boxes.

It will be interesting to see how many survive when Mama leads her babies to water, six feet below, forgetting that fluffy little chickens can't fly.

Rebekahs Stage Successful Tea

Tea and crumpets, Victoria style, were the order of the day when the Emerald Rebekah Lodge Number 17 held its spring tea Friday afternoon in the K of P Hall.

General convener, Mrs. M. Scott, arranged the bouquets of heather and cherry blossoms in wooden mugs which centred each table, and the corsages worn by many members.

The event was opened by the district deputy president, Mrs. D. Burkholder, assisted by Mrs. M. Ford, president of the Rebekah Assembly of British Columbia.

Noble grand, Mrs. K. Jones, and vice-noble grand, Mrs. N. Fortt, greated guests at the door.

The kitchen was ably manned by Miss Dulcina Guelpa who kept table convener, Mrs. E. McMath, and her assistants supplied with tea, crumpets and cakes. Assisting Mrs. McMath were Mrs. E. Bogg, Mrs. M. Gower, Mrs. E. Thompson, Mrs. L. Wilson, Mrs. F. Arands, Mrs. M. Sutherland and Mrs. J. Starback.

The bake table, convened by Mrs. L. Allison, was popular. Assisting at this stall were Mrs. M. Chambers, Mrs. B. Shae and Mrs. M. Swain.

Mrs. M. Guyet, Mrs. L. Smoothy and Mrs. N. Hallet sold tickets at the door.

Proceeds of $90 were realized.

Colorful Background of Flowers Sets Theme for Auxiliary Party

The theme was overwhelmingly floral, Thursday, when the Woman's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital held its annual coffee party in the nurses' residence.

The lounge was a riot of color, achieved by attractive arrangements of roses, lilac, narcissi, stocks and other spring flowers. They decked the head table, the large impressive mantlepiece and the coffee tables dotted around the room.

The floral motif was even present on the refreshment trays, many of which were centred with 'roses' that had centres of scarlet tomatoes, 'petals' made of cream cheese and 'stamens' of cooked egg yolks.

Hundreds turned out to make the event a success, raising $278 from party proceeds and an additional $700 from a pay-as-you-pull raffle. Drawing the prizes for the latter was Mrs. A. C. Pickles, wife of the hospital's director.

Greeting guests were president Mrs. J. C. B. Keane, Mrs. J. H. Hobbs and Mrs. W. E. Thorpe.

Presiding at the head table were Miss Edna Wallace, Mrs. Pickles and members of the hospital's nursing faculty, Miss Muriel Thompson, Miss Mary O'Brien, Miss Elizabeth Maude-Moore, Mrs. B. McNeish, Mrs. R. Hall and Miss Margaret Plunkett.

Student nurses who assisted with serving guests were the Misses Veronica Schwantje, Barbara Robinson, Alice Renard and Rayann Squires.

Mrs. R. R. Hopkins was in charge of floral arrangements.

A battery of volunteers kept kitchen arrangements running smoothly. Helping to keep the supply lines moving were Mrs. Victor Price, Mrs. D. F. C. McArthur, Miss Wallace, Mrs. Mayne Banks, Mrs. Kathleen Dean, Mrs. W. McConnell, Mrs. H. V. Wilkinson, Mrs. W. E. Speed and Mrs. E. Stewart.

Mrs. F. E. Loveday convened a stall of miscellaneous items. Assisting her were Mrs. I. A. Wright, Miss L. Loveday and Mrs. E. Durgan.

In charge of the various raffles were Mrs. R. M. Woollatt, Mrs. J. L. Hobbs, Mrs. J. H. Watson and Mrs. F. D. Lee.

Mrs. Glenn Coffey had arranged for the various door prizes. Mrs. Amy Deas and Mrs. Forster Smith were in charge of receipts. Publicity was handled by Mrs. F. D. Lee and Mrs. R. K. Rorke.

Proceeds from the pay-as-you-pull raffle will be used to buy rapid processing equipment for the hospital's radiology department.

Hippies: Outrage at the Core

OTTAWA (CP) — Women concerned about humanity and able to see when children are "screaming inside" are needed to work with youths damaged by school and society, the landlady of a Toronto hippie house told the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club.

June Callwood, 43-year-old author and magazine writer, said Thursday there are 20,000 hippies in Canada and 500,000 in the United States and they migrate like gypsies.

There was so much anger and outrage in the core of the hippie movement it scared her.

"All these children belong to us and they are dying by almost any interpretation except the most literal," she said. If they were not helped, violence would result.

Miss Callwood—Mrs. Trent Frayne in private life and the mother of four children aged six to 22 years—said hippies are largely children of the poor from broken homes.

They were the children of alcoholics, prostitutes, child-beaters, retarded parents, mothers who had no choice but to work and parents who suffered from anxiety or depression.

They were also children of parents who thought that love was giving things or who were too wrapped up in their own careers.

LOOKING FOR CLUB

Hippies, looking for security and identification, were "the most conforming children in the world." They had adopted a certain way of dressing and living so they could get into a sort of club.

"They really don't feel they belong in the human race." In the classroom they had been punished for being restless, upset, too exhausted to learn, tormented or shamed because "they couldn't fathom the saintly antics of those prigs, Dick and Jane."

They had run away and joined "the rabble" as soon as possible.

Society had then "hustled them into cages." The one place it would care for and feed them was in jail.

"They go in disturbed and misfits, and they come out animals."

"The whole hippie movement can be said to be suffering from agitated depression."

VICTORIA VETERAN PRAISES BELGIAN COMMEMORATION

LONDON (CP) — Ernest Beau Tracey, a former Royal Marine who now makes his home in Canada, said Friday night the commemoration in Belgium April 21 of a big First World War raid in which he took part was "terrific."

"They gave us a really wonderful time," said Tracey, 67, about the reception he and his old comrades received from authorities in the port of Zeebrugge.

That was the scene on April 23, 1918, of a raid from the North Sea aimed at knocking out the port as a German submarine base.

The marine assault party of which Tracey was a member drew heavy enemy fire while blockships were sailed in and blown up, trapping a dozen submarines and 22 torpedo boats for six months.

Tracey, who returns to his home in Victoria July 2, said in an interview that he will treasure a special medal given himself and his comrades by the Belgian government in honor of the battle.

Tracey said he plans to stay in London for two weeks, seeing fellow war veterans here. A plan providing for him to lead a parade through the port was changed after he decided he wanted a less conspicuous place in the march—in the ranks of his friends.

'Nobody Gives a Damn' About Metis Women

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

EDMONTON (CP) — The story of Mary, a Metis woman whose tragic life led her almost inevitably to prostitution, was tabled Friday with the royal commission on the status of women.

The ups and mostly downs of her 22 years in Alberta were recorded by Jack Thorpe, an Edmonton businessman, who interviewed 73 young Metis and Indian women on skid road to find out why so many native women end up there.

He told the commission that the Metis—persons of mixed Indian and other blood—may explode into violence within 10 years.

Used to It

Mr. Thorpe, an Edmonton property manager who has given foster care to about 12 Metis children in his home, told the commission: "Nobody gives a damn about the Metis. . . . The women are worst off of all. If we do nothing, in 10 years we will have problems that will make the Watts and Detroit riots look like small stuff."

Mary's tragedy is summed up in her final words: "I don't really care, you seem to get used to it."

The second of 11 children born to an indifferent mother, Mary turned early to the company of Indian and Metis boys as a solace for her bouts of loneliness.

"Somehow I knew I wanted to get away from this," she says in her tape-recorded interview with Mr. Thorpe.

But the pressures of lack of money and ever-present loneliness proved too strong after she fled to Edmonton "full of hope to make a fresh start."

In the interview, which was transcribed for the commission, Mary remembers that when she was three years old, she and her mother were beaten by her drunken father, who broke Mary's arm and "hit my mother again and again."

"He stood up and, cursing all of us, he stormed out of the yard. I never saw him again."

She recalls three or four men living at her home in Lac la Biche, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton, while "my mother was always having babies" and she had to depend on a kindly teacher for food at school.

Pregnant at 14

Mary became pregnant at 14, only to discover her mother carried a child by the same man.

She lost her baby and her mother's interest about the same time "because there would be no more family allowances," and ran away from home.

Edmonton proved not much better.

"I visited about four cafes and all said they didn't need any help. The last one said they wouldn't hire any damned Indian."

Mary was picked up and given board by a friendly man named Louie, who one night came home drunk with an Indian woman. Both beat Mary, breaking three of her ribs.

She was taken to hospital and placed in the home of an elderly couple by welfare officials.

"They were nice but I felt so strange. Everything was so different."

In a few days she was back in Louie's district looking for friendly Indian or Metis faces and men who would help support her.

'About 30 Men'

"I have lived this way for about a year and a half now and have lived with about 30 men. I was pregnant twice and lost both of them. I guess I have been beat up about a dozen times."

Mr. Thorpe proposed setting up orientation centres for Metis and Indian girls from rural areas, where they could be introduced gradually to big-city life.

He had found that the 73 girls he studied arrived in the city with an average of $7.25 in their pockets. Metis men could go to men's hostels but there was no place for native girls.

He said in an interview there might be as many as 500 Metis and Indian women living on skid road in Edmonton, and smaller numbers in Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg.

9,215 Days Late

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Bill Marvel says he avoided a $460 fine by returning an overdue book during the Indianapolis library's amnesty week on fines. The book, The Story of Aircraft, was 9,215 days late. Marvel borrowed it in 1943 when he was 12 years old.

Driver Training Testing Unit To Be Shown

An "entirely new concept in driver education and training" will be demonstrated at the Empress Hotel May 6, 7 and 8 between 2 and 9 p.m.

Called "Testmate," the Multi-Media student response system is sponsored by the Association of International Driver Education Studies.

Testmate is a unit developed to enable students to learn by testing. Correct multiple choice answers are programmed into the unit along with a test paper containing the questions.

Questions are answered by pressing a pencil point on what the student thinks is the correct answer on the test paper.

If he is correct, the pencil punctures the paper. If not, it leaves a dot. The student must keep trying until he gets the correct answer. The number of misses provides a measure of a student's ability to understand and retain subject matter.

Impaired Driver Gets 20 Days

A man was sentenced to 20 days in jail for a second impaired driving conviction in central court Friday.

Charles Miller, 589 Wootten, pleaded guilty. He had been stopped by police on Sooke Road about 1:15 Friday morning and gave a breathalyser reading of 0.20.

Miller admitted to a previous conviction for impaired driving Oct. 4, 1965.

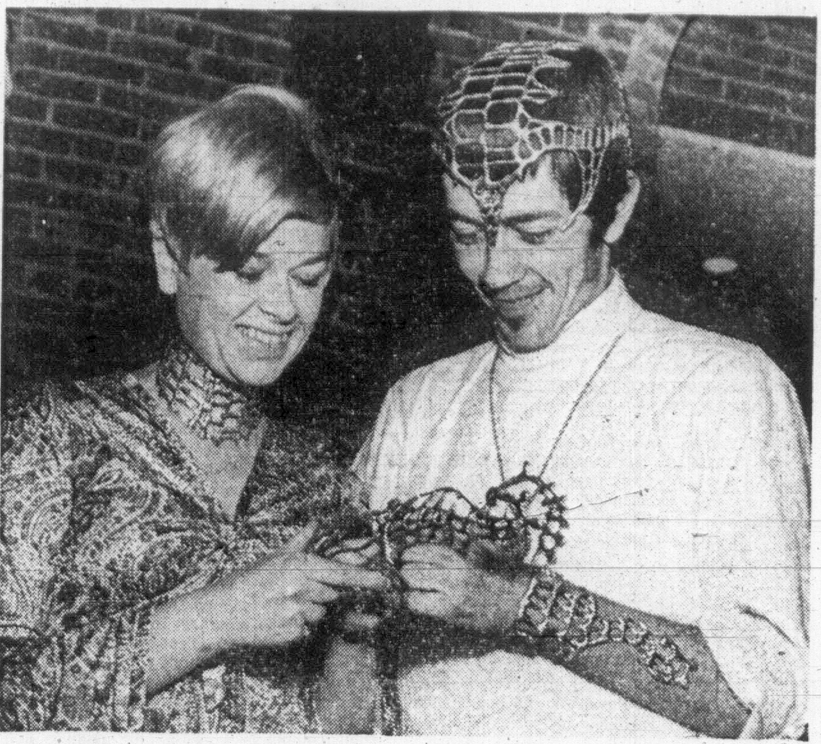
"A Gem of a Cleaner"



UNUSUAL WAY-OUT designs in jewelry are "in". Examining some of the pieces he makes in Se'Bastion's Vault on the second floor of The Village Fair, Bastion Square, are Brian Jaundrew and Unicorn salesgirl Wendy Burrell. Brian wears helmet, pendant and bracelet he made for his watch. Piece he holds is a matching ankle bracelet. Wendy wears a high collar that lends a unique touch to her India Boy dress from the Unicorn.

Almost Anybody Can Get Into Se'Bastion's Vault

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Brian Jaundrew designs jewelry in a vault but he doesn't mind a bit.

The "vault" is a tiny cubicle on the second floor of The Village Fair in Bastion Square.

The old building used to be a warehouse—and Brian's tiny workroom in what appears to be a recessed arch used to contain an enormous vault.

Brian named his workroom Se'Bastion's Vault when he opened for business April 8. He says the name doesn't mean anything, "I just like the name Sebastion and it fitted in with Bastion Square."

Although he designs both jewelry and sculpture in the vault, he distributes his work through Bastion Handicrafts on the ground floor.

MORE TIME

"It's a good arrangement," he says. "I don't have to worry about the business end and it gives me more time to work."

Brian, 22, grew up in Victoria and was an enthusiastic painter at Vic High School. He still paints and does graphics occasionally.

A year ago Brian and his wife went to Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, where he worked in the sales department of a large steel company.

That experience perhaps gave him some ideas of media from which jewelry could be made. He returned to Victoria in December and got a job as a draftsman (he still works nights).

EXPERIMENTED

"One day I was sitting around feeling frustrated, thinking of things I could do. I thought an inexpensive way of making jewelry would be to use solder, so I rushed home and began experimenting."

His first piece was a delicate necklace for his wife—very different from the kind of solid pieces he makes now.

"It took awhile to get used to working with solder. It's strange stuff to work with and somehow the jewelry evolved into heavier pieces."

Soon friends started asking Brian to make pendants and he had quite a successful business at home before opening the shop.

The Village Fair is often crowded with shoppers—and once the tourist season starts it will become even noisier.

But it doesn't bother Brian. "I love it. I really enjoy poeple watching me work if they're interested. I can more or less show them exactly what I'm doing."

One visitor to Se'Bastion's Vault was a girl from Seattle who watched the whole process carefully with the idea of making similar jewelry at home.

Brian explained the process. "You use wire solder with a high tin content. Heat it with a propane torch and it will run.

'JUST HAPPENS'

"It flows into the shape you want which means its difficult to plan a piece—you can to a certain extent but usually it just happens.

Through heating, the tin will come to the surface and form a very hard shell around the outside. Then when you've finished the piece, you polish and lacquer it, so that the lead won't run off."

Recently Brian has begun to make sculptures using a similar process. "They really evolved out of the jewelry. I had made them of carved wood before, but I happened to be overstocked with jewelry, so I decided to try using the solder.

"I use wire to design the figure and then free form lead over it."

EARRINGS TOO

Many of Brian's jewelry pieces are unusual. For women he has designed ankle bracelets, arm bands, head bands, collars, brooches, and rings. When he gets more equipment, he hopes to make earrings as well.

His latest order was for a pair of sandals. He also makes jewelry for men—pendants, necklaces, bracelets, helmets.

"I think it's great if men wear jewelry that has tastefully been made for them," he says. "There are very definitely feminine pieces and masculine pieces depending on size and weight.

"I don't think jewelry takes away from a man's masculinity as long as its been made for the man."

Brian himself wears a large pendant designed around a 1964 Olympic medal and a bracelet for his watch. The unusual helmet in the picture was made for a male friend.

'BIT OF FASHION'

"He intends to wear it," says Brian, "but of course not all the time.

"Whether a man can wear jewelry depends entirely on the kind of person he is.

"That's why I like working in the Vault to order. I can actually design a piece for a specific person. I can design for the individual rather than just making a lot of jewelry and having people buy it at random."

Brian's new business started very slowly, probably there," but since word got around, it's been thriving.

He insists his jewelry is not designed to cater to tourists.

"It's more for Victorians than for anyone else. I'm trying in a very small way to bring a bit of fashion to staid Victoria."

Church Plans New Home For Aged

A $750,000 home for elderly people to replace the Caroline Macklem Home on Rockland Avenue is planned by the Anglican Diocesan Council.

Canon Grahame Baker, chairman of the council, said the new home will be built on the same site subject to rezoning approval from the city and a provincial government grant.

The present home was given to the church by the late Kathleen Agnew and is housing a maximum of 24 persons. The proposed building would house 96 men and women, single or married.

The Anglican Church Women have agreed to provide $200,000 towards the project and have already released $1,000 to cover cost of the initial plans.

Canon Baker said an application will be made to Central Mortgage and Housing for a loan and the B.C. government will be approached for a grant.

"We need about $500,000," he said.

Income Tax Charge Laid Against Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Victor Michael Prescottt, a Vancouver businessman and lawyer, Friday was charged under the Income Tax Act with failing to report $413,317 in income. He will appear in court May 3.

He is charged with nine counts of failure to report income from 1953 to 1964 and with two charges of acquiescing in the making of false or deceptive statements of two companies of which he was an officer.

The charges allege non-reporting of income from promotion, share trading, sale of mineral claims and management and legal fees, and overstatement of expenses and personal exemptioons.

Two companies named in the charges are American Land Management Ltd., and the Vi-Co Corp., both of Vancouver.

Clocks on Move Tonight But Alberta Opting Out

By The Canadian Press

Daylight time comes into effect by law in six provinces starting Sunday and will become general in most communities in Ontario and Nova Scotia during the period which ends Saturday, Oct. 26.

Only in Alberta, where year-round standard time has been backed by provincial legislation since 1948, will clocks not be set ahead one hour to take advantage of the longer summer daylight. Alberta voters turned down any change in the law in the provincial election last May.

In the remaining province, Saskatchewan, daylight time is not used by name, but a number of communities in the western part of the province get the same result by changing from the Mountain to the Central standard time zone.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that daylight time will be effective by legislature action in Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia this year.

Legislation enforcing a change of time for the summer months is relatively new in Canada. Until the 1960s, most cities and larger towns set their clocks ahead, while rural areas largely stayed with standard time.

TOWNS DODGED LAW

Prince Edward Island, like Alberta, had a provincial law against daylight time until 1964. Until the province switched to legally enforced daylight time, some municipalities circumvented the law by operating on what they called "advanced summer hours."

Reflecting the general change toward daylight time, both major railroads have altered their traditional policy of issuing timetables in standard time the year round, with schedules changed in the summer months to adjust to the off-and-on pattern. Canadian National Railways pioneered the move, and Canadian Pacific will follow suit this year with its summer timetable showing local times. The local-time pattern has been practised by airlines for many years.

In Ontario and Nova Scotia, the dates for changing to and from daylight time have become uniform with those in the provinces where they are set by legislation—from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. The same dates apply to Saskatchewan centres which change from MST to CST.

In most places the time of the change is set at 2 a.m. Sunday to avoid disruptions, but a few make the change at midnight.

Nova Scotia communities have observed these dates with a few minor exceptions since the Second World War, but in Ontario the switch in smaller centres has become more marked in recent years.

Only two Ontario cities, Port Arthur and Fort William, now remain on standard time throughout the year. The Lakehead cities lie at the western edge of the Eastern time zone, resulting in a later sunset than in the eastern part of the province. This apparently satisfies local residents who have voted against any change.

One other city, Windsor, formerly stayed on standard time to conform with neighboring Detroit, but council voted last year to switch to daylight time.

USE YOUR CHARGE PLATE

How many years younger do you think your face should look to make you really happy?

When a woman uses 2nd Debut to make her face look too young, it would be said that she used it not too wisely. And if she uses it to shed only one or two birthdays, this too would be a waste of her time, energy and money. Any woman about to depart on a course of facial rehabilitation with 2nd Debut should first decide just how youthful her face should be made to look to best serve her present purposes. Once this decision is made, there remains little to do beyond applying 2nd Debut nightly according to directions and discontinuing its use when the desired state of more youthful looking linelessness is reached.

WHAT 2nd DEBUT IS:

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance re-established by maintaining the water balance of skin at normally required levels. 2nd Debut, therefore, contains neither oil nor grease. Instead, it is an aqueous emulsion of the ingredient known to be the one employed by nature to keep human skin adequately moist to prevent dryness and premature aging.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, this ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the skin automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you near the end of your first 2nd Debut course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began. And, at some later indefinite time, you may begin another course of nightly 2nd Debut applications, with assurance it will be fully as effective as the routine just completed.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. The first contains CEF 600 and is designed for the woman with early worries; that is, the younger woman who has started to line before her time.

The double-potency CEF 1200 was formulated for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster. In only a few days you see a marked change.

Now, to prepare your skin to receive these treatments, 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser was developed. Its results are dynamic. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinse off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

For a perfect complexion instantly, matte finish 2nd Debut Liquid Make-up with CEF 600. Covers blemishes and imperfections so completely and with such a natural look no one suspects it of being make-up. Helps overcome skin dryness, too. Six shades, each a natural skin tone. From Pale to Golden Tan.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) is a most welcome sensation in body and hand grooming. Imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of chapping and roughness with its deep moisturizing of your hands. This is a dual-purpose balm with an immediate and pleasurable effect.

JACK BIGG
. . . off to campaign

MPs Fill Mail With Election 'Information'

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Bigg, who once patrolled his Alberta riding as a Mountie, is known here as Big Jack.

He sees this as a definite asset at election time.

"That's the way my name appears on the ballot—Bigg, Jack," the 55-year-old Conservative said Friday. "And it's the first name too."

Members of the last Parliament were flowing from the capital as fast as their mail Friday to get home and begin the hard work of getting re-elected.

They began phoning their organizers Tuesday, when the election was called, then spent the next couple of days at party policy meetings.

"The caucuses have met, submitted their reports and dispersed to fight the election," a Conservative bulletin said Friday.

Mr. Bigg left for Alberta on an evening flight, his last free ride as an MP unless he is re-elected. He wore an "I'm for a Bigg majority" button on his tie.

He already has mailed out 20,000 Alberta electoral maps to make sure constituents realize he'll be running in the new riding of Palliser rather than Athabasca this time.

MAIL INCREASES

The parliamentary post office said the flow of mail increased sharply Tuesday, and will continue to be heavy until May 3 when free mailing privileges run out.

Many MPs can't rely on much support from the national campaigns of their party because they are running in remote regions where television is unknown and even radio is limited.

Liberal Bud Orange is seeking re-election in what he calls the largest electoral district in the world, the 1,300,000-square-mile Northwest Territories riding.

This huge constituency begins at the 60th parallel, or the northern boundary of the Prairie provinces, and runs to the North Pole.

It is five time zones wide and its 13,500 voters live in 78 communities, many of them Indian and Eskimo.

Mr. Orange's reported election expenses in the 1965 campaign ran to $18,000, mostly for charter flights and telephone calls.

IT TAKES TIME

Andrew Chatwood, a Liberal seeking re-election in the Newfoundland riding of Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador, uses charter planes, snow autos, dog sleds and boats to get around.

He is preparing some printed election material in the Eskimo syllabic. His 75,000 constituents speak English, French, Eskimo or Montagnais and are scattered in 170 communities over 125,000 square miles.

If the frontier poses problems, so do the city ridings where a whole new population may have moved into a riding since the previous election.

Despite newspapers, radio and television, buttons, posters and mail, many politicians say the urban voter is still the hardest of all to reach.

Ill-Bred But No Lack Of Breeding

LEMARS, Iowa (Reuters) — The owner of three "ill-bred unregistered 'bulls" that showed unwanted amorous attentions is being sued by the owner of 83 heifers.

Jim Holton asked for $3,261 damages from his neighbor, Charles Wiley, in a suit filed in district court. Holton claims Wiley's three bulls entered his pasture and impregnated his entire herd of heifers.

Holton claims that between April and November last year the three bulls—a Texas longhorn, a black brahma and a red bull—entered the Holton field through a partition fence owned jointly be the two men.

Holton said that because of Wiley's negligence and the aggressive behavior of the bulls his 83 heifers have been "got with calf" and their value has depreciated.

Job-Finding Given Priority In Drive by Halifax Negroes

By JOHN SOOSAR

HALIFAX (CP) — Long frustrated by what they call public apathy and unwieldy government efforts toward their demands for equality in employment and housing, Halifax-area Negroes are now taking a different course to gain their "human rights."

Instead of pressing for better housing and greater employment opportunities simultaneously, the Negro community of about 7,000 in the greater Halifax area, is concentrating its efforts on employment. Halifax is home for about one-third of the 23,000 Negroes in Nova Scotia, which has more than two-thirds of the estimated 32,000 Negroes in Canada.

Last week a meeting of 100 businessmen and Negro leaders called by Mayor Allan O'Brien formed a six-member committee to establish a co-ordinating agency that would fit Negro applicants to job openings and follow through on the effectiveness of the program, including counselling and training.

AIM AT JOBS

Rev. Wrenfred Bryant, moderator of the African United Baptist Association of Nova Scotia, said they decided to "aim at unemployment, perhaps take these things a step at a time."

"Our young people are falling into the general mould of becoming educated so I don't think we need to stress that as much now as to provide the openings . . . for jobs."

Although plans for the meeting were being made with civic officials in March, the murder of Rev. Martin Luther King in early April added urgency to the conference.

"The meeting caught fire and I think the shock had much to do with it," says Mr. Bryant.

The meeting served to pinpoint the problems facing Negroes in seeking jobs. Negro spokesmen hit hard at discrimination, contending some firms were hiring one or two on a token basis "to satisfy their own consciences and satisfy the public."

What may prove to be a breakthrough in employment opportunities for Negroes came at a time when their desire to break discrimination is perhaps unprecedented.

WANT TO MOVE

Having followed the racial strife in the United States with general apathy, the Negro community's attitude underwent a sudden change with the death of Dr. King. The death gave the community "a feeling of wanting to move ahead and achieve our rightful place," said Mr. Bryant.

Young Negroes who are caught up in the urgency for change and better conditions have largely shunned violence, however.

A brief encounter between Negro and white youths during a dance in the city's north end last fall had some racial overtones but caused no great alarm. Instrumental in bringing the outbreak under control was a young Negro social worker.

Although most Halifax-area Negroes are believed to reject the militancy of the Black Power movement, Mr. Bryant says "they would accept a Black Power that makes them feel they could go into jobs, business and achieve something . . . and this is known as black consciousness. It is an emerging term."

However, he does not completely rule out violence this summer in view of the large concentration of Negroes here.

"I think people should realize that this type of thing and worse can take place," he said. "One has to take steps, of course, to see that it doesn't happen."

Weddings

Lodge—Peetz

A double ring ceremony was solemnized on April 16th, 1968 at 7:30 p.m. in St. Matthias Church when Janice Mary Peetz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Peetz, 2092 Marne Street exchanged marriage vows with Richard Gregg Lodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lodge of Sidney. Rev. Angus Cameron assisted Canon J. Rogers during the ceremony. Wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. E. Edwards.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor length gown of Peau D'Elegance with a band of lace accenting the Empire waist and wide bands of lace around the elbow length sleeves and hem. A lace and pearl headpiece held the Cathedral length veil in place and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

For "something old" the bride wore an heirloom gold and pearl necklace with a pearl cross. For "something borrowed" she had a lace handkerchief belonging to her Godmother, Mrs. D. Sharpe.

The maid of honour, Miss Sandra Lloyd and bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Gardiner were dressed alike in floor length Empire style cerise gowns. Their headpieces were self fabric pearl tipped roses with short veils and they carried bouquets of white carnations.

The groom had Mr. Richard Prette as his best man and ushering the guests were Messrs. G. Peech and B. Lodge.

Mr. D. Sharpe proposed the toast to the bride at the reception held at King Arthur's Round Table.

Leaving on a honeymoon to ski at Whistler Mountain and to Big White, the bride wore a Kelly green dress and jacket, with camel coloured accessories, complimented with a corsage of yellow roses and carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lodge have now taken up residence in Victoria.

Horne — Morrison

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morrison, 2821 Wyndeatt Avenue, wish to announce the marriage of their elder daughter, Frances Mary, to Mr. John MacGregor Horne, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Horne of 940 Heywood Ave. The wedding took place in Ottawa at the Woodroffe United Church at 8:15 p.m. on April 10th, 1968, with Rev. W. Larke officiating. They were attended by Professor and Mrs. Keith Hay. After a honeymoon in Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Horne are now residing in Ottawa.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted and for words of sympathy expressed when the Lord suddenly took our son Russell home. — Mr. and Mrs. J. Hodson and Family.

There is so little one can say at a time like this, except thank you, to all our friends — for all the beautiful flowers, letters and kind words on this sad occasion of our beloved daughter Alice Aneta's passing. — Eric and Sylvia Bergh.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness and messages of sympathy received in the loss of our Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. Minnie S. Craig. We especially thank Dr. Shorting, The Rev. Kerley, Linden Towers and Aberdeen Hospital staff, also McCall Bros. for their kind services.—Warren and Wilma Craig and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A safety play is an insurance policy to protect a contract. It is most important in rubber bridge where overtricks mean little but also has its place in match point duplicate.

In the recent Metropolitan championships, Carol Leib and Jane Kerr won the women's pairs. One of their good scores came when Carol wisely decided to take out an insurance policy on a four-spade contract.

East put the ace of diamonds on her partner's queen and Carol dropped the king. This type play is almost automatic with any good player irrespective of the possible need to establish an extra entry to dummy.

East returned the nine of diamonds and Carol let dummy's 10 win the trick. Then she went into a lot of study before leading the ace of clubs and discarding her jack of diamonds. This was her insurance policy. It made it impossible for her to make an overtrick, but nevertheless made it impossible for her to lose her contract.

Her next play was a low trump. East jumped up with the ace and led another diamond. Carol ruffed high, drew trumps, stopping in dummy, and discarded three low hearts on the last two high clubs.

It should be noted that the safety play would have been equally effective had West held the ace of spades. East would have been able to trump a heart, but the heart East trumped would have been the small one that Carol lost anyway.

It should also be noted that if East had ducked the first diamond, Carol would have had to go down one trick and that a heart plus further correct defence would also have beaten her, but no one who wants to win waits for sure-thing contracts.

"CYCLE" Magazine road-tested the 350 Honda. . . . THIS is what they had to say:

- Probably the most technically advanced motorcycle built to date.
- The 350 engine (racing mills excepted,) is the most sophisticated power plant that has been produced to date.
- A lower end that a Chrysler Hemi would be proud of.
- The 350s are among the smoothest four stroke motorcycles we have tested.
- Cornered with razor sharp precision regardless of the angle at which they were heeled over.
- They've got plenty of punch and are easily capable of cruising speeds in the 80-85 m.p.h. range.
- Everywhere you look, mechanical perfection. The 350s are without flaw.

Come in and test ride the 350 Honda now at

KINGHAM PLACE

With 200 ft. of waterfront in a prestige neighbourhood, this executive home proves that a sophisticated modern rancher can also have charm and beauty when nestled in an appropriate parklike setting.

The living room window-wall opening onto a wide sun porch, running the whole length of the house, facing eastward over Portage Inlet catches the morning glory of the early sunrise and adds a feeling of spaciousness, which is further magnified by the open-beamed ceiling which covers both the living room and the dining room and the ultra-modern kitchen.

The kitchen has just about everything you can imagine built in. Double sink with garbage disposal unit, built-in oven, table-top range and built-in mixer. Utility room wired for dryer and plumbed for washer with built-in business-like desk.

Specially designed five-piece vanity bathroom, two large bedrooms up and a third down with a unique recreation room opening onto the patio at ground level, with gently sloping lawn leading down to the private waterfront.

Oil fired, perimeter hot water heating, two-car garage, large secluded lot approximately one-third of an acre with ample parking for visitors' cars, some outcropping rock and tall oak and arbutus trees.

$35,000

with $10,000 down and owner will carry balance at $225 per month. Open to cash offers or other terms to suit prospective buyers.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS will be received by the undersigned for the construction of

ADDITIONS TO HAPPY VALLEY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Drawings, specifications, forms of tender and detailed instructions to bidders are available to General Contractors at the office of Peterson and Lester, Architects, 1010 Langley Street, Victoria, on or after 2 p.m. Monday, April 29, 1968.

A returnable deposit of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00) is required for each set of drawings and specifications. Tenders must be good for thirty (30) days. Tenders must be accompanied by a bid bond in the form prescribed, which binds the tenderer and the surety in the amount of Six Thousand Dollars ($6,000.00) at the time of tendering. A performance bond and a labor and material payment bond, each in the amount of 50% of the contract price in the form prescribed, must be provided by the successful tenderer prior to the award of the contract. Certified cheques will not be accepted.

Contractor's attention is drawn to the clause in Instructions to Bidders on depository bids.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Tenders must be made out on the forms supplied by the Architect, addressed to the undersigned and delivered to the offices of the Board not later than 4 p.m., Tuesday, May 21, 1968.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, in triplicate on special forms supplied for the General Contract including all trades, endorsed "TENDERS FOR WEST COAST GENERAL HOSPITAL," will be received by the Board of Trustees at West Coast General Hospital in Port Alberni on the 6th day of June, 1968, on or before 2 p.m. (Pacific Daylight Saving Time).

Plans, specifications, form of tender will be available after 1 p.m. (Pacific Daylight Saving Time) the 30th day of April, 1968, at the office of the architects on payment of One Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($150.00) refundable—for each set of tender documents.

Plans will be issued to mechanical, heating, plumbing and electrical contractors, as well as general contractors. Additional plans available for sub-trades at plan centres.

The tender, which must be firm for thirty (30) days from tender closing date, to be accompanied by a bid bond for 5% of the tender amount, made payable to the West Coast General Hospital Society. If within this time of thirty (30) days the tendering party declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, will forfeit the full value of the bid bond to the owners. Within fifteen (15) days of notification of intent to award a contract the successful tenderer shall furnish a performance bond equal to fifty (50) per cent of the contract price. On receipt of this bond the bid bond will be returned.

The West Coast General Hospital Society and the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service reserves the right to reject any or all tenders without explanation. NO TENDER having qualifying clauses will be considered.

Bid depository will apply to all trades listed in the instructions to bidders.

'No One Left Homeless' Catholic Priest Says

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — A Roman Catholic priest has denied that the razing of an Indian shacktown on church property near this village 350 miles north of Vancouver left 25 persons homeless and cost them their possessions.

Rev. Gerald Holmes ordered the 15 shacks bulldozed into heaps of lumber and burned Wednesday, describing them as a breeding ground for disease, drinking and violence.

Chief Nicholas Prince of the Nescolie band said Thursday the action resulted in families being left homeless and the razing claimed stoves, furniture, food and other possessions.

He said families, members of the Takla and Stuart-Trembleur bands, were sitting on the roadside "like a bunch of refugees."

"No one lost anything, everything was moved out," said Father Holmes. "No one was left homeless or sitting on the road.

"The church would have looked after them ... we've been looking after them for so long now."

Father Holmes said the shack town had existed for 20 years and had been condemned by health authorities in Fort St. James six years ago. A murder near the five-acre area two weeks ago sparked the demolition, he said.

The shacktown is located on a Roman Catholic Church mission on the south shore of Stuart Lake within the boundaries of Fort St. James. The church and an Indian school it operates is a few hundred yards away.

WERE WARNED

He said the inhabitants were warned as early as February this year the area would be levelled and the church went to each building on the site to make certain everyone had found a new place to live and that no belongings would be destroyed.

Two families totalling 25 persons were affected, he said. One dwelling was left standing and the other family moved in with relatives.

The inhabitants of the shacktown came from two reserves 30 miles north of here "to be near the beer parlor," the priest said.

Chief Prince, who is not a member of the Indian bands affected by the razing, said they squatted in the area to be nearer work health and welfare services.

'HE'S A STOOGE'

The chief "wasn't even there and didn't see what happened," said Father Holmes. "He's being used by someone else ... he's a stooge."

The priest said he was not in a position to divulge the name of the person.

The shacktown was known to local residents as Camp 24 because of the inhabitants' custom of brewing liquor and waiting only 24 hours to sample it.

Razing of the land was paid for by the church. Father Holmes said it has no immediate plans for the acreage.

A. C. Roach of Prince George, Indain Affairs department superintendent for the area, visited Fort St. James Thursday and said the Indians "were very upset that the church had treated them in this manner."

"They said they felt any action should have been delayed for a month or so when the weather was warmer. They said they felt they had been treated as dogs."

Mr. Roach declined comment on conditions in Camp 24, which is outside his jurisdiction since it is on private property.

He said the Indians complained they had lost rifles, clothing, furniture and bedding when Camp 24 was razed.

"I have asked them to give me a list of the property they say has been lost."

... WELFARE

She noted the disparity that provides a destitute couple with $125 until age 65 when they may apply for $210 through the old age pension.

Mrs. Gunning also said that the province now is in receipt of additional funds for welfare through the Canada Assistance Plan, the federal reduction in the age limits for old age pensions and the greater apportionment of costs to the municipalities.

Municipalities now pay 20 per cent rather than 10 per cent of welfare costs.

REHABILITATION

"We would certainly hope that these monies could now be made available for strengthening social assistance programs and promote prevention and rehabilitation programs" aimed at getting people off welfare.

Mr. Barrett says the rates do not solve the situation that makes it profitable for a father on welfare to desert his family.

A man and wife and three school age children who received $200 a month now would receive about $35 a month more. But if the father deserts the family receives a comparable amount while the father may also apply for an additional $75.

He said the other uncorrected situation is the disparity in rates paid for care of children living with their parents on welfare and children taken from a broken family and placed in foster homes.

The child on welfare is worth $50 plus the increase of about $11 if he is in a single child family. In a two child home he's worth $25 plus the increase, in terms of monthly income.

GETS $85

But placed in a foster home the child brings allowances which average out at $85 a month.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan says the government policy "is to break up families."

He criticized the government for not announcing the new welfare rates during the last session of the legislature where they could have been debated and reviewed.

"This is obviously not the way to improve welfare services in this province," Mr. Strachan stated.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich said the easing of the problems of welfare families was commendable but the increased expense to municipalities came at a bad time. Many budgets already have been set.

He estimated the new rates would increase costs to Saanich by $29,000 annually and in Victoria about $28,000.

Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said the increases would mean a total annual outlay of $3.6 million.

Besides the municipal 20 per cent contribution, the province pays 30 per cent and the federal government 50 per cent.

Welfare Overhaul Demanded

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Glen Hamilton, executive-director of the British Columbia Association of Social Workers has called for a complete overhaul of the province's welfare system.

"The present system neither provides a decent standard of living nor offers opportunities and encouragement for people to become self supporting," Dr. Hamilton said Friday.

"It is high time the B.C. provincial department of welfare and the federal department of manpower established a massive training program to utilize the potential now being wasted in welfare dependency."

Dr. Hamilton was commenting on a provincial cabinet announcement Friday of a $3,600,000 increase in welfare to families with children.

Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said the increases will give an extra $141 a year for a school age child.

Dr. Hamilton said "when a mother with a new child has only $125 a month on which to manage, an extra $11 means a lot."

"However, I still can't see how anyone can manage on these amounts with the present cost of food, clothing and rent."

Party To End Meeting

The Family and Children's Service will throw a party after its Thursday meeting.

Beginning at 8 p.m. the meeting will include discussion groups with a panel of experienced foster parents and a foster youth group.

The party, with anniversary cake and dancing, will begin at 9:30. And the dancing, says a service official, will be "beat and off-beat."

The celebration marks the fifth year of regular meetings to keep the public informed about dealing with foster children. A year ago, the organization began giving foster children an active part in their meetings.

The meeting will be held at Goodwill Enterprises, 220 Bay St.

Canadian Union Again Wins Vote At Gold River

Pulp mill workers at Gold River on the west coast of Vancouver Island have voted in favor of keeping the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada as their bargaining agent.

The Canadian union, in an announcement today, said the vote earllier this week was 179-to-95.

It said the vote was held because of an attempt by the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers to win majority support.

The two unions are bitter rivals and have been feuding for five years over which one will represent pulp workers at different mills in B.C.

One year ago the Canadian union won certification to represent workers at the new Gold River mill after employees voted 86-to-63 in a ballot ordered by the Labour Relations Board.

B.C. Optometrists Discuss Future Of Profession

Over 100 B.C. optometrists are here this weekend for the 48th annual convention of the British Columbia Optometric Association.

Theme of the three-day meeting, opening Sunday, is "Optometry in the Future," with advancement of professional education the main consideration.

Dr. Clarence Carkner, clinical educator from Portland, Ore., will moderate the panel discussing the future of optometric education for western Canada.

Special guests attending will include Canadian Association of Optometrists president, Dr. Hugh D. MacKenzie; Alberta association president, Dr. Irving J. McNabb; Saskatchewan president, Dr. C. Norman Church, and Manitoba president Dr. Ray Brown.

Province May Look at Tahsis Oil Slick Problem

Provincial officials likely will go into the Gold River area Monday to look at spreading bunker oil from a sunken freighter.

But, added B.C. Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan, "the problem is clearly the responsibility of the federal government."

Two tugs are attempting to sweep the oil to sea while two ore vessels are spreading emulsifier on it to combat possible pollution.

A five-mile oil slick spread from the freighter Schiedyk which sank near Gold River last January. She was resting on a reef but slipped off into 600 feet of water.

Puppies Get Kiss of Life

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Firemen hurried to the scene of a burning house Friday and used mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to revive eight tiny victims who had been overcome by smoke.

The survivors were German Shepherd puppies.

The puppies, only a few weeks' old, were said to be doing nicely. No humans were hurt either.

Four-Year Term For Wounding

DUNCAN — Francis George, 36, of Cowichan Indian Reserve, was sent to the B.C. penitentiary for four years Friday.

Magistrate Lance Heard imposed the term when George appeared on remand having previously been found guilty of wounding with intent.

The charge arose from a March 1 incident in which George's common law wife was stabbed several times.

Magistrate Heard told accused he was fortunate none of the stab wounds killed Cecilia George.

The magistrate said he took into account the fact drink had a lot to do with the incident, but said he had to consider the protection of the public.

QUALIFYING for his master of education degree in administration is A. J. Longmore, assistant superintendent of schools in the Greater Victoria school district.

Youth Caught In Theft Bid

A youth caught attempting to steal a sports car Friday night was fined $200 today.

Joseph Kenny, 19, of Work Point Barracks, pleaded guilty to attempted theft.

Court was told the owner of the car returned to his vehicle in a parking lot and found Kenny with the car door open peering under the dashboard.

Trollers Want Minister

NORTH SURREY (CP)—The Pacific Trollers' Association said today it has asked Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau to give Western Canada its own Minister of Fisheries.

Charman Showing '68 Models

Victoria Progressive Conservative election candidate Eric Charman has opened his campaign headquarters in a former new car showroom.

And he's borrowed some publicity gimmicks from the car business too.

A huge sign in the glass-walled offices, former home of Empress Motors at Fort and Quadra proclaims:

"For real perfection and live action, try our '68 models, Stanfield and Charman. Trade in your 1963 and 1965 models."

Mr. Charman has already started early morning tours of local business and industrial sections, introducing himself to voters.

A real estate operator, he was defeated in an attempt to win the seat in 1963.

16-Year-Old Girl Reported Missing

Saanich police report 16-year-old Christine Bajarski, 1264 Garkil, missing from her home since April 14.

She is five feet, three inches, 105 pounds, has black shoulder-length hair and hazel eyes.

Anyone with information as to her whereabouts is asked to telephone Saanich police at 388-4321.

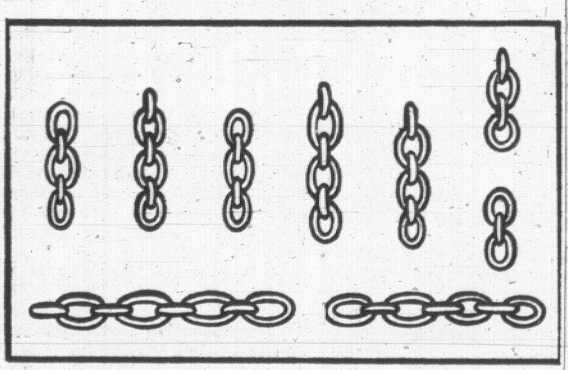
SMART GALLERY



Here's an oldie that's still a challenge: Members of an archeological expedition dug up nine segments of an ancient anchor chain. Wishing to restore it to one piece they took the segments to a blacksmith. After carefully studying the rusted links, and mentally pondering the problem, the blacksmith began to work. It required five minutes of time to open a link and ten minutes to weld a link together again. What was the least time in which he could complete the job of joining the nine segments?

Answer: One way is to start with two sections of three and four links; it would take 35 minutes to open all seven. Welding these to the remaining sections would require 70 minutes—a total of one hour and 45 minutes.

WHO WAS DOING WHAT?

In the Average home last Sunday evening, four members of the family were seated about the dining room table. Three were reading and one was studying TV listings.

Young Tom Average was sitting at his mother's left. Mary Average, who was reading, was on the right of the person reading a best-seller novel. The TV fan was sitting between the person reading the sports page and the person reading the novel. The other person present was reading the school news.

If Tom Average Sr., who was sitting opposite his wife, was not reading the school news, who was reading the sports page?

Answer: Tom Sr. was reading the sports page. Mother was reading the book. Mary was reading the school news, young Tom was studying the TV listings.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

All of the cities below are in capitals, typographically speaking. Some should not be in capital letters, geographically speaking, for they are not the capitals of their countries or states. Which ones?

1. CHICAGO.
2. NEW YORK.
3. BANGKOK.
4. HOUSTON.
5. TOKYO.
6. DUBLIN.
7. QUEZON CITY.
8. MELBOURNE.
9. TORONTO.
10. ADDIS ABABA.

Answers: Chicago, New York, Houston are not capital cities. Australia's capital is now Canberra; Melbourne is the capital of Victoria. Toronto is the capital of Ontario, not of Canada. The others are capitals of countries.

TESTING YOUR IMAGINATION

How's your imagination? Let's see. Imagine four horizontal lines an inch apart, one directly under another.

Next, imagine four vertical lines also an inch apart, each cutting all four of the horizontal lines. How many squares are formed?

Remember this is a test of imagination.

Answer: Fourteen. Nine small squares and five others.

ANSWER TO THIS IS IN THE CARDS

In the let-up while the sandwiches and soft drinks are being served at your next card party, some of the male guests may like to try to guess or figure out answers to the following questions:

How many cards must be dealt from a shuffled deck of cards before a player can be sure of holding (a) a royal flush? (b) four of a kind? (c) a full house?

The answers are:

(a) A royal flush consists of the ten, jack, queen, king and ace of one of the suits. Threfore, to be sure that you hold a royal flush you need to be dealt 49 cards since the last four cards in the deck might be one of the required cards from each suit.

(c) To be sure of holding a of a kind you must be dealt 40 cards since the first 39 cards could be three of each kind and the 40th card the one needed to make four of a kind.

(c) To be sure ofholding a full house, which is three of a kind and two of another, you would need to be dealt 27 cards since the first 26 might consist of pairs and the next card would be needed to make three of one kind.

ONE FOR MONEY, TWO FOR THE SHOW?

If the price of two is one peso; ten, two pesos; two hundred and twelve, three pesos, what's on sale? P.S.: It's something that helps the mailman.

Answer: House numbers.

Work on the Mason-Dixon line was completed 50, 100, 200 years ago. Which?

Answer: 200 — In 1767.

'Stem the Tide of Secularism'

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Plans were made this week for a membership meeting in Duncan Christian Reformed Church Friday, May 17, of the Association for Reformed Scientific Studies.

A teacher at the local Christian Reformed Church school, Mrs. W. Spyksma, will speak on "How do I teach biblically in the Christian school?"

The organization's aim is "to stem the tide of secularism in higher education."

It exists to promote biblically-directed learning at the university level. About 15 young people from Duncan attended an Easter Monday high school students' conference at Victoria where they discussed the Christian student.

The Duncan chapter of the association hopes to have bi-weekly sessions next winter.

Recently the association opened an institute at Toronto, and conferences for university students are held at different centres across Canada.

John R. Seeley, a member of the group, has condemned the existing universities as "machines to truncate, destroy and mis-shape, heightening ignorance while promoting the illusion of education."

GLAD TIDINGS MEETING

Rev. Gordon Falconer of Duncan's Glad Tidings Tabernacle will take layman, Alfred McBames, with him as a delegate to the annual district conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada to be held at New Westminister May 6-9.

Mr. Falconer said the conference will debate the upgrading of the North Vancouver seminary which the provincial government has now granted power to confer degrees.

Meanwhile, United Church congregations on the Island are preparing for the visit of the first United Church's annual pickup truck from Vancouver on behalf of its welfare drive.

First United dispatch a truck to the Island to pick up used clothing, small appliances, dishes and toys for distribution among the needy.

The truck comes to the Island May 12, and to Duncan on May 15.

Grader Driver Helps Youths On Fire Truck

DUNCAN — Don Scott is a grader operator for North Cowichan municipality, and a youth worker for Duncan Baptist Church.

His pet project of the moment keeps him busy every Friday evening.

He takes a group of 14-year-old boys out to a Cobble Hill garage to work on an old car.

They're converting the car into a fire engine for use at the Baptist Church summer camp at Crofton.

The full program of youth work has resumed after the Easter Recess. This includes a girls' inter-denominational group which meets each Thursday evening for a program ranging from Bible studies to lessons on citizenship and handicrafts.

French Hero Dies

DIJON, France (AP) — Rev. Felix Kir, 92, the famous Canon Kir who has been mayor of Dion for 24 years, died Thursday in hospital. The colorful, popular Canon Kir had been a Second World War resistance hero, had received Nikita Khrushchev in his city hall, and been immortalized in a mixture of white wine and Creme de Cassis, called a Kir. He had taken a fall on a stairway 10 days ago at his home.

New Archbishop Named At Early May Meeting

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

A new archbishop of British Columbia will be elected by the six Anglican bishops of the province at a meeting in Vancouver during the first week of May.

The new archbishop will succeed Most Rev. Harold Sexton, who has retired as archbishop but continues as Bishop of the Diocese of British Columbia—an old-fashioned, ecclesiastical term meaning Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands.

It is expected the new archbishop will have been appointed when the Synod (parliament) of Vancouver Island meets at Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, on May 9, 10 and 11.

RETAINS TITLE

Regardless, Archbishop Sexton (he retains the title for life) will preside over the synod, as he has done for the past 33 years, and will deliver his annual charge to the assembly of clergy and laymen.

The charge usually contains a few salty references to the provincial and federal governments.

Three years ago, the archbishop called on the people to beware of "dictatorship" in government. This was apparently aimed at Premier Bennett; yet he and the premier are usually on very friendly terms.

POWER OF VETO

Some said it could apply to the archbishop himself, since he has the power of veto over resolutions passed at the annual synod, and has used it more than once.

For the first time in the history of the diocese, women delegates will attend the synod. There will be 13 of them, representing Anglican groups all over the Island, and they are the result of a resolution passed by the synod last May.

Mrs. Elsie Pope will represent the newly-established Anglican community at Gold River.

NO STUFFINESS

At a press conference concerning the synod at Christ Church Cathedral Thursday, Dick Batey, a member of the public relations committee, noted the synod for the first time in this diocese had been designed to get away from formal stuffy reports and had moved into informal discussions involving laymen and clergymen.

He called attention to Camp Columbia on Thetis Island, which has been operated by the Vancouver Island diocese for 21 years.

"This summer, for the first time, we will have a mixed camp of boys and girls," Mr. Batey said, "and we believe they will benefit from a happy association in congenial surroundings."

Rev. Walter Donald, deacon at Christ Church Cathedral, spoke as public relations officer for the forthcoming synod.

He said a retreat was held at Camp Columbia recently at which young men and women discussed the plight of the world's hungry and decided they should do something about it.

Mr. Batey spoke of plans for a major development of Camp Columbia, which covers 70 acres with more than 1,000 feet of waterfront.

"We have a magnificent site and we're going to make the most of it," he said.

Sally Ann Chief In Town Monday

Visiting Victoria Monday will be Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman, national commander for the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda.

The commissioner will address the annual board meeting of the army's citizens advisory board at a dinner meeting in the Imperial Inn at 6:30 p.m.

Earlier, at noon, he will make a presentation to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Government House honoring his co-operation with the army during his term of office.

Commissioner and Mrs. Wiseman both graduated from the Salvation Army College at Toronto in 1927. Since then the commissioner has commanded some of the largest corps in Canada.

COMMISSIONER WISEMAN
. . . to honor Pearkes

OVERSEAS

During the Second World War, Commissioner Wiseman served overseas as a chaplain with the Canadian Forces for three years. In the last two years of the war, he directed Sally Ann welfare services on the fighting fronts.

Afterwards Commissioner and Mrs. Wiseman had charge of Salvation Army work in Newfoundland for eight years. In 1960 they were transferred to East Africa, where the commissioner supervised army work in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.

He was principal of the army's international training college in London, England, before returning to Canada.

'LET PRIESTS MARRY, HAVE A SECOND JOB'

PARIS (Reuters)—Most Frenchmen believe a modern priest should be married, have a second job and be a human being before "a man of God," said two opinion polls published in church magazines.

Non-practising Roman Catholics would also respect the church more if it gave communion to divorcees and concentrated on social justice rather than sexual purity, the polls indicated.

In the two polls published in the church magazines La Vie Catholique Illustree and Le Pelerin du Siecle, 69 per cent of all those asked said they would be in favor of priests marrying.

They said the ending of the ancient rule of celibacy would mean priests would be able to understand family problems better.

CHURCH ROUNDUP

Ministry Candidate To Preach

Guest preacher at Belmont Avenue United Church Sunday service will be Barbara Langton, a candidate for the ministry of the United Church of Canada.

Miss Langton, a member of the Belmont Church, leaves next week for Salmon Arm United Church where she will act as student assistant to the pastor.

It's her third term in the field, having served two years as student assistant at Creston United Church.

Fort Victoria District Cub and Scout Church parade will be held at the church, starting at 2 p.m.

At the 7 p.m. service the Belmont Avenue Canadian Girls In Training and the Explorer group will hold their graduation service. Speakers will be Judy Langton and Kathy MacLachlan.

★ ★ ★

A smorgasbord supper to promote Christian schools for the Christian community will be held in the Fellowship Hall, Central Baptist Church, at 6:30 p.m. on May 6.

Rev. R. Parker, extension worker for Seattle Christian School, will be guest speaker.

★ ★ ★

Centennial United Church will hold a service of meditations Sunday evening.

It will include slides of great paintings from the life of Christ illustrated by scripture readings from great British artists.

★ ★ ★

John A. Church will share in the conduct of the service in First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Rev. R. J. D. Morris will speak on the subject Showers of Blessing, and David Conrad will sing the solo, I Heard The Voice Of Jesus Say.

The choir will present Belmont's anthem, By Cool Siloam's Shady Rill.

Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak at the 7 p.m. service in the chapel.

★ ★ ★

Morning and evening worship in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be conducted by Rev. Bruce Molloy.

Music will include a solo by Don Twine, Ye People Rend Your Hearts, and the anthems, The Lord Is My Shepherd and The Sunshine Of God's Love.

★ ★ ★

Drama In Egypt will be the subject of Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley's Sunday morning sermon in Farifield United Church.

The anthem will be All In The April Evening, and Carro Baird will be soloist.

★ ★ ★

Why I Became A Unitarian, will be the subject of Rev. Arthur D. Wilmot, new minister of the Unitarian Church of Victoria, 106 Superior Street, Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Members of the Victoria church will attend the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Unitarian Council in Vancouver May 3-5.

★ ★ ★

Teach Me The Way is the subject of Rev. H. R. Whitmore's sermons Sunday in both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches.

At the 10 a.m. service at Garden City soloist Mrs. S. Hayhurst will join the senior choir in singing O For A Closer Walk With God.

The anthem at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkinson Road will be All In An April Evening.

★ ★ ★

Rev. Bruce A. Woods, pastor of Ruth Morton Memorial Baptist Church, Vancouver, will speak in Central Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

His subjects will be Impossible With Man and When The Fire Fell.

Expo Pavilion Sale Explained by Czechs

By JACK BRAYLEY

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovakia is worried about its disposal of its Expo pavilion.

"I hope Canadians understand—I hope they feel we did the right thing and I hope we don't look cheap," said a foreign office spokesman.

He had outlined the sequence of events leading to the disposal of the exhibit to Newfoundland, presumably partly because of that province's help and sympathy last September in handling the survivors of an air crash at Gander in which 37 died.

Czechs have probably never felt closer to Canada. There is an enthusiastic appreciation of Canada's unstinted praise of the successful Expo effort.

The Czechs also express admiration for Canadian hockey and feel their common interest in the game is an important bridge in relations between the countries.

With this as background, the Czechs apparently were anxious to make everybody happy when they left Montreal. They had spent $80,000,000—twice their budget—on Expo.

DEAL GOES THROUGH

They felt it was only fair that they should get some of it back, so they negotiated with Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, offering him the shell free and agreeing to sell him the fittings and equipment for $220,000.

Apparently after the first approach from Premier Smallwood, the Czechs informed Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal what was in the wind.

They went back to Drapeau before a final deal was made with Newfoundland "but we didn't get a satisfactory reply so we concluded the arrangements with Premier Smallwood."

A foreign office spokesman added with apparent apprehension: "And we hope this is popular with all Canadians because we don't want to offend a nation which made us so welcome and successful at Expo."

Strike Ends at UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — A four-day strike by 18 heating engineers at the University of British Columbia has ended. The university has agreed to meet union demands for salary increases for the first six months, and in return the union has agreed to extend the contract from the one year it demanded to 18 months.

By HUMPHRY DAVY

She sat in a rickety chair coughing.

The middle-aged Indian woman, with a woolen shawl over her shoulder, had been ill for a month and complained, not only of a bad cough, but rheumatic pains which made walking difficult.

"Why don't you go to a doctor?" we asked Ethel.

"Doctor?" she replied.

"You don't know what that means. I would have to wait and wait. Sign papers. Be asked questions. Then, where would I stay in the city? Where do I get the money to pay rent?"

She went on. "The last time I went to the city I stayed in a shack near Sooke. My husband and daughter were with me. It was so small we couldn't walk around the room without bumping each other. I will never do that again."

Apathy and futility were written on her ageing face.

The scene was a weather-beaten home on an isolated reserve on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

●

Ethel did finally get medical treatment after being persuaded to go to Alberni and stay with friends.

But there are many like her who never get to see a doctor—they die from neglect.

There are no autopsies—no coroner's inquest. They are buried quietly in Indian cemeteries, their graves marked with simple wooden crosses or a handful of wildflowers.

The fact that medical services for Indians are inadequate is borne out by a recent brief prepared by the South Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

These facts emerge from the brief:

- The average life expectancy of Indian males is 33 years and for females, 36 years, as compared with 70 for non-Indians.
- The Indian birth rate is two and one-half times greater than that of non-Indians.
- The median age of B.C. Indians is 15 to 16 years, compared with the provincial average of 30.

The question of medical care for Indians and their families is today causing concern not only to Indian leaders but to welfare workers and physicians.

A brief on the subject is presently being prepared by the Indian Arts and Welfare Society.

●

Dr. Charles Borsman also drew attention to the plight of Indians at a recent Kiwanis Club discussion on Indian problems.

The high death rate—the short life expectancy—indicated that something was definitely wrong with the medical system for treating Indians, he said.

His opinion was that it discouraged Indians from seeking medical help because they (Indians) were treated differently and had no freedom to choose doctors.

There was also no personal contact between Indian families and physicians—an important factor in any treatment.

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Indians reserve, agreed that the system was at fault.

"As things stand, welfare and health measures for Indians are handled by two federal departments and one provincial," he said. Division of responsibility is not clearly defined and inevitably there is a lack of co-ordination, much buck passing and confusion."

●

He said indigent Indians could obtain medical assistance from the Indian Affairs branch, but a wage-earning Indian is requested to join the B.C. Medical Health plan.

The trouble is that the majority of working Indians haven't got enough money to pay premiums to the medical plan," he said. "A father with a family of eight or 12 children just can't afford medicine."

He pointed out a survey showed that the average yearly earnings per worker was $1,361 compared to the general Canadian average of $4,000 and that 28.2 per cent of the Indian population subsisted on less than $1,000 a year.

Apart from the economic problem, he said, many of the welfare workers and health nurses were not suited to work among Indians. It resulted in poor preventive medicine measures and in a high rate of child mortality.

"The emphasis seems to be to employ nurses with academic qualifications," he said. "This should take second place. What is needed are people who understand Indians and who can work among them."

Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, president of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society, said it was discouraging for Indian families to come to the city for medical assistance.

●

"One family from an isolated Indian reserve was found living under deplorable conditions in the city," she said. "They didn't know where to go and who to turn to."

Many welfare workers blame the present Indian health problems on the whites.

"Non-Indians are indifferent to their plight," they said. "This indifference is destroying their will to live."

40 Million 'Miners' Eating Up A Wasteland of Copper Ore

By DON. DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Copper from the recently reopened Mount Sicker Mines at Westholme will be recovered simultaneously by open pit mining and leaching.

President of the new company, Charles Field of Victoria, said Friday there is an estimated $2,000,000 worth of copper in the waste dumps left from earlier mining.

He declined to speculate on the value of copper which might be claimed from an open pit operation.

Construction of Mount Sicker's pilot plant has been completed, including a fully equipped laboratory. Accommodation has been prepared at the main camp for 10 permanent employees.

Investment so far in the venture has topped $100,000 and Mr. Field said considerable interest has been shown by Duncan residents.

The leaching process is already under way and Mr. Field referred to the bugs as "40,000,000 miners who are not in a union."

Mine supervisor Jack Brooks said the present plant cost only $10,000 but the leaching process will extract 97 per cent pure powdered copper.

A wartime mill at Mount Sicker built by the government at a cost of $3,000,000, extracted copper which was 23 per cent pure.

He said: "This bacteria can dig a hole in a grain of sand and walk through it.

"It's cultured specifically for this ore."

The bugs are bought from a firm in the United States and 1,400 feet up Mount Sicker in the heated tank of the laboratory are fed nutrients to develop them into a hardier strain.

Mr. Brooks said he expects to start precipitation of copper from the leaching in about six weeks.

The ore under leach has now been subject to intensive saturation by acid and bacteria.

In this way mineral sulphides are oxidized into mineral sulphates which are often soluble in water.

The extracted copper finally flows into a trough at the foot of the leaching pad.

Mr. Field says: "We think we will get 99.9 per cent recovery of copper, and there is a market all over the world for powdered copper.

"We hope to develop into a big operation here but we still have a lot of work to do.

"Indications are that we will be here a long time."

He said it is hoped to start the open pit mining next month in order to take advantage of the good weather.

Mr. Field said because there are no tailings from the leaching process the new Mount Sicker operation does not pose any pollution threat to the Chemainus River.

Mr. Field is president of Pure Food Distributors, Victoria, and is also a director of National Wholesalers, Victoria.

Two Youths Jailed

NANAIMO — Larry Bryson and Rick Evans, both 19, were jailed six months Friday for possession of marijuana. The pair were arrested Feb. 19 after police saw two plastic bags thrown from a car and found they contained the illegal drug.

War Budget Increased

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea announced Friday a record 1968 budget 33 per cent bigger than last year's with a 26 per cent increase in defence spending. The Communist regime said it had to be prepared because the United States might "pounce upon us."

The report from the official Korean central news agency did not give the total budget figure, but some figuring in Tokyo put it at the equivalent of $15,860,000,000 at the official rate of exchange. Of this, the equivalent of $4,900,000,000 was budgeted for defence, 30.9 per cent of the total.

DANISH GYMNAST Jens Dahl Madsen sees the world from a different angle in his work. Here he tells Times reporter Paul Musgrove about it with the help of Anne Birthe Nielsen, another member of the touring Danish team. Squad of 13 boys and 13 girls will perform at Memorial Arena at 8 tonight. Team has drawn large and appreciative crowds during its nine-month tour of Canada, U.S. and Mexico. Gymnastics is a national sport in Denmark and team members are chosen from best in the country. (Strickland Photo)

Bermuda Youths Riot

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Nearly 300 rioting youths surged through the centre of the tourist-crowded Bermudan capital Friday setting fire to stores and looting. Steel-helmeted police moved in and finally used tear gas to disperse the crowd. Twenty-four of the rioters were arrested. The trouble broke out when a patrolman attempted to disperse a crowd gathered at a Front Street charity fair. The youths attacked the policeman and "from there it just started to snowball," said a police official.

Fussiness Vanishes In Modern Bathroom

By PAULINE GRAVES

If you are planning to build a home or remodel your present quarters, the bathroom pictured here, by architect Dennis Smith, merits a second look, or even clipping and saving for your house-ideas file.

The absence of fussiness, the good storage and the practical ideas lift it out of the ordinary.

For example, placing the basin at one end of the counter leaves a long stretch for bottles, boxes, curlers and brushes, infinitely more usable than several small counter areas.

The traditional medicine chest, usually a wall installation above the basin, has been by-passed for an eight-inch-high cabinet, six inches deep, that travels the length of the counter above the splash.

REPLACE DRAWERS

Because there is so much storage room in these cabinets, they also replace the drawers that are almost always a part of any base cabinet.

A small bathroom has limited exterior wall space for windows, much less a door to the outdoors. But when there are small children in the family, an outside door to the bathroom saves muss and wear on the house. So, this bathroom door is also a window, screened, and with glass louvres that open the room to the outside.

To make the narrow room seem wider, a mirror covers the entire wall above the small cabinets. And a finishing touch is the light box above, with daylight tubes behind plastic that cast an almost shadowless light.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Mulching: Don't Expect a Cure-All

By JACK BEASTALL

The shortened work week gives us about 36 additional hours for working on our gardens, the equivalent of four-and-one-half eight-hour days.

Paradoxically, we home gardeners are spending much of that time devising short cuts and seeking labor saving methods.

Jack

Some of the ideas we think up appear to work quite well while others lead to a lot of trouble because we fail to recognize all the factors that are involved.

One idea which is becoming increasingly popular each year is the use of a mulch to restrict weed growth and lessen the amount of artificial watering required during the dry season.

Discretion

This idea of extensive mulching can be beneficial when its purpose is understood and it is used with discretion.

On the other hand, it can be decidedly detrimental if we are unaware of effects other than weed supression and moisture conservation.

The word "mulch," in common with most of our gardening terms, has been handed down for generations and its use extended to cover many practices formerly unknown.

Due to this constant change in a living language it is wise once in a while, to go back to the origin of our garden terms to find out if we are still on the right track.

It was nearly 350 years ago that "mulch" became a part of the English language, coming from the German word "molsch" meaning "soft, beginning to decay," and applied at that time solely to half-rotten straw.

In this condition the straw was used around newly planted fruit trees to assist in early establishment of a good root system.

A mulch of half-rotten straw would be quite loose in structure. Rain would pass through it readily and so would air and warmth from the sun.

Under such a mulch we would have the ideal conditions for strong root growth (warmth, steady moisture, and air) indicating that a mulch of this type would be definitely beneficial.

Now let us consider the mulching materials in common use today.

Wet and Cold

Barnyard manure in a half-rotted state is often used. This is a compacted material through which air cannot pass freely, therefore the soil beneath will be wet and cold, not conducive to good roots.

Manure contains small amounts of plant food which will be at the surface and cause roots to come up for their food instead of going down. The result is a shallow, weak root system, something that is detrimental to any tree.

Rotted compost is comparable to manure, and when well made can contain a higher percentage of plant food to give greater inducement for roots to surface.

Sawdust, another popular mulching material at the moment, also promotes cold, wet conditions when applied too thickly.

Shallow roots give us fruit trees which are easily toppled by strong wind, and which rock in moderate winds. Rocking means loosening of roots and loss of feeding roots, both detrimental to trees.

The same applies to shrubs which are overmulched, and since the original root system was developed at the surface of the soil it must be protected from sun at all times or the shrub will suffer.

Not So Good

Thus, our idea of putting on a mulch four to six inches thick of materials that exclude sun and air is not so good as it first appears.

So far we have considered only permanent plants such as trees and shrubs. What effect will a mulch have on other plants commonly grown in the home garden?

In this area we can successfully grow plants requiring quite distinct soil temperatures.

One group, those native to this latitude and more northerly latitudes, prefer a cool moist soil, while the second group from latitudes to the south must have a warm soil.

The second group contains the plants that are adversely affected by a mulch, mainly because our soils are never too warm for their liking and a mulch always lowers the soil temperature.

Experiments conducted locally have shown that a mulch can lower soil temperatures as much as 10 degrees compared with adjacent unmulched areas. This 10 degrees is often the difference between success and failure with warm soil plants.

Mix First

Conversely, these warm soil plants will need a steady supply of water at their roots under our summer drought conditions, and that is why the home gardener turns to mulching and sometimes experiences failure of the crop.

The way around this problem is to mix the compost or rotted manure into the soil before planting or sowing.

The soil will then contain thousands of sponges which will absorb and hold moisture, releasing it readily to the feeding roots as required by the plants.

In the flower garden, marigolds, zinnias and salvia are representatives of warm soil plants originally from semi-tropical conditions, while tomatoes and corn are representatives in the vegetable garden. None of these should be mulched if early fruits or flowers are desired.

The list could be continued to fill a whole column, but the gardener can compile his own with the aid of a garden encyclopedia and a little reasoning.

The thing to remember is that a garden is an artificial assemblage of plants from all over the world. Each plant has its own optimum requirements for growth which must be provided if success is to be achieved.

There are no blanket practices which will be beneficial to every plant in the garden, and this certainly applies to mulching.

WEEK'S WORK

If young rooted cuttings of hardy chrysanthemums are ready, get them planted out into a rich humusy soil where they will get plenty of sun all summer.

Plant unsprouted dahlia tubers, and a first batch of gladiolus corms. These also need a rich humusy soil and sun.

Look around for some of the less common summer flowering bulbs and corms: tigridia (Mexican shell-flower), galtonia (hardy summer-hyacinth), acidanthera (Abyssinian sword-lily).

Camellias and rhodos may have several blooms browned by frost in past weeks; these can be removed to prevent their rotting on the plant and causing fungus troubles. Take off only the small flower stem, not any part of the branch.

Sow outdoors leeks, lettuce, and onions for later transplanting.

If soil is warm, sow beets, radishes, white turnip. These all need warm soil and quick growth if bolting to seed is to be avoided.

Depending on soil temperatures, perhaps sweet corn can be sown, but sow only a small block so that space is saved for a later sowing to give a long season of cobs.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Rhubarb is making a great big flower stem and no more stalks for pulling. What has happened to the plants, as we have never had this condition before?—J.K.T., Uplands.

A. Several reports have come in of flower stems on rhubarb this spring. This condition may be due to a check in growth this spring with cool weather following the early long spell of mild.

Or, as in the spring following the hot summer of 1958, it may be due to the long dry period last summer if the plants were not kept well supplied with water artificially. Cut off the flower stem to prevent formation of seed, give the plant a soil mulch of rotted compost or old manure, and see that it receives plenty of water during summer months.

PLANTING A NEW LAWN?

Like all plant life, healthy lawns spring from healthy stock. Yet one of the most common mistakes in lawn planting is to use inferior seed. Often the home-owner will spend weeks in soil preparation, adding lime, fertilizer and peat moss, then for the sake of savnig a few pennies will use an inferior seed mix which condemns his lawn to lifetime poor performance.

The mix should be adapted to climate and soil conditions. For example, Buckerfield's Uplands Green lawn seed blends the color and fine texture of fescues and bents with the vigor and drought-resistance of Kentucky blueglass. This combination has proven highly successful in British Columbia, producing deep green, close-textured lawns which stay green all summer.

Be sure. Start your lawn with Uplands Green Lawn Seed backed with Uplands Special Fertilizer, the plant food formulated specially for B.C. soils. At all good garden stores.

We don't blame you – there's no worse gardening chore than weeding lawns. Every time you pull one out, two seem to grow in its place! What your lawn needs is the complete plant food ration of Uplands Special 9-3-6 Fertilizer. Apply it now, then watch your lawn quickly develop the thick, strong, close-textured turf that chokes out weeds even before they can get a start. FBI Plays Down Clash In Galt-Ray Description

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI officials are quietly triyng to play down contradictory descriptions of the appearance and habits of James Earl Ray, alias Eric Starvo Galt, the elusive escaped convict charged with the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The discrepancies have led to speculation that perhaps Ray and Galt actually are two persons or that two or more persons used the name Galt

As the massive search for King's killer entered its fourth week, FBI sources who had refused to discuss any aspect of the investigation insisted, though not for attribution, that Ray and Galt are the same person.

"We know there's only one person involved here," said one official. "We've got his fingerprints and we know who he is."

INFORMATIONS CLASH

This "one person" contention in itself seems to clash with the FBI's formal stance that Galt conspired with "an individual he alleged to be his brother" to violate King's civil rights.

The FBI filed the conspiracy complaint against Galt in Birmingham, Ala., 13 days after King was shot by a sniper in

JAMES EARL RAY
. . . another Galt?

Memphis, Tenn., April 4. Tennessee officials quickly filed a murder charge against Galt.

Two days later, the FBI said a check of fingerprints showed Ray was the man sought, and he had used Galt as an alias. Ray escaped April 23, 1967, from the Missouri state penitentiary where he was serving a 20-year sentence for a $190 supemarket robbery.

Puzzling aspects of the case continue to pop up. The newest involves Ray's, or Galt's, smoking habits.

Atlanta residents said cigarette or cigar ashes were scattered on the carpeted floor of a white 1966 Mustang that FBI agents impounded there a week after King was slain. They also said a cigar butt fell out of the car when agents opened the door. The FBI has said the car was owned by Galt.

RAY NON-SMOKER

In Missouri, it was reported that an FBI bulletin issued last year after Ray's prison escape said Ray "does not smoke."

In California, where the FBI said a man named Galt took dancing lessons from December, 1967, through February, 1968, an official of the dancing school, Rod Arbidson, said: "I never saw him smoke any kind of tobacco."

In Alabama, where a man named Galt lived in a Birmingham rooming house from August through October, 1967, both the manager and the cook said Galt didn't smoke.

Reporters showed copies of the FBI-released picture of Galt to the Birmingham witnesses, and to residents of the Memphis rooming house from which the fatal shot was fired. Almost all said the photo didn't resemble the man they saw.

VARYING MEASUREMENTS

Estimates of the fugitive's height have ranged from 5-feet-8 to 6-feet, his weight from 160 to 175 pounds. His eyes have been described as either blue or hazel, his hair as either brown or sandy.

An FBI official brushed off the varying descriptions, saying "You run into this every time—it's human nature."

There are conflicts, too, in descriptions of Galt's habits, including:

Appearance: The FBI reported Galt "is said to be a neat dresser," while others who knew Ray said he was careless in his dress.

Speech: The Memphis rooming house manager said the man to whom she rented a room three hours before King was slain had a Southern drawl. A convict who knew Ray in the Missouri penitentiary said Ray, a native of Illinois, had no southern accent.

Money: Galt appeared to spend money freely, and paid $2,000 cash for the white Mustang. Ray, said the convict, "was tight as a tick . . . if you owed him money, even a few cents, he would bug you to death."

Music-dancing: The FBI said Galt "is a fan of western and country music" and "is said to be an avid dancer." The convict say Ray "never expressed any liking" for music or dancing.

FAR BEHIND U.S.

Canada Short of Psychologists

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is woefully behind the United States in the ratio of psychologists to the general population, says a survey released Friday by the science secretariat of the Privy Council.

In proportion to the population, there are about 1,600 psychologists per 100,000 population compared with 3,200 per 100,000 in the U.S.

The 131-page study by Dr. M. H. Appley and Dr. Jean Rickwood of York University, Toronto, says great increases in the number of psychologists are expected in the near future.

Nevertheless "it is estimated that the need for psychological service personnel is likely to outstrip the supply for some years to come."

The report is part of a continuing survey of scientific resources being conducted through the Science Secretariat for presentation to the Science Council of Canada. The council is responsible for advising the federal government on science policy.

RECOMMENDS INCREASES

A major recommendation of the authors is that research funds increase threefold to $14,610,000 by 1970-71 and double again to $30,825,000 by 1975 to meet anticipated needs.

Examining distribution of the 1,600 psychologists Canada now has, the study found relatively scanty numbers in Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and the Territories, greater density in the western provinces and the heaviest concentration in Ontario.

"But even in Ontario their present number in relation to population is low in comparison with the U.S. ratios,"

Grant support from all sources is $835 per psychologist, "considerably below the level of support enjoyed by psychologists in the U.S. ($4,900)."

U.S. grants to psychologists in Canada are nearly three times the average value of Canadian government grants, ($20,700 against $7,100), "reflecting Canadian policies which disallow direct compen- allow only minimal overhead compensation, if any, to the host institution."

DAY OF RALLIES

Police Fists Halt March

(Times News Services)

Police used their fists to battle militant anti-war demonstrators in Greenwich Village today. Scores were beaten or arrested when they tried to stage a march to Central Park where thousands were protesting the Vietnam war.

Other fighting erupted outside the park when about 200 young supporters of U.S. Vietnam policy hurled eggs and shouted obscenities at demonstators marching into the park. About a dozen fights broke out.

The anti-war rally was one of about 20 such protests against the war in Vietnam planned in various U.S. cities today, involving perhaps 500,000 persons.

The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., assassinated civil rights leader, was the scheduled speaker for the rally in Central Park, sponsored by the Fifth Avenue Vietnam Peace Parade Committee.

MANY SCHEDULED

Other anti-war demonstrations were planned in cities in Canada, Australia, Britain, Italy, Japan, Mexico, India and several African countries.

In Canada, marches were expected in cities from coast to coast. A rally in Vancouver and Montreal demonstration were scheduled. In Ontario, marchers planned to protest the provincial government's disregard of a brief submitted last February calling for Vietnam teach-ins to be held in all Ontario schools.

New York colege and high school students stayed away in large numbers from classes Friday to protest the Vietnam war.

In Prague, more than 1,000 students took part in an anti-American demonstratios in front of the U.S. Embassy. In Paris, flags of the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front flew from the Arch of Triumph and the Eiffel Tower.

Thousands of others marched up Fifth Avenue earlier in the day in New York's annual Loyalty Day parade in support of U.S. military forces. There were no incidents but Mayor John V. Lindsay was denounced as a "hypocrite" for attending both the pro-and anti-war rallies.

The fighting in Greenwich Village erupted when about 300 members of the Coalition for an Anti-Imperialist March moved out from the Washington Square arch and headed north on Seventh Avenue. The group had no parade permit, as did the Loyalty Day and Central Park demonstrators.

INTERVIEW WITH PM

Political commentator Peter C. Newman has obtained the first exclusive interview with Pierre Trudeau since he was sworn in as prime minister. A transcript of the interview begins on Page 5 in today's Times and will be concluded Monday.

Still No Deal On Vietnam Talks Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives met again in Laos today without breaking the deadlock over where to hold preliminary peace talks, the state department disclosed.

The meeting between U.S. ambassador William H. Sullivan and the North Vietnamese charge d'affaire, Nguyen Chan, at Vientiane, the Laotian capital, was the second reported this week in the continuing exchanges between the United States and North Vietnam over a site for preliminary talks.

"There is no agreement on the site," state department press officer Carl Bartch reported in announcing the latest contact in Vientiane.

He declined to give further details including whether Hanoi has replied to U.S. proposals suggesting any of 15 Asian or European capitals as a suitable meeting place.

Sterilization Study Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. C. F. Bentley, dean of agriculture at the University of Alberta, said Friday government boards should be set up to determine whether certain Canadians should be temporarily sterilized.

He said in an interview that temporary sterilization should be directed against irresponsible parents—"that is couples who do not intend or lack the prospects of providing food, shelter, clothing, health and love to some minimum degree to children."

Dr. Bentley said the sterilization would be provided by an inter-uterine device for females and by a vasectomy operation for males.

To regain their potential to reproduce, Dr. Bentley said, the persons would reappear before a regional board of doctors, social workers, lawyers, clergymen and laymen and comply with regulations now required of parents who want to adopt children.

The 53-year-old father of two said boards should not be set up until a massive birth-control-education program is in force for five years across Canada.

U.S. Bombers Strike Cong Sanctuaries

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. B-52 bombers attacked Viet Cong sanctuaries on two sides of Saigon today in a new effort to smash Viet Cong concentrations within striking distance of the capital.

Intelligence reports persisted that the Viet Cong are planning an attack on Saigon similar to the invasion of the city during the lunar new year offensive Jan. 31.

In Saigon itself, South Vietnamese soldiers and police remained on the alert and all leave was cancelled as the capital prepared for any new Viet Cong attack.

Legal or Not, Montreal Pushing Lottery Plan

DRAPEAU
. . . undaunted

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, undaunted by mounting attacks from authoritative sources on the legality of his city's voluntary tax plan, says he will go ahead with the promotion of the lottery-style scheme, first of its kind in Canada to be run by a municipality.

Under the scheme any voluntary contributor of $2 to Montreal's treasury is eligible for a monthly draw with prizes totalling $150,000, of which $100,000 is the first prize.

The city has already mailed 1,770,000 "voluntary tax" forms throughout Ontario and plans to send more. It also expects to solicit contributions through newspaper advertisements in Canada and the United States and is to begin mailing forms to Montrealers themselves at the end of this month.

But the tax system, expected to raise $28,000,000 for the city coffers, appeared Friday to be running into legal snags both in Canada and the U.S.

CALLS IT ILLEGAL

Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, in a statement issued in Quebec City Friday night, described the scheme as illegal and a contravention of the federal Criminal Code.

However, Mayor Drapeau said in Montreal he has "no comment to make on legal opinions relevant to the voluntary tax" and that the city will proceed with the promotion of the scheme "as planned."

Earlier Friday, a U.S. postal official said in Washington any American participants in the scheme would face jail terms of up to five years and fines up to $5,000 because the tax plan, if it started operating in the U.S., "would fall into the same category as the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes."

Mr. Bertrand's statement said:

"According to the advice of the department's legal advisers the voluntary tax contributions plan would run counter to the regulations of the Criminal Code which prohibits lotteries."

A justice department spokesman said it has not been decided whether any action will be taken by the department to stop operation of the scheme.

While the Criminal Code is federal law, a justice department spokesman in Ottawa said prosecution under gaming provisions in the code is strictly a provincial responsibility.

A spokesman for the federal post office said no complaints about the scheme have yet been received. If any did come, they would be referred to the justice department.

And Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec, attending a dinner in Levis, Quebec., in honor of Jean-Marie Morin, minister without portfolio in the provincial cabinet, said only "we will see" in answer to reporters asking whether the Quebec government would take action.

The Bertrand statement, first official comment on the legality of the scheme by a member of the provincial government, came after the justice department was asked for comment on the Washington reaction to the Montreal tax plan.

AGAINST U.S. LAW

The U.S. post office official said the voluntary tax plan as proposed by Mayor Drapeau would be in violation of U.S. law, under which court action can be taken to apprehend and to return to Canada or to destroy mail found to be involved in promoting lottery.

U.S. law would also prevent American newspapers from carrying any advertising about the scheme.

BURNING, LOOTING

Soldiers Quell Bermuda Riots

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Bermuda's government declared a state of emergency today after an outbreak of burning and looting by predominantly-Negro gangs in the second straight night of violence in the island's capital.

The executive council sent 300 armed troops of the Bermuda Regiment into Hamilton's poorer section to reinforce nearly 250 riot police.

Police said the rioters had dispersed by 3 a.m. after an 8 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew was ordered until peace returns. All fires were reported under control.

Meanwhile, the predominantly-white government United Bermuda party—UBP—denounced what it called inflammatory statements in the last few days and the predominantly-Negro Progressive Labor party—PLP—accused the UBP and Hamilton police of racism.

VOTE NEXT MONTH

The two parties will contest an election in mid-May under new election rules in the British colony giving the PLP greater influence. The PLP wants to restrict immigration of the English, who the party claims keep Negroes out of better jobs. It also wants independence for the island.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, and 15 were arrested, police said. Tourists fled to their hotels and downtown bars and restaurants closed as the rioters, many moving around in cars for hit-and-run raids, set cars and buildings afire.

Hubert Seeks Top Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey announced today he will seek the Democratic nomination for president.

He made his announcement with words of praise for President Johnson and a declaration that "without unity we shall begin to doubt not only ourselves but our goals and ideals."

The announcement of candidacy which Humphrey had foretold with comments during what already had amounted to campaign travels was prepared for a luncheon attended by more than 1,200 supporters.

Humphrey told them: "I shall continue to fulfill to the best of my abilities the duties of my office. I shall, as the president has, observe the absolute priority of peace over politics.

"For 1968 is not the year or frenzied inflammatory rhetoric, or for finding scapegoats for our problems. It is the year for common sense.

"I will resist the temptation to deceive either the people or myself."

Humphrey made no direct reference to the other two announced Democratic candidates to succeed Johnson, who is not running.

His candidacy pits him against Senators Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Eugene J. McCarthy, a fellow Minnesotan. He is too late, however, to enter any of the primaries against them.

●

A report from Washington Friday by a leading British commentator that the president's health is failing and that he may quit the presidency before the convention — thus catapulting Humphrey directly into the job — was dismissed as absurd by a White House spokesman.

Without specifying what he thinks the president's ailment is, Henry Fairlie of The Sunday Express said it is serious enough that many politicians close to Johnson think he "is capable of the final act of abdication this summer."

Fairlie said this would make Humphrey, as an incumbent president of a few weeks, a shoo-in to be nominated at the convention. And, he noted, it would pretty well stop Kennedy, Johnson's political enemy.

White House press secretary George Christian's comment on the Fairlie dispatch: "Of course it's nonsense."

The president announced March 31 he will not run again, but made clear in remarks Thursday night he will not be a bystander in the campaign.

Johnson's promise to vigorously oppose "any would-be divisive force" was wbidely interpreted as primarily directed at Kennedy and McCarthy critics of the way he has handled the Vietnam war and other problems.

Humphrey, 56, is regarded as a strong prospect to win the nomination, a prize he saw vanish in 1960 after suffering defeats in primary elections at the hands of John F. Kennedy.

Organized labor and business leaders are giving him help and he has strong support of Democrats in the South who had expected to back Johnson for renomination until the president bowed out.

Fishermen Capture Seven Killer Whales

PENDER HARBOUR (CP) — Four commercial fishermen said today they have captured seven killer whales at this coastal community 50 miles northwest of Vancouver.

The fishermen said they used nets to enclose the mammals in an area in nearby Garden Bay and are patrolling the nets to keep the whales boxed in.

The fishermen, Cecil Reid, his son Cecil Jr., Bill Cameron and Bert Gooldrup, said they are looking for offers from aquariums or other groups who want to purchase one or more of the whales.

They said four of the whales are average size, one is large and the other two are small ones.

The men captured a whale in the same area in February and sold it to the Vancouver public aquarium for $5,000.

80-Mile-an-Hour Chase After Bandits

STORE MANAGER WINS GUN DUEL

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A 25-year-old supermarket manager became enraged when five bandits held up the market while his mother was on duty as a clerk. The manager, Guy McHarty, took three helpers with him and chased the getaway car in a running gun battle Friday that ended with the capture of four men.

The manager's mother was held captive while the men rifled cash registers at the store but was left behind uninjured when the men fled with $1,113 in loot.

McHarty fired a carbine at the getaway car for five miles during the 80-mile-an-hour chase until he plugged one tire tire forcing the bandits to stop.

One of McHarty's helpers was wounded in the groin when one of the five bandits fired at his pursuers from under the getaway car.

Three of the men surrendered and lay face down, hands behind their heads on the busy roadside, under the gun held by McHarty until police arrived.

A fourth man, whom police said was wounded by McHarty during the chase, was found an hour later during a search by a 100-man posse. The fifth man escaped.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

"It's always been done this way, but is it fair?"

That was the punch line when a reader phoned to criticize the present system of hiring of enumerators for the federal election.

She said, and we've confirmed, that officials of the Liberal and Conservative parties are now compiling lists of persons available for this house-to-house name-collecting canvass which starts May 6. They give the names to the returning officers.

There is no advertising for the jobs which will pay each chosen applicant $32 plus 10 cents per name.

The system could rule out persons not personally known to the two political parties and that could be unfair to the large number of voters in the NDP and Social Credit camps as well as the larger number who might profess no party connections.

Our caller suggested a better scheme would be to turn the job over to Manpower and the award of these 1164 jobs (including 388 deputy returning officers) to people who need work who can pass a simple aptitude test.

It's about time the provincial government did something to ease the embarrassment of people in the 20s who legally use local drinking spots.

A group of seven young married folk, voters and taxpayers and free citizens of Canada, report they were rudely challenged by waiters in three hotels in one night recently. In each case, rather than dig out documentary proof of age, with all the other patrons snickering, they moved on.

Nobody blames a waiter for being cautious if he thinks the customer may be a minor, That's as it should be. But there's an easier solution — a system that works in other places.

In Washington state for instance, when a youth reaches legal age for drinking he takes his picture to a government office and makes application for an identification card. Not transferable and it's sealed in plastic. It's small and easily displayed on a table when the patron is ordering. No fuss. No muss, and it could be done here.

Our Ask The Times editor recently listed the disposition of our naval vessels — 22 ships on the east coast and 12 ships on the west coast. But what about our north coast? Do ships of the Canadian Forces ever visit Hudson's Bay ports or check to see whether any missile-armed subs are prowling James Bay? CFB Esquimalt question-and-answers men say international detection in the north is conducted by radar lines and air examination. But isn't it strange to think that our ships regularly visit Europe and Asia but never yet have cruised that vast ocean where salt water washes on Manitoba and Ontario? Or are we wrong?

Apparently there is an opportunity for refrigerator salesmen in the Arctic. According to The Sentinel, the armed services magazine, ice boxes are essential to those serving on the DEW line. In winter, lettuce left outside would be frozen solid in minutes. The second it comes off the airplane it's rushed into a walk-in refrigerator to keep it in edible condition.

which had been set ablaze for the third time within 48 hours.

The offices of the government's Transport Control Board were extensively damaged. The estimate of damage for two nights climbed to $250,000.

ATTACK POLICEMAN

A five-hour wave of looting and destruction the previous night began, officials said, when a small gang attacked a lone patrolman trying to control a crowd outside a charity fair. They said they believed Thursday night's violence was spontaneous and did not result from race or politics.

But Friday night, Dr. Stanley Ratteray, UBP chairman, said he had heard statements that "it's going to get real hot this summer and it's going to be PLP heat."

At a PLP meeting, Mansfield Brock claimed that the Bermuda police force deliberately was maintained 70-per-cent white as a replacement for the British Army. The police recently announced an official policy of recruiting Negroes to balance the force's racial makeup.

The Bermuda Democratic party, newest of the island's three parties, said Friday night: "We feel that, influenced from outside, tactics have been used by a group of high pitched emotionally irresponsible people who seem to have dedicated themselves to the destruction of the community."

. . . LOTTERY

In Toronto, both Prof. Desmond Morton of Osgoode Hall Law School and John J. Robinette, a lawyer and acknowledged expert on newspaper law, have termed the Drapeau plan illegal.

Mr. Robinette, in an opinion written at the request of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, says:

"Under section 179 of the Criminal Code everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment of two years who makes, prints, advertises or publishes any proposal, scheme or plan for disposing in any way of any property by any mode of chance whatsoever."

REJECT ADS

A CDNPA spokesman in Toronto said a number of daily newspapers had rejected advertisements for the Montreal plan. One or two had said they would publish the ads, running almost half-page size and containing an application form for those wishing to participate.

Mr. Robinette in his opinion noted that the 151 monthly draw winners would be required to answer a question based on facts about Montreal printed on the reverse side of each tax receipt.

"The sole question here is whether the requirements that a winner answer the questions introduces any such element of skill that it could be said that the disposal of the prize money is not based on chance alone."

"There are decisions which hold that the selection of contestants by chance in order to entitle them to enter a real contest of skill does not make the scheme illegal. But the basic question is—is there a real element of skill involved or is the so-called requirement of skill a pure sham? In my opinion in the Montreal scheme it is a pure sham. . . ."

"MY FIGURE will look much better if I stand beside it," former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh tells gallery director James Borcoman as they they survey iron sculpture of a nude at international exhibition in Ottawa. (CP Wirephoto)

Judy Displays Earthy Humor

OTTAWA (CP) — All it takes is Judy LaMarsh to cut the ice at those usually ultra-polite National Gallery openings.

In what may have been her last appearance on the Ottawa scene as state secretary, she opened the mammoth International Sculpture of the Sixties exhibition.

Wearing a gold lame coat and dress with matching shoes and iridescent stockings, she displayed her almost legendary candid comment and down-to-earth humor.

Gallery director, Miss Jean Sutherland Boggs said after a brief introduction in French:

"It is very hard to say even in English how much Miss LaMarsh has meant to the arts in Canada and to the National Gallery."

Stepping up to the microphone, Miss LaMarsh said, "I don't really feel anyone should introduce me with nostalgia—I'm not dead."

Her closing remarks were a bit of advice for Miss Boggs. If the attractive director wanted a bigger budget for the gallery she should "spend every afternoon on Parliament Hill and dash for a kiss here and there."

After a warm round of applause from about 60 persons, Miss LaMarsh was shown around the exhibition by James Borcoman, director of education for the gallery.

Consisting of 100 works by 80 sculptors from 20 nations, International Sculpture of the Sixties, was arranged by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York. The fifth Guggenheim International and the first to deal exclusively with sculpture, the exhibition started its Canadian tour at the Art Gallery of Ontario in Toronto and will go to the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts after a six-week Ottawa stay.

Quebec Plans Pilot Mission On Education

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec would like to participate in all international French-speaking conferences, Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said here today.

The minister, who was talking to reporters at the end of the conference of French-speaking education ministers here, added:

"We would like to attend the next session of this conference which will take place in Kinshasa (The Congo) next January."

Cardinal, who refused to answer in English questions put to him in that language by Canadian journalists, said Quebec would co-operate in the education field with African nations by sending a pilot mission of educational experts to the interested countries to see how best aid could be given.

MISSIONS WELCOMED

Equally, he said, Quebec would welcome to Canada a mission from those countries.

Cardinal underlined that there was no competition between the external aid given by the federal government and the kind of co-operation envisaged in the educational field between Quebec and the French-speaking nations.

Asked to define his status at the educational conference, Cardinal said: "I participated as a full member, but being new to the conference I rather acted as an overseer."

NRC Grants to Uvic Reach $317,120

National Research Council grants to the University of Victoria for 1968-9 have reached $317,120, a 20 per cent increase over last year.

Members of the university's chemistry department have received $97,130, of which $30,000 will go to the cost of a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer.

Awards to the physics department totalling $54,101 will be applied to a wide range of projects including the recently announced nuclear accelerator for west coast universities.

Further grants totalling $59,320 go to the maths department and $39,320 of this will be used to develop the university's computing centre.

Grants totalling $106,660 to Uvic biologists were previously announced by the NRC.

Frants to the department of physics from other agencies include $25,800 from the Defence Research Board, $5,302 from the Medical Research Council, $10,000 from the U.S. Naval Research Board and $96,000 from the Atomic Energy Control Board.

Chemists received $4,000 from the Department of Forestry and $10,000 from the Defence Research Board.

TOP MUSIC FESTIVAL performers gathered Friday night at McPherson Playhouse to listen, to perform, and to harvest a total of 28 awards, mostly in the form of bursaries and scholarships. The Festivals Highlight Concert concluded the first week of the annual event. In this representative group, left to right, rear, are multiple high-scoring singer Laura Groos, Medallion contender Cheryl Boris, pianist Jim Furmston, Rose Bowl contenders Norma Selwood and George Roberts. Front, Medallion winner Camille Inkman, pianists Mary Chard and Jocelyn Abbott and Rose Bowl contenders Barbara Ebell and Carla Levinson, to whom the Rose Bowl was awarded.

Music Festivals Threatened By Canada Council Time Bomb

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Two British experts who have travelled 3,000 miles across Canada since mid-January are enthusiastic about the challenge and excitement of Canada's music festivals.

Many thousand of Canadians who have responded to the challenge and profited through participation share this enthusiasm.

Canada Council advisers, however, do not.

As a result, a delayed-action bomb has just been dropped by Canada Council, shockwaves of which could easily destroy many festivals, perhaps end the movement altogether.

The bomb is contained in a letter to R. W. Cooke, secretary-treasurer of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals, from Peter Dwyer, Canada Council associate director.

The federation, the letter states, cannot expect any further financial assistance from the council in the future.

"The council has made very careful enquiries of our music advisers," says Mr. Dwyer, "and has reached the conclusion that, in view of the increasing reservations that so many music educators now have about the desirability of young people in training taking part in competitive festivals, we can no longer continue our support."

Music festivals, it can be argued, existed long before Canada Council came into being and most would probably continue to function without the grant made annually to the federation, if that was all that was entailed.

But the thinking that has influenced Canada Council's decision could easily be transmitted to provincial government levels and boards of education and other authorities supporting festivals across Canada, making the destruction more wide-spread and complete.

The music educators who advise Canada Council are not named but it is not difficult to make an educated guess and come up with the thought that they will be mostly university music department faculty people.

And from my personal observation, expert though these people are — superbrains in their specialized fields — it occurs to me that in the matter of community music festivals their opinion is purely academic and totally unrealistic.

Music educators at elementary and secondary school levels have been among the music festivals' keenest supporters.

The finest private teachers it has been my good fortune to know or to talk with over more than two decades, praise and support festivals with little or no reservation.

Nothing humanly organized is perfect; nothing works for everybody alike.

Admittedly there are certain drawbacks to a competitive festival. Perhaps one day we will be able to eliminate competition altogether. Certainly the Victoria Festival has done much to minimize the element of competition.

And with effect. British adjudicators, Joseph Cooper and Trevor Anthony, commented to me on the splendid spirit of our festival.

"They accept their awards with humility," Trevor Anthony, noted. "But they take their criticism and losses with equal good grace and understanding."

NO SUBSTITUTE

There is no substitute for public performance and learning how to take public criticism readily and with an open mind.

And there is no better place to experience one and learn the other, than the open forum of the festival.

As a student participant in the early days — and one who took my lumps with the best and as a close observer for many years — I know these things to be true.

At a time when, after the Second World War, there was no festival in Victoria, musical interest and standards reached an all-time low among young people.

What Canadians need from Canada Council is help to build fine arts participation within the community.

What they do not need is money for Fooling and to be stifled by too much esoteric thought.

Who Gives a Hoot For Brewery Toot!

Victoria's famous 9:30 brewery "sound-off" came in for a bit of adjudication the other night at a Music Festival session.

The long, penetrating sound interrupted Joseph Cooper in the middle of a dissertation.

"What on earth's that?" he exclaimed.

Then after deciding that the note being sounded was a G-flat, he tried to ignore it.

But just as one note played incessantly is said to wear out nerves and steel girders, so the brewer's single note snapped the patience of the adjudicator for the first time in the festival and — "Oh, shut up!" he admonished. And so it did.

•

Festival secretary Ada English and a number of the entrants have been going around this week sporting lilac-colored campaign type buttons proclaiming that "Festivals are Fun."

They are the home industry of Madeleine, second daughter of the musical David Groos family, whose flair for side-bar effects is notable among her friends.

Madeleine should know about festivals. She and the rest of the family, sisters Laura and Hilary and brother Brian, have been singing in the festival ever since they were old enough to carry a tune.

Mrs. English incidentally, might reasonably be expected to wear her button with her tongue in her cheek. Festivals for her are a matter of early, early mornings, late, late nights, and sketchy meals.

They mean keeping pace with and paying close attention to proceedings in four or five centres at the same time, answering a thousand questions a day and fielding complaints. They also mean keeping adjudicators happpy, administering an office and a staff that has sprung up like a mushroom overnight, and unscrambling the inevitable problems that arise when several thousand people are involved in one operation.

Festivals are fun? Believe it or not, despite the fact that her daily resignations are routine and smilingly anticipated by her fellow workers, still Mrs. English won't give you much of an argument on that score.

•

Victoria's Public Library came in for praise from Joseph Cooper during a Friday morning workshop session organized by the Registered Music Teachers.

Many British libraries would be envious of the fine music section, Mr. Cooper said.

"Yor're most fortunate to have all those records and excellent books available. I hope you make good use of them."

The jovial, salty-tongued musician has also advised festival officials that it would be a good idea to introduce jazz concerts in future festivals.

Hear, hear!

ROSE BOWL, MEDALLION WINNERS

Camille's Talent 'Magnificent'

By BERYL PROUDMAN

As a production, the Festival Highlights program which thrilled adjudicators and audience alike Friday night in the McPherson Playhouse, could not have been improved upon.

Freed from all time-consuming announcements and comments, introduced briefly by Mrs. V. Berringer, festival president, the program never faltered, never slowed down.

A large number of awards were presented with pleasant dispatch by Mrs. H. Mickelson and the adjudicators added only a few, well-chosen words.

The skilfully presented intrinsically interesting items in the first half of the program naturally led up to the eagerly-awaited B.C. Electric Rose Bowl Contest in which Norma Selwood sang Bach's "Break In Grief"; Barbara Ebell sang "Angel Song From Gerontius"; Carla Levinson sang Chabrier's "Villanelle des Petits Canards" and George Roberts sang Vaughan Williams' "Vagabond."

In presenting the Rose Bowl, Trevor Anthony said, "Mr. Cooper and I decided without any doubt or hesitation that this award should be presented to Carla Levinson."

The penultimate spot in the program was reserved for the City of Victoria Medallion competition.

Cheryl Borris played the first movement of Mozart's D Minor Concerto which won high praise for the true Mozartian spirit with which every note was played.

Camille Inkman played three startlingly contrasted numbers, an Impromptu by Faure, a Chopin Etude and Morel's exciting Etude de Sonorite No. 2.

Completely swept off his feet by the "pure music" of Camille's playing Mr. Cooper exclaimed, "I have not heard such pianissimos, such fortissimos and all the glorious colors in between since I heard Rachmaninoff."

After congratulating Victoria on its outstanding festival not only rich in talented contestants but rich too in the concord with which so many music-making centres unite in bolstering and building the festival to its present high standard.

A poignant sadness doused a little of the pleasure the evening had brought when an impassioned Trevor Anthony pleaded with Victorians to stand out against those who are trying to kill music festivals in Canada by cutting off the economic support of the Canada Council.

"Let this be your chance," he said, "to light a torch to the future; come to the annual meeting on June 11, get up a petition and save music festivals which add so much to the cultural life of Canada."

Twenty-eight awards of scholarships, bursaries and other prizes were also made as the first week of the Greater Victoria Music Festival came to an end.

Awards and their winners:

Stolen Art Recovered

WARSAW (AP)—Polish police have recovered $1,000,000 in Medieval art treasures stolen from an exhibition three years ago, newspapers reported Friday. Four men were arrested. The valuables, owned by the Warsaw National Museum, were mainly gold and silver chalices, crucifixes and other items used in church rites.

The apple blossom is pink-and-white on the bough, the dogwood's out, and I would dearly like to go fishing. But a fence needs mending and the grass could stand cutting, so this weekend, I'll content myself with wishing luck to the boy with the shiny new fly-rod.

It's his first. Like most modern rods, its sections are crafted from fibreglas. It weighs a little over five ounces, and a few days back, I had the pleasure of helping him choose it.

For an angler, life holds few more amiable occasions. We spent a lot of time finding it, and at least as much in selecting a line that would make it work. The two together cost a shade over $15. With a sturdy old reel from my mess of gear — cost to the boy, another dollar or an hour of garden toil — he has the main elements of an outfit that will serve him through his apprenticeship.

Of those three items, the reel is the least important. It is also less historic by far. Isaac Walton, a good man and writer who may have discoursed with Shakespeare, was aware of the reel as a new-fangled invention, though he didn't use one.

But the sectional rod he carried, and his line of twisted and cunningly-dyed horsehair, were made to the precise instructions laid down centuries earlier by Dame Juliana Berners, a fishing prioress who not only made her own tackle but used it well.

★

As one who asks of the government only that it levy reasonable taxes, spend them sensibly, and otherwise keep out of his hair, I sometimes wonder where this country is going.

Now comes medical health officer Dr. Thomas Bailey to make me wonder even harder by forecasting a future in which women will be paid not to have children, and everybody will get a bonus for keeping fit.

Horrible! For that future generation of human robots — regulated and controlled to the last degree — I am truly sorry.

We are a welfare state now, and we got that way by treating government as if it were a big fat cow with an ever-ready udder. If we keep on looking for government to solve every human problem for us, we will eventually become a slave state.

This will happen, not because those we choose to govern wish to force that situation on us, but because we leave them no other course.

On Monday, I told you about the night-time serenade to which a most un-normal cougar treated my son and seven boys in his charge. After reading the eulogy to the cougar tribe in Friday's Times, I began to wonder if the crew shouldn't have lured the big cat into their camper with cries of "Nice pussy!" and maybe taken it for a ride in their rubber raft next day.

The Fish and Wild Life Branch, however, takes a sterner view of cougar that show up in non-wilderness parks, near schoolyards, or in other of man's preserves. A predator hunter is sent out, and if possible, the cougar is tracked and shot. Further, the branch urges anyone who spots a cougar in such an area to get in touch with the RCMP with all possible speed.

I am not out to blacken the cougar, a creature ordinarily so wary that you can travel his habitat for years and count yourself lucky to catch a single glimpse of his retreating shape. But on the rare occasions when he departs from or is forced out of his norm, he can be dangerous.

As for some rather extravagant claims made about cougar nature on this page by Mrs. David Hancock of Central Saanich Friday, I suggest that the behavior of a young cat taken from the woods as a kitten doesn't necessarily tell the story.

To Mrs. Hancock, a word of warning. When your now-docile pet matures to his full size and strength, watch closely for the slightest sign of a change in his nature.

And never, never turn your back on him.

New Welfare Rates Called Discriminatory

Effective June 1 school-age children on welfare will qualify for an additional $131 in provincial assistance annually.

But the announcement by the cabinet Friday, while welcomed by welfare mothers, was denounced in other quarters as discriminatory.

Critics said the welfare rate boost does nothing for single persons, childless couples or families where youngsters are not yet in school.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and NDP welfare critic, former social worker Dave Barrett of Coquitlam, say the new rates will serve to make it more profitable for a father on welfare to desert his family.

The new rate structure is in addition to basic rates of $75 per month for single persons, $125 for couples, $125 for a mother and one child and $25 per month for each additional dependent.

The increase for school age children includes $15 a year for clothing, $15 a year for recreation (such as YMYWCA fees or similar expenditure), an additional $5 a year to the $10 annual allowance for school supplies and a monthly ($96 a year) added $8 "family allowance" for each qualified child.

The additions are not automatic and will be paid only on a basis of need, a provincial welfare official emphasized. And in the case of the clothing and recreation allowances, a social welfare administrator may decide to pay the allowances at the rate of $5 thrice-yearly.

Here is reaction to the increase recorded today:

Mrs. Donna Langstaff, a past president of the Victoria Low Income Group said, "It's a step in the right direction. This is part of what we were fighting for — especially the recreational grants." She took part in recent demonstrations by the Low Income Group at the Legislative Buildings.

Saanich alderman, Mrs. Edith Gunning, said she is pleased the children have been helped. She noted that no help has been given the single person on welfare adding, "It is difficult to see how he can exist on $75 a month."

AS COUPLES

She said a married couple still gets only $125 monthly which might encourage them to separate and collect $75 each. But she agreed there was a saving when two people shared accommodation.

Persons living "common law" do not, however, obtain welfare payments as single persons but are regarded as couples when the arrangement is known to social workers, she said.

DRINKING DRIVERS BLASTED

Four men today were fined and had their drivers' licences suspended for impaired driving.

"Something has to be done about this outrageous driving by drunken people on the highways," commented Magistrate Ostler after sentencing the four.

Edgar Carter, 1340 Denman, was fined $350. Police said he was the driver of a car which struck a parked car on Bay St. at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

THROUGH LIGHT

Arbelle Williams of Brentwood, was fined $400 for impaired driving and $25 for not having a driver's licence after police observed him drive through a red light on Government.

Gregory Harvey, 120 Clarence, was fined $400 after court was told he was observed driving in an erratic manner on Broughton early today.

Mitchell Fraik, 1110 Tattersal, was fined $400 after RCMP said they observed him driving in an erratic manner on the Old Island Highway at 2:45 a.m. today.

All pleaded guilty.

NAMING MEMBERS NEXT

Province Clears Way For Mediation Board

The first part of Bill 33 came into effect Friday.

A proclamation signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes cleared the way for establishing the mediation commission, which will have power to order binding decisions in certain cases.

The new labor legislation was approved at the last session of the B.C. legislature and comes into effect by stages through the proclamation procedure.

IN VANCOUVER

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said in Vancouver Friday, where the cabinet met, that proclamation will permit the government to proceed with appointment of commission members.

When these have been made, facilities will be provided and staff appointed for the commission to carry out its duties. Its headquarters will be in Vancouver.

"The members will be required to devote full time to their duties and have authority to employ highly-skilled mediators to assist labor and management in resolving their disputes as well as experts having special or technical knowledge," he said.

INDUSTRIAL PEACE

"It is empowered to inquire into any matter referred to it by the minister, including matters relating to economic growth, labor-management relations, productivity, problems of adjustment, industrial research and technology research which will assist in improving the means of disseminating industrial and labor information and such other matters as seem calculated to maintain or secure industrial peace and to promote conditions favorable to the settlement of disputes."

Further steps to make the rest of the new law effective will be taken as quickly as possible, he said.

Bill 33 has been bitterly attacked by the B.C. Federation of Labour and many union leaders because of the compulsory arbitration aspect.

Under Section 18, not yet proclaimed, the cabinet can refer a dispute to the commission and may order that the commission's findings be binding on both sides.

MAN BADLY INJURED BY CAR

A pedestrian is in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after he was hit by a car at Douglas and Pandora early today.

Donald McDermid, 66, of 1330 Gladstone, suffered severe head and internal injuries.

The accident occurred at 2:40 a.m.

City police said McDermid was walking east across Douglas in a crosswalk when hit, but they said he was walking against the pedestrian and traffic control lights.

The car involved was driven north on Douglas by Hugh MacDonald, 2535 Queenswood, police said.

Festival Resumes Monday

The second section of the Greater Victoria Music Festival will begin sessions at 9 Monday morning.

Action will take place at three centres simultaneously; brass and woodwind duets and quartets will occupy the morning and elementary school instrumental ensembles in the afternoon in the Youth Room of First United Church.

Orchestral string groups and string solo work will be judged at Sir James Douglas School auditorium and dance groups will perform at Central Junior Secondary auditorium.

In the evening school bands and orchestra will provide a single session at Central.

The dance honor performance occurs Wednesday night at Central and school choirs occupy daytime sessions Wednesday and all of Thursday.

Researcher Gets Monthly Grant

A Canada Council grant of $350 a month for eight months of research in linguistics has been awarded Jacques Noel, 216 Wildwood Ave.

From Liege, Belgium, and completing the first year of a two-year masters program at the University of Victoria, Mr. Noel will work on automatic analysis of the language of scientific texts.

Foreman Fined; Had No Permit

Dennis Langtry, 1590 McTavish, was fined $15 today for contravening a city fire bylaw.

Court was told the accused was foreman of a Leigh Ave. construction site where a rubbish fire was lit March 22 without the required permit.

TROLLER SINKS NEAR SWARTZ BAY

Burned-Out Fisherman Offered Help From Above

Help came right out of the blue for commercial fisherman Don Hanson Friday afternoon when his troller burst into flames and sank near Swartz Bay.

Among the bevy of rescuers hurrying to the scene was a B.C. Airlines Grumman Mallard which landed on the sea near the burning boat.

Hanson, 36, of Harbour Road in Sidney, had already abandoned his 38-foot Lady Linet. He watched from his skiff while the troller was rent by about 200 gallons of gasoline exploding and then sank in about 120 feet of water off Portland Island.

★ ★ ★

He said today he intends grappling or sending a diver down to try and salvage some of the gear, including the nets.

The pillar of smoke and flame about two miles east of the ferry terminal attractied not only the seaplane but the B.C. Government ferry Queen of Vancouver which turned aside to see if it could lend a hand.

A cluster of smaller boats also converged on the scene.

Hanson was hauling his nets about 5 p.m. when the fire burst out of the cabin behind him.

"It was too far gone to do anything."

★ ★ ★

He speculated today it might have been caused by a sudden gasoline leak in the engine.

"We spotted the smoke as we were coming through Active Pass. We thought we'd better drop in in case there was someone injured," said Bill Cove, pilot of the Mallard.

The plane was headed to Victoria to pick up the Victoria Shamrocks lacrosse team for a Vancouver game.

Hanson declined with thanks the offer of an airlift to hospital or to Sidney as he spotted a friend's boat approaching. He was unhurt in the incident.

★ ★ ★

Air-Sea Rescue authorities paid tribute to the prompt action of the B.C. Airlines pilot, a former Victorian.

"He did a good job," they said. "If anyone was injured, he was right on the spot."

Hanson said today his boat and gear represented a loss of about $15,000. The boat was insured but personal possessions and spare gear on the craft were not.

He has worked on tugboats or as a fisherman since he was 17 and had operated the Lady Linet for the past five years.

Saanich Still Dark On Route

Saanich planner Tom Loney said today "we have no more information than a year ago" on the alignment of the proposed Patricia Bay Freeway.

He was commenting on a report that a route map has been circulated showing the alignment of the proposed freeway which would replace the present two-lane road.

"We have maps showing it to the best of our information," Mr. Loney said.

"We have taken highways department plans and put them out at various scales for our convenience. But we have no more information than a year ago.

NEW PRIORITIES?

"The last time we talked to the highways department and asked them when they would come to a decision they said they would like to finalize their plans over the winter.

"Maybe with the new minister new priorities will be established."

The new highways minister is Wesley Black. He succeeded Premier Bennett who took over the department after P. A. Gaglardi resigned as minister.

Ask The Times

Q. Where can I write for information on Youth Hostel locations in the British Isles, continental Europe and the Middle East? J.D.

A. Write to H. L. Knapp, secretary, Youth Hostels Association, St. Albans, Herts., England, and ask for direction to the hostel groups in the areas where you plan to travel.

Q. Did your answer Wednesday refer also to legal aid for civil cases? A.D.

A. It referred to aid in criminal matters. If you want legal aid in a civil case, a panel of lawyers sits every Wednesday at 5 p.m. at the Law Courts Building on Burdett Ave. to receive applications. Those who cannot afford to hire a lawyer for a criminal case can make application for aid through lawyer Alan Patterson, secretary of the Legal Aid Society, at 750 Courtney, or the Salvation Army's Brigadier Rankin.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Fire Season To Open Wednesday

The annual forest fire season in British Columbia begins Wednesday and provincial authorities have issued a reminder that fire permits are required during the six-month period.

Permits, available at no cost from forest service and fish and wildlife offices and many sporting goods stores, are required for all campfires in the outdoors, except in provincial campsites and supervised commercial camps.

Burning permits are also necessary for land clearing fires and burning debris. They can be obtained from forest rangers, except in municipal areas where they are available from local authorities.

Chief Forester L. F. Swannell said more than 750 trained men will be put on standby duty in B.C.'s 106 ranger districts and up to 44 aircraft can be called into service against forest fires.

'He Had Incredible Speed And Ate Meat Like a Dog'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Do you believe in the existence of wolf boys?

Some people may have doubts but not 82-year-old Mrs. Edwin Duffin, 314 Irving Road, who once lived in a district of India where people lived in fear of their children being abducted by wolves.

She says she saw the most famous of all wolf boys, Dina Sanichar, who was kept in an orphanage at Sikandra, near Agra, for 36 years.

Last week a news despatch from Lucknow reported the death in hospital of another wolf boy — Ramu — believed to have been raised in the jungle until he was 10 years old. His death was due to a chronic respiratory infection.

●

He was found naked in a third-class waiting room at a railway station in 1954. The doctor who looked after him believed that Ramu was carried off by a she-wolf as an infant. He had deformed legs and marks on his neck suggesting he had been confined in a lair and dragged in an animal's jaws.

The wolf boy Mrs. Duffin saw was captured in 1867 by hunters who spotted him running on all fours with a she-wolf. The animal was brought to bay in a cave, killed, and the boy Dina Sanichar, handed over to the Sikandra orphanage. He died in 1903.

"Just about the time I saw Dina Sanichar there was a hunt in the district for a wolf believed to have taken an infant," Mrs. Duffin recalled.

DIAN SANICHAR
. . . first wolf boy

Reports of such happenings were not uncommon and in that part of India, were taken for granted.

She said the wolves were bold and often seen roaming in the yards of people's home. They never attacked people and were considered a nuisance by non-Indians as they often enticed dogs to run off with them to the jungle.

The wolf boy at the orphanage, she said, bore scars — marks of having been clawed by animals. He could stand up straight but when he moved it was on all fours.

"He ran with a lope at an incredible speed," she added. "He ate like a dog and his diet was raw meat."

People were not allowed near him as he was considered dangerous, she said.

As a girl she met English poet-writer Rudyard Kipling, who created the famous character, Mowgli the Wolf Boy, in the jungle books.

●

In a verse at the end of the Mowgli story, Kipling in the last lines makes it apparent no wolf recovered from the jungle ever became normal again. The wolf boy is being cared for by a woman in a cottage when he hears a noise outside. The lines read:

"'Tis a league and a league to the Lena Falls where the crop and the upland meet,
But I can smell the wet down-wind that wakes the sprouting wheat.
Unbar the door, I may not bide, but I must out and see
If those are wolves that wait outside or my own kin to me!"
She loosed the bar, she slid the bolt, she opened the door anon,
And a gray bitch-wolf came out of the dark and fawned on the Only Son!

BY SAANICH PLANNING COMMISSION

Wilkinson Drive-In Backed

The Saanich Advisory Planning Commission is recommending approval of a drive-in movie theatre on Wilkinson Road.

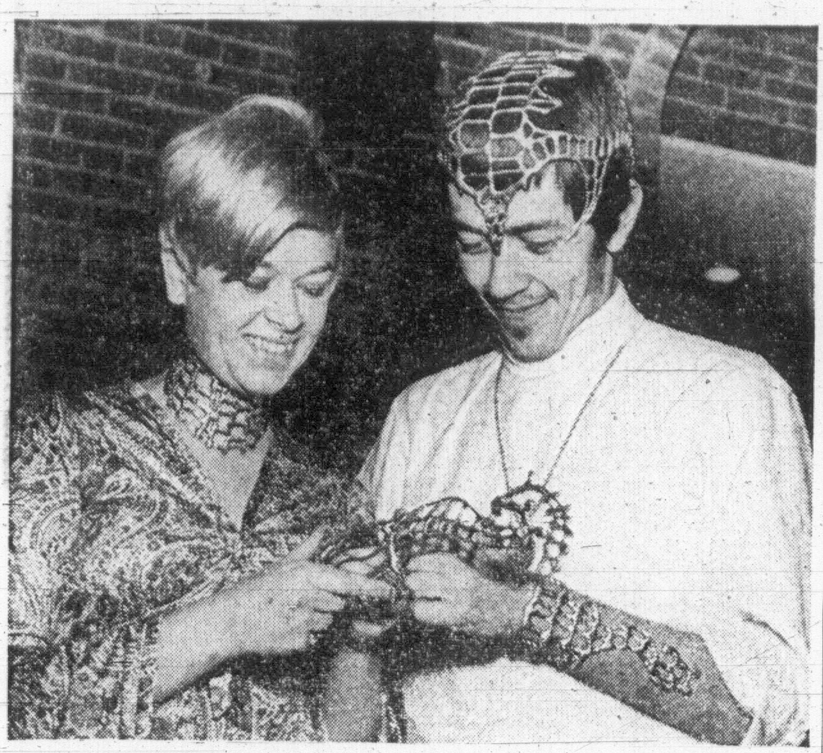
The commission's recommendation is expected to go before the May 6 council meeting when a public hearing may be called for a later date.

Location of the proposed outdoor theatre is the west side of the 4300-block Wilkinson on part of the Layritz Nursery property.

It would cover 9½ acres of the nursery property and hold 800 cars. The theatre would adjoin Layritz Park on the west boundary, with access onto Wilkinson and the screen located to the south.

The rezoning application was submitted just over a month ago by a Vancouver firm of architect-planners on behalf of Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited.

The advisory Planning Commission is appointed by council but has power only to make recommendations. It is composed of private citizens and one alderman.



UNUSUAL WAY-OUT designs in jewelry are "in". Examining some of the pieces he makes in Se'Bastion's Vault on the second floor of The Village Fair, Bastion Square, are Brian Jaundrew and Unicorn salesgirl Wendy Burrell. Brian wears helmet, pendant and bracelet he made for his watch. Piece he holds is a matching ankle bracelet. Wendy wears a high collar that lends a unique touch to her Indain Boy dress from the Unicorn.

Almost Anybody Can Get Into Se'Bastion's Vault

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Brian Jaundrew designs jewelry in a vault but he doesn't mind a bit.

The "vault" is a tiny cubicle on the second floor of The Village Fair in Bastion Square.

The old building used to be a warehouse—and Brian's tiny workroom in what appears to be a recessed arch used to contain an enormous vault.

Brian named his workroom Se'Bastion's Vault when he opened for business April 8. He says the name doesn't mean anything, "I just like the name Sebastion and it fitted in with Bastion Square."

Although he designs both jewelry and sculpture in the vault, he distributes his work through Bastion Handicrafts on the ground floor.

MORE TIME

"It's a good arrangement," he says. "I don't have to worry about the business end and it gives me more time to work."

Brian, 22, grew up in Victoria and was an enthusiastic painter at Vic High School. He still paints and does graphics occasionally.

A year ago Brian and his wife went to Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, where he worked in the sales department of a large steel company.

That experience perhaps gave him some ideas of media from which jewelry could be made. He returned to Victoria in December and got a job as a draftsman (he still works nights).

EXPEREMENTED

"One day I was sitting around feeling frustrated, thinking of things I could do. I thought an inexpensive way of making jewelry would be to use solder, so I rushed home and began experimenting."

His first piece was a delicate necklace for his wife—very different from the kind of solid pieces he makes now.

"It took awhile to get used to working with solder. It's strange stuff to work with and somehow the jewelry evolved into heavier pieces."

Soon friends started asking Brian to make pendants and he had quite a successful business at home before opening the shop.

The Village Fair is often crowded with shoppers—and once the tourist season starts it will become even noisier.

But it doesn't bother Brian. "I love it. I really enjoy poeple watching me work if they're interested. I can more or less show them exactly what I'm doing."

One visitor to Se'Bastion's Vault was a girl from Seattle who watched the whole process carefully with the idea of making similar jewelry at home.

Brian explained the process. "You use wire solder with a high tin content. Heat it with a propane torch and it will run.

'JUST HAPPENS'

"It flows into the shape you want which means its difficult to plan a piece—you can to a certain extent but usually it just happens.

Through heating, the tin will come to the surface and form a very hard shell around the outside. Then when you've finished the piece, you polish and lacquer it, so that the lead won't run off."

Recently Brian has begun to make sculptures using a similar process. "They really evolved out of the jewelry. I had made them of carved wood before, but I happened to be overstocked with jewelry, so I decided to try using the solder.

"I use wire to design the figure and then free form lead over it."

EARRINGS TOO

Many of Brian's jewelry pieces are unusual. For women he has designed ankle bracelets, arm bands, head bands, collars, brooches, and rings. When he gets more equipment, he hopes to make earrings as well.

His latest order was for a pair of sandals. He also makes jewelry for men—pendants, necklaces, bracelets, helmets.

"I think it's great if men wear jewelry that has tastefully been made for them," he says. "There are very definitely feminine pieces and masculine pieces depending on size and weight.

"I don't think jewelry takes away from a man's masculinity as long as its been made for the man."

Brian himself wears a large pendant designed around a 1964 Olympic medal and a bracelet for his watch. The unusual helmet in the picture was made for a male friend.

'BIT OF FASHION'

"He intends to wear it," says Brian, "but of course not all the time.

"Whether a man can wear jewelry depends entirely on the kind of person he is.

"That's why I like working in the Vault to order. I can actually design a piece for a specific person. I can design for the individual rather than just making a lot of jewelry and having people buy it at random."

Brian's new business started very slowly, probably there," but since word got around, it's been thriving.

He insists his jewelry is not designed to cater to tourists.

"It's more for Victorians than for anyone else. I'm trying in a very small way to bring a bit of fashion to staid Victoria."

Church Plans New Home For Aged

A $750,000 home for elderly people to replace the Caroline Macklem Home on Rockland Avenue is planned by the Anglican Diocesan Council.

Canon Grahame Baker, chairman of the council, said the new home will be built on the same site subject to rezoning approval from the city and a provincial government grant.

The present home was given to the church by the late Kathleen Agnew and is housing a maximum of 24 persons. The proposed building would house 96 men and women, single or married.

The Anglican Church Women have agreed to provide $200,000 towards the project and have already released $1,000 to cover cost of the initial plans.

Canon Baker said an application will be made to Central Mortgage and Housing for a loan and the B.C. government will be approached for a grant.

"We need about $500,000," he said.

Income Tax Charge Laid Against Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Victor Michael Prescottt, a Vancouver businessman and lawyer, Friday was charged under the Income Tax Act with failing to report $413,317 in income. He will appear in court May 3.

He is charged with nine counts of failure to report income from 1953 to 1964 and with two charges of acquiescing in the making of false or deceptive statements of two companies of which he was an officer.

The charges allege non-reporting of income from promotion, share trading, sale of mineral claims and management and legal fees, and overstatement of expenses and personal exemptioons.

Two companies named in the charges are American Land Management Ltd., and the Vi-Co Corp., both of Vancouver.

WEEK IN U.S. BUSINESS

Tax Hike Pressure Grows

NEW YORK (AP)—The call for a tax increase coupled with a cut in government spending was sounded again last week by some of the United States' top money men. But Congress postponed taking any action.

The administration has asked repeatedly for a 10-per-cent income tax surcharge. Congress has declined to pass such legislation until the administration agrees to pare its spending. The measures are aimed at fighting inflation and cutting the dollar drain which has knocked the country's balance of payments out of kilter.

A House of Representatives Senate conference committee has adjourned until Tuesday its considerations of Senate-passed legislation that blends the surcharge with a spending limitation aimed at cutting $6,000,000,000 from the administration budget.

Support for a tax increase and a spending cut was voiced by the presidents of the two largest banks in the U.S.

Rudolph A. Peterson, president of the Bank of America, the largest, said: "Our government must come to the realization that, strong and powerful as we are, we cannot do everything at once without courting disaster."

URGENT NEED

David Rockefeller, president of Chase Manhattan Bank, said there is urgent need for a tax increase to reduce by half a federal budget deficit he predicts will grow to $20,000,000,000 this year.

Rockefeller also said it is necessary to slice government spending by "several billions more." The measures would not provide an instant cure for inflation or the balance of payments but would demonstrate the U.S. had the will and the capacity to "manage our affairs responsibly."

An optimistic economic note was sounded by Representative Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House ways and means committee.

Mills said "we have the strongest economy the world has ever known. We will be well advised to focus our attention on the vigorously expanding productive power of the United States and on the increasingly efficient use of that capability rather than on the day-to-day fluctuation of the price of gold on foreign markets."

Mills' statement was seen as an answer to a remark by William McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman, that the U.S. is "in the midst of the worst financial crisis since 1931."

Husky Oil Canada Profits Increase

CALGARY (CP) — Husky Oil Canada Ltd. has reported 1967 consolidated net earnings of $8,308,176, or $1.01 a share, up 28 per cent from $6,512,787 or 81 cents a share in 1966.

Board chairman Glenn E. Nielson said the increase was "particularly significant when it is recognized that in 1960, the year the Canadian and U.S. Husky companies were consolidated, the joint operations sustained a $2,250,000 loss."

Prices continued to rise on a note of cautious optimism on Canada's major stock markets this week. The general upward trend was still firmly linked to hopes for an early start to Vietnam peace talks.

The best gains were posted by steels, golds, oils and banks, while shares in the base metal group were largely unchanged.

In an attempt to explain price movements, analysts have been looking back to the Korean war when peace negotiations extended for two years until July, 1953. Records show the market went through wide swings during this period.

But brokers say that whatever emotional upsurge may follow positive news on the peace front, the market still stands to be strongly corrected by adverse developments in the United States' fiscal position.

Compared to Wall Street this week, however, Canadian markets, advanced more steadily, without being effected by hourly rumors.

Since Tuesday, the Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index rose more than half a point each day to close at 159.39 for a gain of 1.46 on the week.

The surge followed a sharp decline over the weekend cause by an increase in the U.S. bank rate and William McChesney Martin's warning that the U.S. faces the worst financial crisis since 1931.

GOLDS PICK UP

A feature of the week was revived interest in golds, though volume was modest. The TSE gold index was up almost 8 points after renewed buying Thursday and Friday.

Analysts thought the disclosure of the U.S. trade deficit for March — the worst for five years — could be responsible. The trade deficit is the amount spent abroad in excess of receipts.

Another factor was the publication of exact figures for the loss in official U.S. gold reserves during the run on gold bullion between November and mid-March. The loss totalled more than $2,000,000,000.

At Toronto, Campbell Red Lake gained 4¼ to 35, Dome 1½ to 62½ and Giant Yellowknife 1⅛ to 11⅛.

INDUSTRIALS ADVANCE

Steels surged ahead in a week when the three major companies held annual meetings. Stelco, which reported record first-quarter profits and is considering increasing its dividend rate, rose 1⅜ to 21⅜.

Algoma and Dofasco, despite lower profits, were up ½ to 18½ and ⅛ to 17¾. All finished below thier best after prices slipped Friday.

Ontario Store Fixture, which closed last week at 8¼, jumped 7⅛ to 15 on sales of 47,000 shares. The company, which makes store, restaurant and kitchen fixtures, announced it will buy Roberts Realty of the Bahamas Ltd.

Ford of Canada climbed 6 points to 189 after the company predicted record car and truck sales for the current model year.

Monarch Fine Foods was up 2¾ to 12½ following a takeover bid from Lever Brothers of Toronto.

Among declining issues, Fruehauf Trailer fell ¾ to 14. First-quarter profits were down. Versatile Manufacturing, also with reduced profits, fell 1½ to 10.

Both oil refiners and western oils posted strong gains.

Imperial, which reported increased first-quarter profits and was recommended by brokers, rose 3 points to 65. Canadian Superior, up 2¼ to 44¾, announced first-quarter profits of $1,900,000 compared with a loss for the same period last year.

FIREMEN HAVE THEMSELVES A BALL

The Empress Hotel rocked with gaiety Friday evening when the Victoria Fire Department held its 53rd annual ball. These three couples, seen between dances (left to right) are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Byrnell, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Heppell Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. H. Dawson. (Bill Halkett photo)

Barnyard 'Pipeline' Reveals True Story

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Now that Easter is over and the children can forget the whimsy little stories about fluffy little yellow chickens, Old Grouch Duffus has a terrible compulsion to tell the REAL story about fluffy little yellow chickens.

This is because 47 assorted domestic creatures (at latest census) have conspired to provoke me.

And sentimental chicken lovers should stop reading here.

We had a fluffy little chicken a few weeks ago. In fact we had two, but one fell down a rat hole the first day of her life, proving the theory that not only is it unwise to count your chickens before they're hatched, it is also quite pointless to count them until you see if they can survive the rigors of life with mother.

Mother, in this case, was an adolescent bantam, who had no business going broody at her age. She took herself off to the woods for the duration, miraculously escaped the notice of the racoons, and duly brought back her little surprises.

The survivor, a loud voiced black baby, was taken to the neighborhood nursery school so the little ones could see a real-life fluffy little chicken even if he wasn't yellow. He was named Sambo, and the children were to watch his progress as he grew up ... nature lessons and all that.

Sambo, unfortunately, has not lived long enough to be of much use. His mother took him out for a walk one day and forgot him. His corpse was found in the bushes and the only lesson for the nursery school children is that fluffy little chickens tend to conk out at an early age.

Actually Sambo was the descendant of a gift bantam, a shady character, spotted black and white and obviously the result of strange interbreeding. Last summer we thought she had suffered the fate of her mate (raccoon attack) until she strutted complacently out of the woods with a mixed bag of offspring. Like mother, like daughter.

Her sons, six of the eight survivors, grew up to be juvenile delinquents, and remind us so much of the troublesome sons of George the Third that they are known as the Royal Dukes.

They are arrogant, conceited, quarrelsome and quite useless until cock-fighting is made legal in Canada.

We do actually have proper hens who are supposed to lay eggs for me to sell in order to make enough money to feed the livestock. These hens have not so far caught on to the idea of raising babies, but apart from this lack of maternal instinct, they seem to have the fairly normal poultry IQ.

That is to say for every hen who lays an egg and goes out to nibble grass, earwigs and bedding plants, there is another who prefers to nibble eggs.

Right now, I have a surplus of eggs marked with a large green B. And this doesn't just stand for B Grade.

B stands for Bitten.

B stands for Barn, where, in spite of frequent searches, we still find large nests of eggs carefully hidden—one never knows quite how long they've been there, but they are unsaleable.

B stands for Bantam, the grandmother with the over-developed maternal instinct who sits on the eggs the others lay. Likewise unsaleable.

If she would sit on one nest long enough to hatch some proper hens, this would be useful, but she has trouble making up her mind which nesting box is most comfortable.

As for the ducks and sheep—but that's another story.

P. S. The above census figure is out of date.

The late Sambo's blond aunt Bianca has just produced a number of fluffy little chickens—two yellow, a few black, and the rest smudged—on an inaccessible boarded-in shelf above the nesting boxes.

It will be interesting to see how many survive when Mama leads her babies to water, six feet below, forgetting that fluffy little chickens can't fly.

Rebekahs Stage Successful Tea

Tea and crumpets, Victoria style were the order of the day when the Emerald Rebekah Lodge Number 17 held its spring tea Friday afternoon in the K of P Hall.

General convener, Mrs. M. Scott, arranged the bouquets of heather and cherry blossoms in wooden mugs which centred each table, and the corsages worn by many members.

The event was opened by the district deputy president, Mrs. D. Burkholder, assisted by Mrs. M. Ford, president of the Rebekah Assembly of British Columbia.

Noble grand, Mrs. K. Jones, and vice-noble grand, Mrs. N. Fortt, greated guests at the door.

The kitchen was ably manned by Miss Dulcina Guelpa who kept table convener, Mrs. E. McMath, and her assistants supplied with tea, crumpets and cakes. Assisting Mrs. McMath were Mrs. E. Hogg, Mrs. M. Gower, Mrs. E. Thompson, Mrs. L Wilson, Mrs. F. Arands, Mrs. M. Sutherland and Mrs. J. Starback.

The bake table, convened by Mrs. L. Allison, was popular. Assisting at this stall were Mrs. M. Chambers, Mrs. B. Shae and Mrs. M. Swain.

Mrs. M. Guyet, Mrs. L. Smoothy and Mrs. N. Hallet sold tickets at the door.

Colorful Background of Flowers Sets Theme for Auxiliary Party

The theme was overwhelmingly floral, Thursday, when the Woman's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital held its annual coffee party in the nurses' residence.

The lounge was a riot of color, achieved by attractive arrangements of roses, lilac, narcissi, stocks and other spring flowers. They decked the head table, the large impressive mantlepiece and the coffee tables dotted around the room.

The floral motif was even present on the refreshment trays, many of which were centred with 'roses' that had centres of scarlet tomatoes, 'petals' made of cream cheese and 'stamens' of cooked egg yolks.

Hundreds turned out to make the event a success, raising $278 from party proceeds and an additional $700 from a pay-as-you-pull raffle. Drawing the prizes for the latter was Mrs. A. C. Pickles, wife of the hospital's director.

Greeting guests were president Mrs. J. C. B. Keane, Mrs. J. H. Hobbs and Mrs. W. E. Thorpe.

Presiding at the head table were Miss Edna Wallace, Mrs. Pickles and members of the hospital's nursing faculty, Miss Muriel Thompson, Miss Mary O'Brien, Miss Elizabeth Maude-Moore, Mrs. B. McNeish, Mrs. R. Hall and Miss Margaret Plunkett.

Student nurses who assisted with serving guests were the Misses Veronica Schwantje, Barbara Robinson, Alice Renard and Rayann Squires.

Mrs. R. R. Hopkins was in charge of floral arrangements.

A battery of volunteers kept kitchen arrangements running smoothly. Helping to keep the supply lines moving were Mrs. Victor Price, Mrs. D. F. C. McArthur, Miss Wallace, Mrs. Mayne Banks, Mrs. Kathleen Dean, Mrs. W. McConnell, Mrs. H. V. Wilkinson, Mrs. W. E. Speed and Mrs. E. Stewart.

Mrs. F. E. Loveday convened a stall of miscellaneous items. Assisting her were Mrs. I. A. Wright, Miss L. Loveday and Mrs. E. Durgan.

In charge of the various raffles were Mrs. R. M. Woollatt, Mrs. J. L. Hobbs, Mrs. J. H. Watson and Mrs. F. D. Lee.

Mrs. Glenn Coffey had arranged for the various door prizes. Mrs. Amy Deas and Mrs. Forster Smith were in charge of receipts. Publicity was handled by Mrs. F. D. Lee and Mrs. R. K. Rorke.

Proceeds from the pay-as-you-pull raffle will be used to buy rapid processing equipment for the hospital's radiology department.

Mother's Day is May 12th!

JUST TWO WEEKS AWAY

How Mother's Day Started:

It was on the Second Anniversary of her Mother's death that Anna Jarvis held Memorial Services in her home in Philadelphia. It was May 9th, 1907, and Anna Jarvis then set out on a crusade for a National Holiday. Her Campaign finally resulted in Congress passing a resolution in 1914, which was signed by President Wilson and proclaimed an annual observance to be held the 2nd Sunday in May.
